BRITISH EXILE GERMANS

FORCE 292 TO BOARD VESSEL IN QUARANTINE

Seize Homes, Land, in Samoa.

BY A SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

APIA, Western Samoa, Aug. 15.—[By mail.]—Here in this remote corner of the Pacific, within sight of the grave of Robert Louis Stevenson, the British government of New Zealand, one year after the signing of the treaty of peace with Germany has deported 292 German Samoan citizens, shipping them away to Germany, more than 10,000 miles from these islands, their only home.

It has forced from this tropical region back to central Europe a group of people, almost all of whom always have lived in Samoa or two years ago fled from Germany to avoid military tyranny and established here a center of modern progress in a savage wilderness.

All this without trial and without offense by the deported ones, other than that they were German.

Exiled on German Ship.

An inquiry just conducted by your correspondent shows these facts:

The British ship on which the British officials loaded the weeping exiles was the former German steamer Main. The steamer arrived in Apia roads for its sorrowing cargo on Sunday, June 13. But owing to cases of influenza aboard, none of the members of the British crew was permitted to land, and no one in the port, not even the agent of the ship, was permitted to visit it.

Even the British officials superintending the embarkation avoided contact with those on board, and Mason Mitchell, then American vice consul at Apia, and the American authorities at Pagopago, American Samoa, refused to permit the ship to call there for coal.

Nevertheless the British officials sent the exiles aboard with ninety-four children, some of them babes in arms.

En Route to Rotterdam.

The Main sailed from Apia on Wednesday morning, June 16, at 10 o'clock, for Honolulu for coal, being destined for Rotterdam by way of Panama. No word has yet been received here of its arrival.

There is a similarity between the deportation of the German Samoans and that of the French Nova Scotians in 1755, immortalized by Longfellow. In that case, however, some of the Acadians found their way back to the country they had developed, but the German Samoans are being taken more than 10,000 miles away, and the chances of their being able to recoup their fortunes and return, if they would desire to, are not great.

Had Been Tripartite Rule.

The Germans had had their territorial rights since 1900 in western Samoa—those islands of the Samoa group west of 173 longitude. Up to that time the islands were governed by a joint commission of representatives of the governments of Great Britain, Germany, and the United States. The natives had been continually at war with each other or with the governing forces, and also were the tools of intrigue by the foreign interests.

In 1899 this resulted in the landing of American and British marines at Apia and in a tension which threatened war between the United States and Germany. The result was an agreement in 1900 whereby the United States received all the islands lying east of 173, the balance of the islands going to Germany, Great Britain withdrawing altogether for considerations elsewhere.

New Germans Arrive.

Many Germans already had located in the islands prior to 1900, but when Germany's rights were delimited and the German administration was installed, a new group of Germans arrived from Germany. These Germans and their descendants are the ones who just have been deported.

Up to 1914 the Germans had carried out a well organized plan of road construction and erection of substantial public and private buildings, piers, and other improvements.

The Germans established a number of private plantations for the scientific propagation of cocoanuts, cocoa, rubber and other tropical crops as well as private trading concerns, shops and other important adjuncts to a civilized community. Among these were a can-

Great Lakes Officer in Net as Embezzler

Lieut. S. F. Sullivan, in charge of the recruit pay roll at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, was placed under military guard yesterday following the discovery of forged pay receipts and a shortage of over $6,000 in his accounts.

Hundreds of recruits in the navy have been swindled out of portions of their pay through the juggling of the accounts and the shortage, it is said, probably will exceed $75,000 when the audit is completed.

Washington Orders Audit.

Members of a special board of investigation sent to the Great Lakes station by the navy department at Washington have been going over Lieut. Sullivan's books for the last two days. The shortages unearthed so far have averaged about $3,000 a day.

Many of the sailors whose pay accounts have been falsified are now at sea and the full extent of the discrepancy will not be known until their pay accounts, now held aboard the ships to which they are assigned, have been examined.

The yeoman, who served as the lieutenant's secretary, is now on furlough. He has been recalled and will be examined upon his return.

Sullivan Under Guard.

In the meanwhile Lieut. Sullivan is quartered with the 18th recruit regiment and under the personal guard of Lieut. E. Fisher, provost marshal. Lieut. Fisher and his assistant, Ensign F. Gawrych, are under orders to accompany him at all times.

Lieut. Sullivan, who is attached to the pay corps, handled, until a few days ago, the pay roll of about 7,900 recruits. He had charge of the funds, pay vouchers, and receipts for practically every man of any grade sent to the station for training. He also handled the recruits' personal accounts, making such deductions as purchases of clothing, hospital dues, and athletic association assessments.

Men at Sea Delayed.

Many recruits are held at the station for a period of only six weeks before being ordered to sea. In such cases their pay accounts are turned over to the officer in charge of the draft. Should any discrepancy occur, these sailors are not aware of it until the next pay day rolls around. By that time they may be in the middle of the ocean.

Up until two weeks ago the men were paid monthly, and it was easy to juggle the accounts by forging pay receipts because of the time allowed. At that time, however, an order was issued providing for two pay days a month, on the 5th and 20th. This change was made because a large number of desertions were attributed to slowness of the pay system.

Change Brings Complaints.

It was when this change was made that complaints began to pour into the navy department. Some one in the pay office evidently had not had sufficient time to doctor the accounts under the new system. Several pay receipts were established as forgeries and a checkup of the accounts was ordered.

Lieut. Sullivan will be tried by the general court martial board, of which Lieut. T. M. Leovy is the head. Capt. Daniel W. Wurtbaugh, commandant of the station, refused to discuss the amount of the shortage or to permit a reporter to see thep risoner.

"A shortage has been discovered," said the commandant, "and Lieut. Sullivan will be held under arrest in accordance with the regulations until his good name is cleared and the navy's funds protected."

Len Small Wins State by 6,800

TRIBUNE GETS "LOST" VOTE IN 183 PRECINCTS

Downstate Returns Now Complete.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Len Small of Kankakee has a plurality of 6,800 over John G. Oglesby for the Republican nomination for governor, according to almost complete unofficial figures last night. With returns all in from downstate counties, Chicago still has 239 precincts missing from the unofficial tab—the first time within memory of the old-timers that full figures from Chicago were unavailable on heads of the tickets three days after the polls closed.

Gathers Fresh Returns.

Yesterday THE TRIBUNE gathered up from precinct captains in the anti-Tammany group returns from 183 of the missing Chicago precincts. Combined with downstate returns they show the following:

	Oglesby.	Small.
Chicago — 1,971 precincts already in	89,741	175,269
Chicago—183 missing precincts gathered by THE TRIBUNE	10,364	17,708
Total — 2,154 precincts out of 2,210	100,105	192,977
Downstate—Complete	239,474	155,497
	339,579	348,474
Small's lead		8,895
Small's estimated plurality in 56 Chicago precincts still missing [43 average]		2,408
		11,303
Oglesby's plurality in Cook county towns		4,500
Small's indicated plurality		6,800

From Thompson Strongholds.

The 183 missing Chicago precincts gathered by THE TRIBUNE included twenty in the Second ward, a Thompson stronghold, twelve in the Third, where Small outran Oglesby two to one, fourteen in the Sixth which gave Small a lead; nineteen in the Seventh, where they ran almost neck and neck, seven in the Twentieth, in some of which Oglesby was not given a single vote.

The Oglesby managers still claim victory. They declare the result is so close, and the chances of error in the unofficial count are so great that it is still any man's fight and it will require the official canvass of the vote which starts tomorrow to establish the winner.

In the Cook county towns, twenty-nine precincts are still missing, and these may increase Oglesby's vote somewhat.

McKinley 11,000 Ahead.

Congressman William B. McKinley's plurality for senator now stands at about 11,000. Discovery of an error in the Lake county totals yesterday added 3,000 to McKinley's count.

On the latest unofficial figures the results are:

	McKinley.	Smith.
Chicago—
1,971 precincts, reported before	96,759	169,373
183 precincts, gathered by THE TRIBUNE	10,673	17,460
Downstate, 11 precincts missing	232,873	145,726
Totals	340,305	332,539
McKinley lead		7,746
McKinley's plurality in Cook county towns		5,000
McKinley's lead in 11 missing downstate precincts (27 average)		300
		13,046
Smith's plurality in 56 missing Chicago precincts (37 average)		2,073
McKinley's indicated plurality		10,973

Brundage 7,000 Ahead.

The latest figures on attorney general indicate Edward J. Brundage has won by more than 7,000.

For the rest, the anti-Tammany state ticket has gone over with the exception of George Keys for state treasurer, who seems to have been defeated by Edward E. Miller by 25,000.

William E. Mason and Richard Yates maintained their lead for congressmen-at-large.

On the Democratic end, the senatorship nomination remained in doubt. In 4,366 precincts out of 5,737 in the state, Robert E. Burke had 58,126 votes and Peter A. Waller, 60,700.

NEW DRIVE OF PAN-GERMANS ON; FRANCE ANGERED

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The Pan-German league is about to commence a new onslaught to smash the Versailles treaty, the French foreign office has learned.

Despite the clauses in the treaty forbidding Austria to amalgamate with Germany, Austro-German pan-Germans have begun a campaign in Berlin and Vienna, supported by Chancellor Renner, for attachment of Austria to the German empire.

The British are not opposing the proposal, and the Italians and Jugo-Slavs are less hostile than formerly. The French alone bitterly oppose the plan.

Pan-Germans declare that Austria must remain Europe's pauper, dependent on foreign aid, unless allowed to join destinies with Germany.

U. S. STEAMSHIP SAILS FOR ERIN DESPITE BRITISH

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The first American built, manned, and registered trans-Atlantic liner to sail for European ports in a generation left pier 74, North river, at the foot of West Thirty-fourth street, at noon today, bound for Queenstown, Boulogne, and London.

The vessel, the Panhandle State, will stop at the Irish port in spite of the fact that the British admiralty two days ago expected the liner to omit Ireland from its itinerary. An official of the line said today:

"Our advertisements in the morning papers said this ship would go to Queenstown, Boulogne, and London. That is where we are sailing it. Whether it will dock in Queenstown remains to be seen. It will be its first port of call from New York."

Hoover Good Type for His Cabinet, Gov. Cox Says

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 18.—Gov. Cox, in an address here today before a luncheon of business men, referred to Herbert Hoover as the type of trained mind he would like to have in his cabinet, if elected.

"Mr. Hoover's effective service in the war was largely due to his thorough training as an engineer," he said, "and if I can induce him, one of the best engineers in the country will sit in my cabinet."

Gov. Cox would abolish the excess profit tax and substitute a tax of 1 or 1½ per cent on the volume of business of a firm.

C. L. RAYMOND, RETIRED BROKER, SHOT TO DEATH

Found in the Parkway Hotel; Suicide.

Charles L. Raymond, a wealthy retired broker, was found dead in his suite in the Parkway hotel, 2100 Lincoln Park West, shortly after 8 o'clock last night. There were three bullet wounds in his face.

The body was discovered by the broker's daughter, Abbie, when she returned from dinner. The woman called for her father, but received no answer. She found the body on the floor of the bathroom. Beside the body was a revolver.

Police Call It Suicide.

Lieut. John Norton of the homicide squad and Deputy Coroner Holton hurried to the hotel. After a thorough investigation they decided that the broker had committed suicide.

"When I arrived most of the evidence had been cleared away," Norton said. "But after talking with the daughter and several people of the hotel and after going over a record of the past years of the man's life I have come to the conclusion that it was suicide."

Powder Marks on Face.

In the revolver were found three empty shells. Powder marks on the man's face indicated that the gun had been held close when it was discharged.

"My father has been ill for the past three years," Miss Raymond told the police. "Three days ago the doctor ordered him to remain in bed. He became very despondent.

"I left him in our suite when I went downstairs to dinner about 7 o'clock. When I returned an hour later I called a greeting to him. There was no answer.

"I went into his bedroom and he was not there. I went into the bathroom."

Once Headed Board of Trade.

Mr. Raymond was at one time president of the Chicago Board of Trade and for forty years was active in La Salle street. According to C. H. Lott, manager of the hotel, Mr. Raymond frequently spoke of dying, often coming home from a visit to the loop with a weird tale of how he "had almost been killed."

Four sons and two daughters survive the broker.

PROPELLER HITS AVIATOR AS HE CHANGES PLANES

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Five hundred feet in the air, in view of 80,000 visitors at the state fair this afternoon, "Tex" McLoughlin, airman, was injured when struck by the propeller of a higher airplane to which he had climbed while his plane was in mid-air.

McLoughlin clung to the rope ladder of the upper machine until it reached the ground. The machine circled in descending, partially out of control.

McLoughlin was conscious when rescued, though he had been dragged more than 100 feet on the ground before the machine was brought to a stop. He is in the Crouse-Irving hospital and will recover.

Flies Cleveland-Mineola in Three Hours 1 Minute

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Traveling at the rate of about 141 miles an hour, a mail bearing airplane broke all speed records today by making the trip from Cleveland to Mineola, L. I., in 3 hours and 1 minute. The scheduled time to traverse the 425 aerial miles between the two cities is four hours. The plane used today was a De Havilland 4, and the pilot was William C. Hopson.

Choked to Death in Flat; Rival Held

Israel Slavin, 32 years old, a traveling salesman, living at 4213 Sheridan road, was strangled to death in an apartment at 4121 Grand boulevard last night.

The apartment in which the Wabash avenue police found the dead man is leased to Mrs. Jeanne Lawrence, 30 years old, a widow.

Mrs. Lawrence and a man who gave his name as Max Cohen were in the apartment when the police arrived. Cohen gave himself up to the police without a struggle.

Apartment in Disorder.

The furniture in the apartment was in wild disorder. A table had been overturned. Several glasses had been broken on the floor. Three chairs were overturned. A bookcase window had been shattered. Every room presented a scene of disorder.

The police were called by neighbors who heard the struggle.

Woman Hysterical.

When they entered they found Slavin lying on the floor. Mrs. Lawrence was hysterical. Cohen was cringing in a chair.

The police removed Cohen to the Wabash avenue station, where he was taken into the lieutenant's private office and questioned for more than an hour.

Mrs. Lawrence secured a divorce from her husband a year ago.

Men Were Rivals.

Cohen said Slavin attempted to force his way into the apartment of Mrs. Lawrence, where he was making a call. The two men were rivals.

"Slavin rang the door bell," said Cohen, "and when Mrs. Lawrence opened the door he forced his way in.

"She asked me to put him out. We fought over most of the house."

"One Had to Die."

"Finally I got him down and choked him. It was either he or I who had to die."

Mrs. Lawrence verified Cohen's statement.

According to Lieut. Charles Byrnes and Detective Sergeant Sullivan, they were called to the apartment two weeks ago to arrest Slavin, on the complaint of Mrs. Lawrence.

The police said Cohen and Mrs. Lawrence notified Dr. John B. Matheson of 4710 Grand boulevard when Slavin appeared to be dead. The physician after examining the dead man notified the police.

It was an hour after the tragedy before the police arrived.

Yankee Coal in France Only Costs $32 Per Ton

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—The French government has limited the price of coal imported from America to $32 a ton, according to reports from Paris today at the department of commerce.

A decision of the ministry of public works, the report said, fixes the maximum price on coal from America delivered at French Atlantic ports at $30 a ton for immediate delivery, $28 a ton for delivery in three months, and $25 a ton for delivery in six months, while for coal received at Mediterranean ports these prices may be increased $2 a ton.

With American dollars at 15 francs 9 centimes each, Friday's rate in Paris, the maximum price for a ton of American coal is 482 francs 88 centimes. The pre-war rate was about 5 francs 8 centimes to the dollar.

Women for Referendum as to World Going Dry

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Sept. 18.—Resolutions urging that prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors be decided by referendum were adopted by the International Council of Women, in session here, today.

Another resolution adopted declared that illegitimate children should have the right to their father's name and should receive financial support from him.

American delegates to the meeting have started a movement against "exaggerated styles in dress and immodest dancing."

Two U. S. Navy Aviators Killed by Fall in South

C., Sept. 18.—[United Press.]—Two naval flyers were killed when a seaplane was overturned in a sudden storm off the Pensacola, Fla., naval station yesterday, the navy department was advised tonight. The men were Percy McDonald Fuller, Chief quartermaster, and Charles Bradford Arthur, chief machinist's mate.

LONG ARM OF U. S. PICKING UP BOMB SUSPECTS

Ex-Chicago Red Is Sought for Clews.

BY CHARLES A. SLOAN.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—With 100 secret service operatives searching every outward bound vessel from ports on the Atlantic coast for stowaway suspects, federal officials investigating the Wall street bomb outrage of Thursday today began the active work of locating the perpetrators.

Seizure of an Italian stowaway on the White Star liner Cretic, just before it sailed this afternoon for Naples, revealed that the secret service's activities were beginning to bear fruit. The Italian, who gave a satisfactody account of himself, was paroled upon his promise to report to the bureau of investigation if he is wanted.

Passengers on departing liners became aware of the unusual precautions, though not many of them knew that the agents were from the department of justice and were hopeful of catching the bombers.

Russian Writer Seized.

Acting on an anonymous letter, police today seized and questioned Alexander Brallovsky, a radical Russian. The Russian said he was a journalist, 36, of 1119 Boston road, the Bronx. He was seized at 64 East Seventh street, a small stationery store, in the rear of which is a printing shop where Russky Golos, described by the authorities as a radical Russian magazine, is published.

The writer of the anonymous letter said Brallovsky and three companions were at the corner of Pine and Nassau streets about twenty minutes after the explosion. The three men were laughing heartily, the writer said.

Brallovsky denied all knowledge of the outrage, but admitted he was in the Wall street district shortly after the explosion.

A Time Bomb, Flynn Says.

William J. Flynn, chief of the bureau of investigation, department of justice, today definitely announced that the explosion was caused by a time bomb, that the bomb emanated from anarchistic sources, and that he expected to have the plotters in custody soon.

His operatives are now proceeding on these theories, which are borne out by circumstantial evidence in the possession of the department, that the plot was conceived and consummated by the same group of Italian terrorists who planned and executed the June 2, 1919, outrages and to whom the department of justice officials have long ascribed the Chicago postoffice bombing of September, 1918, and the Gimbel bombs of May, 1919, or that it emanated from one of the other two Italian anarchistic organizations known to be active in the United States, or from some fanatic inflamed by their teachings.

Hunt Chicago Anarchist.

In pursuit of these theories the officials are now endeavoring to locate the whereabouts of:

Carlos Tresca, an anarchist, tried in Chicago during the war for conspiracy to defeat America's military policies.

Pietro Baldesserotto, anarchist, characterized some time ago by Attorney General Palmer as a "dangerous public enemy."

Serafino Grandi, anarchist, once convicted in Italy for revolutionary activities.

Rugro Bacini, anarchist, alleged participant in the bomb plots of June 2, 1919, following which he fled to Italy. He is believed to have returned.

Roberto Elia, anarchist, active in the bomb plot of June 2, 1919.

Galliani Gang Mentioned.

Various other members of the L'Era Nuova group, which formerly had headquarters at Paterson, N. J.; the Galliani group, whose homes were in Boston and Lynn, Mass., and the Groupa Pro Penza of Philadelphia, as well as certain followers of Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

It is to the Galliani group, with which the five named have long been identified, that department of justice officials are looking for a solution of this latest outrage.

These are followers of Luigi Galliani, himself a pupil of the notorious Malatesta of Italy. Galliani published the "Cronaca Soversiva" at Lynn, Mass. He was deported because of his inflammatory utterances. He was succeeded, according to Mr. Palmer, by Carlos Tresca, previously active in strike riots in many cities.

To Galliani was traced the bomb explosions of June 2, 1919, mainly through the efforts of the "red squad" of the New York department of justice, and Edward S. Brennan and August H. Loula of the Chicago department.

The June 2, 1919, explosions followed the unsuccessful May day, 1919, Gimbel bombs. Officials declare that the Galleani group were responsible for both—they failed the first time and succeeded the last.

In a mail box, a few hundred feet from the Wall street explosion, were found a number of circulars printed with a rubber stamp. They read:

"Rimember We will not tolerate any longer. Free the political prisoner or it will be sure death for all of you.—American Anarchist Fighters."

The same name signed to the pink circulars of the June 2, 1919, outrage, with the addition of the word "American." The misspelling in the Thursday message is identical with errors in the June, 1919, circulars.

Expert Calls Placards a Link.

This, in the opinion of Chief Flynn, establishes the connection between the two.

The Wall street explosion occurred on the third Thursday of September, 1920. The Chicago postoffice bombing occurred on the third Thursday of September two years before, in 1918.

According to Chief Flynn's theory, if there is a connection between the June, 1919, explosions and the Wall street outrage, the fact that this latest outbreak occurred on the exact anniversary of the Chicago bombing establishes the connection there, also.

In the arrest of Edwin Fischer in Hamilton, Ont., the police do not expect much result. Fischer, it has been decided, is hopelessly insane. He will arrive here tomorrow, it was said, following his deportation from Canada.

Bloody Finger Points West.

Centralia, Wash. Sept. 18.—That a band of radicals would invade Centralia about Oct. 15 to get "revenge for the raid on the I. W. W. hall" here armistice day, was the warning given in a circular received by a local newspaper.

The letter was signed "Revenge Committee," and was postmarked Milwaukee, Wis.

The communication asserted the committee had arms and ammunition hidden at Butte, Mont. It stated all Centralia residents who participated in the "raid" were marked for death.

Officials here do not take the letter seriously, it being similar to several communications which were received here during the last year.

U. S. Keeps Eye on Russia.

Washington, Sept. 18.—[United Press.]—Government officials today were seeking to learn whether there is a connection between the Wall street bomb outrage and the explosion yesterday at the stock exchange at Genoa, Italy.

Reports from American representatives in Italy were expected, giving details of the explosion. Justice department officials planned to forward these reports immediately to William J. Flynn, investigating the New York outrage.

The finding in the mail box near the New York explosion scene of circulars signed "The Anarchist Fighters of America" connects the present catastrophe with the attempted bombings of May, 1919, justice department officials pointed out.

Attorney General Palmer at that time connected the bomb outrages with the Russian bolshevists. He attempted to trace a direct connection with the radicals of Russia and their agents in the United States.

WHAT A RED THINKS ABOUT

Rush D. Simmons, chief Chicago postal inspector, holding time bomb like that which is blamed for Wall street blast.
(TRIBUNE Photo.)

A TIME bomb of the clock type, such as is blamed for the Wall street explosion, is shown in the hands of Rush D. Simmons, chief postoffice inspector of the Chicago district. In this infernal machine, which was seized in the mails here, a wire holds the clock in place. The alarm was to operate in the usual manner at a desired hour, but the hammer, instead of striking the bell, was designed to hit upon a thin vial of chemicals that would flame on contact with air. The flame would then ignite the paper, which in turn would set off the explosive. Other types of time bombs are operated by fuses, cut to lengths appropriate to given hours, and by acid eating through a substance.

18 REDS SEIZED AT GENOA; BOMB THE WORK OF EXPERT

GENOA, Sept. 18.—[United Press.]—Eighteen Reds, suspected in the planting of the bomb at the Genoa stock exchange yesterday, were arrested today.

The bomb explosion, while doing some material damage, resulted in no casualties.

The bomb exploded with a tremendous roar. From the fact that the bomb appeared to have been scientifically constructed the police suspected anarchists. The explosive was set off by a time fuse, the bomb being hidden in a little-used room.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Refuse to Oppose Dry Law

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—Veterans of foreign wars at the closing session of their annual encampment here today, voted down a resolution disapproving the adoption of the prohibition amendment to the constitution. There were few votes against the reflection.

BILL HAYWOOD HERE; SURPRISED AT HUNT FOR HIM

William D. (Big Bill) Haywood, I. W. W. leader, arrived in Chicago yesterday.

"I was surprised to learn from the newspapers that the secret service was searching for me in connection with the Wall street explosion," said Haywood. "If they did not know that I made a speech in Philadelphia on Wednesday night and left for Chicago the following day they certainly were remiss in their duty.

"Until advised through the newspapers I did not know about the frightful explosion in New York. It is beyond my comprehension how any one could associate me or the organization of which I am a member with the vicious outrage."

Neither the local federal officials nor the police obtained any evidence yesterday of any plot here to spread terrorism, or that any local Reds were connected with the Wall street bombing.

WOMAN VICTIM OF AUTO REFUSES TO LEAVE HOTEL

Although the police were summoned last night in an endeavor to remove Mrs. Mary Bainbridge from the Auditorium hotel to a hospital, she declined to give up her room. With her 5 year old son, Robert, she has occupied it for a week.

She was carried into the hotel by a policeman, who said she had suffered concussion of the brain in an automobile accident at Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard. She is said to be without funds. She will not leave the hotel until she recovers, she said.

Her son said she was the sister of O. E. Simmons, a wealthy broker of Los Angeles.

U. S. MAY RECALL NAVAL FORCES IN ADRIATIC SEA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—It was intimated at the state department today that the American forces in the Adriatic will soon be recalled. The battleship Olympia and some destroyers, acting as custodians of the Austro-Hungarian ships, have practically completed their mission, it was said.

The state department has not been advised officially of an agreement between Giolitti and Millerand, reported to relate to the Adriatic. So far as known, American Adriatic views have not changed.

It is pointed out, however, that President Wilson favored an independent state between Italy and Jugo-Slavia.

If confirmation is received of the reported agreement, it would cause no surprise here if President Wilson should address a new note to Italy and possibly to France, taking exception to a departure from the decisions made at Paris, and reached after full discussion of the Fiume question.

I TOLD YOU SO, IS PALMER'S PLEA FOR DRASTIC LAW

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Attorney General Palmer, it was declared at the department of justice today, would use the Wall street explosion outrage as a lever upon congress for legislation to strengthen the arm of the department for handling "red" agitators in the country who seek the overthrow of the government.

The attorney general sought such legislation at the last session but failed to get it. In his report to congress now in preparation the attorney general has embodied a new demand.

Mr. Palmer, now in New York, hopes for evidence to prove that the explosion was deliberately planned by persons deliberately banded together to bring about the overthrow of government, taking their orders from Russian bolsheviki.

SAYS CALIFORNIA ANTI-JAP PLAN IMPERILS WORLD

Nippon Press Sees U. S. as "Antagonist."

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, Sept. 18. — The Japanese press, which heretofore has maintained an attitude of composure and tact, boiled over today.

The Kokumin declared the attitude of California was now tingeing American policy in Asia and, thus, was making the anti-Japanese California question a national one, with all America Japan's antagonist, despite the existence of many elements of fairness among Americans.

"Because anti-Japanism has been taken up as a presidential campaign issue," the paper says, "the entire nation soon will be involved in the flame of anti-Japanism, with the possibility that the whole world will be embroiled.

Says Japan Must Act.

"Now the question assumes a new phase. It is not unreasonable for us to expect America to withdraw from Asia while America is driving the Japanese from the United States.

"Japan, while a small nation, cannot silently endure insult and contempt from a nation which has failed to sign the league of nations pact.

"Japan has the right to defend the freedom of Japanese in America and would exchange for this Japanese cooperation with Americans in Asia Otherwise we must force American withdrawal from the Orient in exchange for forced withdrawal of Japanese from America.

Two Courses, Yield or Repulse.

"Both the American Monroe doctrine and the Asiatic Monroe doctrine must be recognized."

Concluding, the Kokumin says:

"It is plain now that America disbelieves the Japanese declaration that it had no territorial ambitions and intends to cast its curse upon Japan even in the far east.

"Only two courses now are open to Japan. Yield to American selfishness or repulse it."

Brazil Opens Doors.

The Chugai Shogyo, the most responsible Tokio publication, declares that the foreign office and home office officials are planning to unite their official efforts in sending Japanese emigration to Brazil via the Panama canal in view of the barriers erected against the Japanese by Canada, the United States, and Australia.

The authorities have decided to enact emigration regulations affording conveniences and facilities for Brazil bound emigrants entailing an estimated annual cost of 750,000 yen. The present emigration from Japan to South America is between 3,000 and 4,000 a year, while Brazil would be able to absorb ten times that many at least, the paper says.

Government Optimistic.

Despite the attitude of the press over the California controversy the Japanese government takes an almost opposite view of the matter and places reliance upon Washington to iron out any roughness which develops between the two nations.

Foreign Minister Uchida, when interviewed today by a delegation representing the opposition, stated that the Japanese government was hopeful of a peaceable and honorable solution of the California question.

He declared both President Wilson and Secretary of State Colby were anxious to secure an amicable settlement as early as possible and were approaching the matter in a friendly way and that therefore the Japanese were sanguine that all pending matters would be cleared up.

Not Lightly Treated.

The best indication of this, he explained, consists in the fact that Washington was taking the matter up as seriously as Tokio and not merely as a local question.

In the event that the anti-Japanese bill is passed at Sacramento the Japanese foreign minister believes Washington will take "appropriate action to safeguard the acquired rights of Japanese in California."

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS G. SEESE.
(J. D. Toloff Photo.)

FATHER and mother didn't exactly object, but she was only 18, and they thought she should wait a little longer, and, well—

Miss Rosemary Parker, daughter of Dr. Harley Parker of 4731 Malden street, and Thomas G. Seese, son of John S. Seese of 4423 North Laporte avenue, eloped to Evanston late yesterday afternoon and were married by Justice John F. Boyer. Miss Bunny Parker, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and A. H. Creutz, 4441 North Laporte avenue, was best man, pilot, chauffeur, business manager, and all around "fixer" of the wedding ceremony. He was accompanied by Miss Mildren Jorgenson of 5062 Pensacola avenue.

Mr. Seese, who is 21, served a year and a half in the marine corps during the war.

"Guess we'll have to come out here next week," remarked Creutz to Miss Jorgenson. Justice Boyer refused to disclose her reply, but stated he fully expects them next Saturday.

GARRITY GRILLS POLICEMAN ON 'SHAKEDOWN' TIP

For three hours yesterday afternoon Detective Sergeant James ("Scarface") Mullen of West Chicago avenue station was grilled in Chief Garrity's office in connection with accusations that he had attempted to "shake down" Harry and Joe Pilger, saloonkeepers at Green and Monroe streets, for $1,000. He was released.

Chief Garrity refused to discuss the case. It became known, however, that the detective sergeant was taken into custody by the chief's men in the saloon after John Sparkel, a railroad man from Blue Island, had made complaint to Capt. Max Danner at the Desplaines street station. Sparkel said he came to Chicago Friday night with $125, met a woman, and had drinks with her in the Pilger saloon. He claims he was "doped" and robbed.

Harry Pilger was informed by Capt. Danner that he would have to close the place or face a robbery charge. Pilger agreed to close the saloon.

"Able" Pilger, a brother of the saloonkeeper, notified the state's attorney's office that "Mullen was in the saloon trying to shake his brother down".

Detectives found Mullen there. He claimed he had gone to the saloon on the trail of some stolen alcohol.

"I ain't sayin' nothin'," said Able, "but what that guy Mullen shook Harry down for was a-plenty. Somewhere 'round a 'tousand."

MAC SWINEY HAS SLEEPLESS NIGHT AND DAY OF PAIN

Barely Conscious, His Sister Announces.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Tonight's bulletin on the condition of Lord Mayor MacSwiney issued by the Irish Self-Determination league, announces that the prisoner "continues in a state of extreme exhaustion and is in great pain, which lasted throughout the day."

This, the bulletin adds, has caused great anxiety to his relatives. He is still conscious.

After leaving her brother at 9 o'clock tonight Miss MacSwiney declared he was "barely conscious and almost unable to speak."

May Keep Body in England.

CORK, Sept. 18.—Doubt whether in the event of Lord Mayor MacSwiney's death the British government would permit the body to be brought to Ireland for burial, was expressed by municipal officials here today. It was suggested that the lord mayor's funeral undoubtedly would be made the occasion of a great demonstration.

On this the thirty-ninth day of the hunger strike of the Cork prisoners all are alive. The home office physician, Dr. Pearson, said that all might conceivably remain alive a week or more.

Answers U. S. Criticism.

Replying to American reports that MacSwiney was not allowed privileges to which he is entitled, the home office says:

"There is no foundation for the statement in American papers relative to the treatment accorded to the lord mayor of Cork. He has from the first been allowed the privileges granted to political prisoners and has never been required to wear prison clothing. He remains in bed in a large room in the hospital and enjoys the best medical attention, is nursed by two trained women nurses, one of whom is constantly with him day and night, and everything possible has been done for his comfort. Excellent food, suitable to his enfeebled condition is kept constantly by his bedside."

HAD SLEEPLESS NIGHT

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The bulletin regarding Terence MacSwiney, the lord mayor of Cork, who is undergoing a hunger strike in prison here, this morning said he had a bad night, had not slept and was in a state of physical collapse, but still conscious.

His sister Mary says he is looking worse than she ever has seen him.

I am informed that MacSwiney is now being massaged with oils and alcohol, providing a certain amount of both nourishment and stimulation. The doctors still are not anticipating immediate danger of death, but are unwilling to predict the length of his life in view of the lack of experience with similar cases.

MacSwiney's heart, which is said to be usually the chief danger in such cases, is reported remarkably good.

Evidence of Stupor.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—[By the United Press.]—Relatives visiting MacSwiney today said he had difficulty keeping his eyes open while they talked to him. It was plain that only by great effort did he retain an appearance of wakefulness and interest in what they told him.

Protests Arming Civilians.

BELFAST, Sept. 18.—Bishop Fallon of London, Ont., who is visiting Belfast and the surrounding district, has sent a message to Premier Lloyd George on the situation in Ulster, in which he says:

"The proposed arming of civilians is an invitation to incitement to civil war here in Ulster. Such action makes hopeless the efforts of moderate men throughout the empire. The hidden power that is dictating the present Irish policy is digging the grave of the British commonwealth."

30,000 ITALIAN WORKERS SEIZE CITY'S PLANTS

All Factories Except One Occupied at Terni.

ROME, Sept. 18.—Thirty thousand workmen have occupied the factories at Terni, in southern Italy, one of the most important industrial cities of the country. The only exception to the factories taken over is the Idros plant, where synthetic ammonia is manufactured. It is controlled by American interests.

FIGHT EXPROPRIATION

BY GEORGE SELDES.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MILAN, Sept. 18.—Gino Olivety, Italian deputy from Turin and owner of the Fiant plant, today called the workers' "fourteen points" the first definite, comprehensive plan so far offered for solution of the unrest, but termed the demands ridiculous inasmuch as they meant eventual expropriation of the plants.

"We will never accept any such domination," he said. "We have worked fifty years building up this industry and then workers demand to become members of the family overnight, to control the offices, set the prices, learn our trade secrets and also the confidential affairs of the owners.

"Premier Giolitti told us we must give in in order to save the country, because he feared other industries would be seized, resulting in national chaos. We agreed to the workers' control, but will fight against expropriation. Unfortunately for the government, hostile workers hold the factories.

Loss Already $75,000,000.

"I hope Premier Giolitti's special commission will act sanely. However, we will fight for our rights in parliament. Italy is losing the wages of 500,000 men, 10,000,000 lire, and the producers 50,000,000 lire daily. In American coin, a loss of $75,00,000 has been incurred already."

Negotiations between workers and employers were said to be proceeding satisfactorily today, and the principal topic was the workers' new salary demands. This will be decided by the employers tomorrow.

Rome dock workers are reported to be planning the seizure of the whole industry of Palermo.

Two bombs were thrown at a Palermo shipyard today. No one was injured, according to a report from the workers' council there.

Force Army Officers to Work.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TURIN, Sept. 18.—Three Italian army officers and seven privates were seized early this morning by the communist guards at the Fiat plant here and forced to work all day without pay at the smelting furnaces.

"We gave them a taste of our kind of work," the workers said. When they were released the soldiers were forced to sign a statement saying 15 to 20 lire daily was not sufficient pay for men doing such work.

Last night the Red guards threw a bomb at a camion loaded with police which stopped nearby. The bomb did not explode.

WORKERS RUN CAR LINES

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 18.—According to a report to the French foreign office, the street car lines of Rome and Tivoli have been seized by the employés. The directors and superintendents were ousted and replaced by workmen.

Red flags were said to be flying from the trolleys, but the lines were reported to be functioning regularly.

The companies' threat to cut off power is protested against by the people who insist that the government deliver the car lines coal to enable their operation.

Employés also have seized the street car lines at Milan and Bologne, owned by a Belgian syndicate, and announced their intention to operate them.

It is intimated that seizure of traction lines will extend throughout Italy, with the steam railroads the next industry to be communized.

Storm Greets Giolitti's Plan.

ROME, Sept. 18.—[By United Press.] Premier Giolitti, on resuming his duties today, faced a storm growing out of his decision to appoint a commission to devise a new industrial system which would give labor a voice in management of industry.

The premier's decision met with outspoken disapproval from employers, but there was a general disposition to accept the scheme rather than disrupt business by permitting striking workers to go on holding and operating plants. While the confederation of labor enthusiastically supported the premier's plan, Socialists were dissatisfied. They feared a heading off of a socialistic scheme of government.

U. S. DRY WHEN GUARDS LINE CANADA BORDER

Montreal, Que., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The death of F. Maroney, a senior in Dartmouth college, a few months ago, and the sentencing this week of Robert T. Meads, a junior from Chicago, to fifteen years in jail for having shot Maroney following a drunken bout in Meads' room, is a concrete example of the fact that so long as Canada remains "wet" so long will liquor be taken across the border.

This is the opinion expressed today by an official who has had a great deal to do with seeing that the law is being carried out on the Canadian side of the border.

He admitted candidly that it is being violated hundreds of times daily all along the border from Seattle to Maine, and he had grave doubts if it could ever be enforced so long as the transportation of liquor from one part of Canada to another remains as at present, unless the United States puts an armed guard every hundred yards on the line from Vancouver to Winnipeg and every fifty feet or so the rest of the way across the continent.

FIRING OF POLICE CHIEF IN CICERO STIRS CITIZENS

Plan Protest Meeting for Tomorrow.

The halls and corridors of the town hall in Cicero will on tomorrow night once more ring with the shouts and protests that go with an indignation meeting. The Cicero town hall, long noted for its uproarious public meetings, will quiver on its firm foundations if several hundred citizens of the western community fulfill their promises.

The trouble is this:

Last Monday Joseph Klenha, village president, rose in wrath and ordered the immediate suspension of Edward Hall, who for the last year and a half has been chief of police. With the president's order went a notation that L. Valecka act as chief.

Presdient Makes Charges.

With his announcement the president made charges. He accused Mr. Hall of being continually intoxicated, of gross neglect in that he allowed various gambling games and houses of ill repute to run wide open within the village limits. It was also intimated that the police chief had accepted graft.

The word went about and friends of Mr. Hall became aroused. Said Mr. Hall:

"It's a lie. I have never accepted a penny of graft. I do not drink. I haven't ever been intoxicated since I became chief of police. I have tried to enforce the laws, but every time I started out on a raid the president ordered me to forget it."

Mr. Hall's daughter, Miss Jesse Adelaide Hall, a young business woman, also expressed her views.

"Why, the idea is absurd," she said. "I know my father well. I know everything he does. His only trouble is his honesty. He has refused to accept graft from the village officials and the saloonkeepers. If he had taken it everything would have been happy. There would have been no trouble."

Special Meeting Called.

Last night a special meeting was called in Shaltis hall, 4837 West Fourteenth street, by friends of Mr. Hall. Several speakers put the matter before the assembly, and there was much applause.

A collection has been taken up. A "red fire" parade will form tomorrow night and 3,000 friends of the deposed chief will march to the town hall. A meeting of the village board is scheduled.

They intend to present a petition signed by at least 60 per cent of the citizens of Cicero asking that Hall be reinstated.

JAPAN PROMISES LOAN TO REVIVE SILK INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 18.—The cabinet this morning formally agreed to assist the silk industry by loaning it 25,000,000 yen at 2 per cent interest for valorization operations by a syndicate to maintain the export price of raw silk. The details of the plan will be announced in a few days by the department of commerce. The syndicate now organizing, includes the leading silk exporters and thread manufacturers. The chief Yokohama customs warehouses are jammed with imports which the consignees are not accepting. There are now 300,000 tons of goods valued at $50,000,000 stored, with 60,000 tons arriving daily with no available warehouse room.

Many American exporters are taking steps preparatory to reshipping goods to American and other points.

French Slay 200 Arabs in Fight Near Damascus

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Arab forces have been defeated near Damascus by a French column under the command of Col. Follet, according to a dispatch from Beirut. The Arabs lost 200 killed, and the French captured a number of cannon and machine guns. Since the fight Gen. Gouraud, French high commissioner in Syria, has received a number of requests for an armistice from Arab leaders.

SEE MILLERAND AS SUCCESSOR TO DESCHANEL

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 18.—That the chamber and senate on Tuesday will reveal such an overwhelming demand for Premier Millerand for president that he will be forced by public opinion to accept the namination is the belief expressed at Qual d'Orsay by an official intimately in touch with the situation.

Premier Millerand is holding off acceptance of the candidacy, fearing another Clemenceau coup, which, however is considered unlikely.

It is believed certain, however, before Premier Millerand will agree to run he will insist upon recognition of the right of the French president to be more than a figurehead and to help direct and execute the policies of the French government.

Wider latitude in selecting premiers, closer contact of the president with state questions and the opportunity to express his opinion on all national issues are three other points the party leaders will be asked to agree upon by M. Millerand before he will allow his name to be put into nomination, it is said.

Meet to Elect Thursday.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The national assembly which will elect a successor to President Deschanel, whose resignation now is in the hands of Premier Millerand, will meet at 2 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 23, it was announced today.

SCOTT DURAND CHAUFFEUR AND CLOTHING NABBED

Robert Walton, 25 years old, who for six weeks has been employed as a chauffeur for Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff, was arrested last night by Detective Sergeants Patrick Carmody and Martin Starkey of the Desplaines street police station. The man was found driving a Durand motor car on Halsted street near Congress. In the tonneau of the car were several suits of clothing.

Mrs. Durand was at a north shore golf club last night when she heard of the arrest.

"Robert came to me about six weeks ago," she said. "He said he had served seventeen months in the A. E. F. He seemed very reliable."

Mrs. Durand then hurried to her automobile and started for home. She intimated to the police that she wanted to talk to a maid in her service.

WELL FED CITY "UNREAL TO HER" AFTER ARMENIA

Three meals each day, association with contented, well fed, prosperous friends, and the sights and activities of Chicago seem unreal to Mrs. Pearl Larsen of 1904 North Clark street after eighteen months in Harpoot and other Armenian towns.

MRS. PEARL LARSEN.

"I can hardly realize I'm in the same world as that in which the Turks are killing, enslaving, and starving Christian women and children and an entire nation is facing annihilation if relief is not extended from the outside," she said yesterday.

She asserts the only hope of life for a majority of the Armenian Christians is in the generosity of Americans. Clothing and food are being distributed by 538 Near East relief workers in Mesopotamia and Armenia, but the supply is not nearly sufficient.

ROB 25 HOMES IN NORWOOD PARK; LEAVE THE COPS

Even Spare Capt. Mullin Knowledge of Raid.

A pleasant time was had by all the burglars who journeyed to Norwood Park Friday night and leisurely jimmied their way into twenty-five houses. Nobody disturbed them and they carted away all they could comfortably carry in commodious vans, trucks, and automobiles.

They did not steal the police station, as eye-witnesses yesterday reported it still was standing at 3972 Milwaukee avenue. Their report was confirmed by telephone inquiry, Kildare 8900, which is the Twenty-sixth precinct number, volunteering the supplemental information that all the patrolmen were intact.

The Captain Is Spared.

The tactful consideration of the burglars beggars description. They spared Capt. Joseph C. Mullin, in command of the Twenty-sixth precinct, from all knowledge of the affair, despite the fact that it was the sole topic of conversation last night among the 1,200 villagers who attended the lawn social of the First Presbyterian church.

"We understand there were some robberies Friday night at Norwood Park?" asked the reporter. The captain was reached by telephone at his home.

"No. Hadn't heard of any."

"Why, we heard twenty-five houses were robbed."

"Where did you say?"

"In Norwood Park."

"Must be mistaken. Hadn't heard a word about it."

Even Constable Robbed.

But Capt. Mullin has doubtless communicated with Bob Trieger by now and is in possession of the facts. Bob is the night policeman of Norwood Park. Before it became a component part of the municipality of Chicago, Bob was constable. He was annexed along with the village.

It was Bob's night off. He was slumbering on his screened porch. The burglars gained entrance by smashing a window. They then moved out several articles of interior furnishings, but left Bob his Big Ben alarm clock. It woke him up bright and early Saturday morning.

Other Norwood Parkers whose homes were robbed were Attorney Frank P. Miese, Claude June, S. H. Watts, Adrien Hammersmith, Joseph Hartford, Charles Itschner, Miss Mamie Richie, Henry Peterson, Kimball E. Valentine, Harry Debelde, Thomas B. Lawrence, William R. Cheson, Edgar A. Millarde, and Dr. Charles W. Gimbele.

The Lamplighter's Clew.

George Rodiger, the lamplighter, thinks he saw four members of the burglar band. They were touring about in a limousine as he left his home to extinguish the street lamps at sunrise yesterday, he said.

Most of the townfolk at the lawn social last night told of ladders, ropes, and lumber hooks which they had found in their yards or against their windows upon arising.

It developed that the considerate burglars, not wishing to disturb the slumbers of the householders, had borrowed their climbing gear without asking permission. They would use it as needed for second story windows or front or rear porches.

Mr. Miese found a strange ladder leaning against his bed chamber, while his ladder was in the yard of a citizen a block away.

Schoolhouse Homes

Fred W. Nichols, superintendent of the board of education in school district No. 76, Evanston, has found a home for the teachers. Rather, he has found two of them.

The board has purchased two big homes north of the Lincoln school. The first floor of each is now devoted to classrooms. The second and third floors are occupied by the teachers.

There was a celebration in one house yesterday after the students had gone. Mrs. Isabelle Clark, who "fixed the place up" for the students, poured tea for Miss Nancy Turnbull, Miss Emilene Goodrow, Miss Ruth Longman, Miss Erma Arnold, Miss Cecelia Hamel, and Mrs. Marie Champion.

The teachers have a system of apportioning the work, electing some one to do the cooking, some one to sweep and dust and put things to rights, some one to do this, some one to do that. Elections are held every month, and this month Miss Turnbull is the chef.

U. S. MAY BUY UP $200,000,000 IN LIBERTY BONDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—Secretary Houston of the treasury department hopes to see the government buy in upwards of $200,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds during the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30, it was learned today.

The treasury is able to buy bonds because of a sinking fund provision which was part of the Victory loan bill.

Under this bill a fixed amount of approximately $250,000,000 a year is appropriated for buying bonds, but the amount appropriated to pay interest on bonds also is fixed, and it does not decrease as bonds are retired even though less and less interest is actually paid as bonds are bought in.

This part of the interest fund not actually paid out as interest is used to buy more bonds.

POLAND FRAMES NEW TERMS FOR RUSSIAN PEACE

Demands Recognition of Ukraipia by Reds.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A wireless dispatch from M. Tchitcherin, the bolshevik foreign minister, declares that, having broken off political negotiations with Russia, Premier Lloyd George must not complain if a great movement against Britain occurs in Asia. At the eastern congress at Baku "a holy war" was declared against imperialism.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The Polish mission announced today that the Polish delegation at Riga wil present the following terms to the soviet Russian delegates:

1. Poland proposes that her eastern boundary shall correspond with the line of the former Austro-German trenches (the 1790 frontier).
2. Poland declines to permit the Ukrainians to participate in the negotiations insisting upon recognition of the independence of Ukrainia.
3. Poland demands the evacuation by soviet Russians of Ukraine territory.

CHANGED BRITISH VIEW

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—According to a leading article which will appear in the London Times tomorrow there are indications which point to a change in British policy toward Russia and a probable swerving from Poland to Ukrainia as the eventual savior of Russia. The Times continues:

"It is believed that the time is approaching when soviet Russia either will be overthrown from within or by the anti-bolshevik forces now being organized in Poland for coöperation with Gen. Baron Wrangel.

Places Hopes in Ukrainia.

"In such an event it is most likely that anarcy will supervene for some time in Russia and Great Britain believes that Ukrainia is the one part of Russia which can most readily be made safe for order and democracy and from which much work could be done for the general good of Russia.

"According to M. Savinkoff, who is at present in Warsaw, Gen. Wrangel has declared his willingness to recognize the independence of Ukrainia and to coöperate with that nation against soviet Russia.

"It is because of the British control of the Black sea and the prestige of Great Britain at Kieff that the government believes Ukrainia easily could be restored to order."

POLISH ARMIES GAIN

WARSAW, Sept. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Lutsk, an important fortified city forty miles east of Vladimir-Volynski, has been captured by the Poles, who have won successes along a front of approximately 240 miles, says an official statement issued here.

The capture of Lutsk gives the Poles control of more than half of the fortified triangle southeast of Kovel, captured several days ago, the points on which are Lutsk, Dubno and Rovno, these last two fortresses being now within gunshot of the Polish front lines.

Polish forces continue to advance east of Vladimir-Volynski, southeast of Brest-Litovsk, and have occupied the towns of Poreskov and Chorostov.

The towns of Kamien and Kaspirski, north of Kovel, have been taken, the Russian soviet armies losing 1,000 prisoners.

The Poles, in their strides from the Pripet region south to the Dniester, are reaching eastward. They have pushed the soviet forces back at various points and gathered in great quantities of war materials and hundreds of prisoners.

Win Huge Forest Land.

Northeast of Brest-Litovsk the Poles have brought within their lines a part of Europe's greatest forest, and to the east of Kobryn have gained control of the Gorodetski canal, which connects the Bug, the Pripet and the Dnieper.

The Polish troops, as a part of the maneuver which resulted in the capture of Lutsk, crossed the Stochod, advanced along the railroad in the direction of Rosyszcze, and captured Turyisk, with four locomotives, 180 cars, an armored train named "Red Cavalleral," and eight guns.

The Polish cavalry occupied Cholojew and Radziechow, in the region of the Gnila Lipa and the Upper Bug.

The Ukrainians and Poles operating together north of the Dniester have defeated the Russians, and the pursuit has reached the line of Zyraks, Uhrynkowce, Potok-Zloty, Korosciatyn, and Monasterzyska.

Many prisoners have been taken.

LEAGUE GIVEN ALAND ISLANDS CASE TO DECIDE

PARIS, Sept. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Finland and Sweden have agreed to accept the intervention of the league of nations for the settlement of the dispute between them as to the possession of the Aland islands, lying at the mouth of the gulf of Bothnia between the two countries.

A commission will be appointed by the executive council of the league to investigate the question and reach an early decision.

The acceptance of the council as arbitrator is regarded by the members of the council as a long step toward the recognition of the league by the nations of the world as a medium for the prevention of future wars.

Jack Johnson's Two-Bit Smile

Former world's champion heavyweight pugilist snapped as he left in custody of Deputy United States Marshal Thomas Hennebry to serve a year in Leavenworth as Mann act violator. He smiled and posed before the camera for a quarter "to buy po'k chops."

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

TEN years ago last spring a mighty black man started from the corner of Thirty-fifth and State to a loop railroad station. A crowd followed him. Several women were among the friends who wished him farewell and good luck. Money jingled in his pockets. He was on his way to make more. It was a happy farewell. A golden smile spread over the man's face.

Yesterday the same man went to the same railroad station and took the same train. He was as big and black as ever, but his clothes were somewhat seedy, no jingle of friendly coins was heard issuing from his pockets, and no crowd accompanied him to the station. But the smile was wrinkling the man's face. It wasn't quite as spontaneous as it once was. But it was a smile, nevertheless.

"Nope," answered Jack Johnson.

"Give you a quarter," volunteered the photog.

"Put it there!" answered the former world's pugilistic champion, extending his hand. "Where I'm goin' that might just buy me a nice po'k chop."

He pocketed the quarter and posed.

The last time Johnson left the station he went to Reno to fight Jim Jeffries, who then held the heavyweight title. He is now en route to Leavenworth, Kas., to serve a sentence of a year and a day for violation of the Mann act.

TURKISH CROWN PRINCE CAPTIVE; HAD WANDERLUST

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 18.—Mejdid Effendi, heir apparent to the Turkish throne, is a prisoner in the palace adjoining the sultan's at Dolmabagtche.

All pretense that he is enjoying liberty has been discarded, and it is officially admitted that the prince is a captive because he attempted to flee to Angora to accept an invitation received from Mustapha Kemel.

This afternoon I visited the palace and my interpreter conversed with the chief eunuch, master of ceremonies, who said:

"The prince is permitted to leave his apartments to take short walks in the garden beside his guard. There are ten officers and a detachment of troops stationed outside the palace as protection against any attempts to rescue the prince."

EBB AND FLOW OF LIVING COST TOLD BY U. S. FIGURES

Idleness and Decrease in Expenses Are Paired.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—A reduction in the cost of living and a decrease in the volume of employment went hand in hand in August, according to the bureau of labor statistics.

The decrease in the level of wholesale prices in August from July amounted to more than 4½ per cent, the decrease for food being 12 per cent. Meanwhile, in fourteen representative industries only four showed an increase in the number of persons on the pay roll, and ten a decrease. The amount of the pay rolls increased in five, but decreased in nine.

Wholesale prices of farm products, containing many basic food materials declined nearly 6 per cent from July to August. Cloths and clothing followed closely, with a decrease of approximately 5¾ per cent from the July level.

Five Show Increase.

Smaller decreases were recorded for the groups of building materials, chemicals, drugs, and miscellaneous commodities. Fuel and lighting materials, on the other hand, continued upward with an increase of over 6¼ per cent. Metals and house furnishing goods also showed a net advance.

As compared with August, 1919, wholesale prices averaged 10½ per cent greater.

The industry which showed the greatest increase in activity in August, as compared with July, was car building and repairing, where the number on the pay roll increased 3.5 per cent, while the amount increased 21.3 per cent.

The most pronounced slump was in the automobile industry, where the number on the pay roll decreased 10.8 per cent, while the amount of the pay roll decreased 5.8 per cent.

Hosiery Drops Off.

In the woolen industry the number of employés and the amount of the pay roll decreased 5.9 per cent. There was a 5 per cent decrease in hosiery and underwear, and a decrease of about the same amount in the leather industry. In men's clothing factories the number of employés decreased 4.7 per cent, while the amount of the pay roll fell off 7.5 per cent.

As compared with the August, 1919, figures six industries showed increases in the number of employés and eight decreases. The amount of the pay roll increased in ten industries and decreased in four.

U. S. AGENTS TRAP 40 SCALPERS IN SOX PARK RAID

Snare Profiteers at Babe Ruth Game.

Internal revenue agents under Chief Field Deputy Thomas O'Brien disguised themselves as baseball fans yesterday and seized forty ticket scalpers in a raid on the White Sox baseball park. Only three men were arrested. The others were ordered to appear at the federal building tomorrow and explain why they have failed to pay the government war tax on amusements.

There was little excitement and only a small portion of the great "Babe Ruth" crowd realized the federal agents were present. One man refused to answer questions and showed resistance. He was arrested. He gave his name as Maurice O'Leary, 744 South State street.

Scalp Big Harvest.

Scalpers reaped a big harvest from the overflow crowd, making profits ranging from 200 to 300 per cent greater than the box office prices. Tickets were in demand and every scalper was surrounded by eager fans.

The government agents had no authority to stop the profiteering on the tickets, it was explained. They were merely after the men who had failed to pay the war tax on admissions or to mark the tickets properly. A tax of 50 per cent of the amount added by the scalper to the box office price is required by the regulations.

Warned that the law was being flagrantly violated, Collector Harry W. Wagner had ordered the raid before he left for Washington last week. Twenty agents were in the raiding party.

Girl Deputies Help Raid.

They spread out as soon as they reached the park and even the two girls recently appointed as field deputies worked alone.

In most cases the agents waited until they saw a sale made. In others they purchased tickets, paying the high prices.

As soon as they had obtained the pasteboards, they examined them closely to determine whether the law concerning the marking of tickets with the broker's name and the sale price had been complied with. If this had been done, nothing was said. As soon as a man was caught evading the law, he was questioned and ordered to appear at the federal building Monday.

J. Brown, 4816 Gladys avenue, refused to give his name. He was immediately arrested and taken before Commissioner Mason.

Chief Makes First Arrest.

Chief Deputy O'Brien led the raid and made the first arrest. He was offered a ticket shortly after he arrived at the park.

"How much?" he asked.

"Four dollars."

O'Brien ordered the man to report at the federal building. He also ordered him to stop sales, but three minutes later met the same man. This time $11 was asked for three $1 tickets. The nearest policeman was ordered to arrest him and take him to the federal building. He gave his name as Fred Baute, 4846 Gladys avenue.

Warrants for the arrest of all scalpers who fail to report tomorrow will be asked, Mr. O'Brien said.

BRITISH SEIZE SAMOAN LANDS; EXILE OWNERS

64 Children and Mothers Put on Transport.

nery, which preserved the luscious Samoan pineapple for export and a meat cannery which consumed large quantities of cattle which had been introduced in large numbers.

The most important factor in the development of the western Samoa was the Deutsche Handel and Pflanzung-Gesellschaft of Hamburg, which in a comparatively short time had in cultivation 7,000 acres of the best lands and an extensive trading business at Apia and throughout the entire group of islands. Expert agriculturists and scientists were brought from Germany to increase production.

Then came the great war.

Taken by Britain.

On Aug. 14, 1914, New Zealand sent 1,400 men under Col. Robert Logan, A. D. C., in two transports escorted by the New Zealand and Australian squadrons of the British navy and a French warship. This drew up outside of Apia (there is no harbor) on Aug. 29 and sent ashore landing parties who raised the Union Jack without opposition on Aug. 30.

Col. Logan proved to be violent, unintelligent and undiplomatic in his control of the situation. He refused to quarantine ships from Auckland in 1918 and 1919 during the influenza epidemic in New Zealand. As a result an influenza epidemic swept the western Samoas, taking the lives of approximately 12,000 natives out of a population of 35,000. A court martial sent up from New Zealand found Col. Logan guilty of criminal negligence, but he was allowed to resign his commission and to return home, where he was a sheep raiser.

New Governor Named.

Col. Logan was succeeded by Col. Robert Ward Tate, a New Zealand barrister, who despite his good intentions was weak. His eighteen months of administration was lacking in constructive achievement.

Later the government of western Samoa was turned over to civil administration with Col. Tate at its head. The German roads and many of their public improvements had been permitted to fall into ruin, although the taxes on the residents, many of whom are Americans, Englishmen and Scots, have been made more oppressive year by year. The magnificent plantations of the "D. H. P. G." are practically worthless today owing to the incompetent direction of those managing their liquidation. The pineapple canning industry is gone, together with the bridges and the cattle herds.

The business men are suffering. Among these is H. J. Moors, an American who has lived in Apia since 1874. He has a big general store and twenty-seven other trading stations on Upolo and Savaii. He exports copra and cocoa by the shipload to San Francisco.

Signing of Treaty.

Meanwhile at Versailles, France, William Ferguson Massey, prime minister of New Zealand, signed the treaty of peace with Germany on June 28, 1919. There is no specific provision in this treaty for the deportation of the German residents from western Samoa.

However, on May 8, 1920, Gov. Tate by order of the New Zealand government, issued a proclamation decreeing that about the middle of June all German subjects residing in the islands some of the persons affected by this would be deported to Europe.

order had lived in Samoa for fifty years, and some of them were more than 70 years old. Many of them had been born in Samoa of German parents, never had been in Germany and had no kin nor interests there. It was not charged that they had committed any hostile acts against the New Zealand or any other government. They had paid their taxes in common with all other residents.

Terms of Order.

Under the terms of the deportation order each adult male German was permitted to take with him aboard the transport a reasonable supply of wearing apparel for himself and his family in case he was married. If he had a credit balance at the bank, he was permitted to take $500 in money, but the rest was left behind. If he had no balance he was given about $95.

The properties of each of the Germans was appraised, and he was given an order on the German government for the amount of the appraisement. The Ebert government does not have to pay these; there is no provision in the treaty or supreme council enactment for it. But the orders are based on the theory that they will be honored by the Berlin government and deducted from the cash indemnity to be paid Great Britain by Germany.

As the time for the deportation drew near the victims were mustered on the beach under guards, and scenes which aroused sympathy and the indignation even of British residents were enacted.

Tears of Farewell.

The women, old men, and children wept with their many white friends, who had gathered to bid them good-by while the lamentations of the natives added tragic color to the scene.

The conduct of the customs officials and the New Zealand constabulary is criticised by eyewitnesses. Personal trinkets, such as watch charms, brooches, and earrings, were taken away from the women at the last moment and there was a search of the women and girls by the police and customs men. The German men protested against this action without avail. Some of the women were Englishwomen who had married Germans.

Herded in Lighters.

The unhappy exiles then were placed on open lighters preparatory to being taken out beyond the reef and loaded aboard ship. In these open lighters they were forced to remain for three hours in the full glare of the tropic sun. Some of the women had nursing babies. A hotel keeper, observing their plight, sent down a supply of iced lemonade, the only thing that saved them from thirst. Finally at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the exiles were loaded on the Main and it put to sea.

CONFIRMED BY EX-CONSUL

Mason Mitchell, former United States consul at Apia, who passed through Chicago on the way to his new post at Queenstown, verified in an interview the startling details of the deportation of the Germans at Samoa.

"I witnessed the affair," he said. "I saw the German Samoans taken aboard the steamer which I, myself, had previously refused coaling privileges because it had three cases of influenza aboard. However, I have heard that the diseases did not spread among the deported ones and that the health of those aboard the ship was good as they passed through the Panama canal en route to Rotterdam.

"Many of those deported I know personally. They were for the most part industrious, hard working, business men, with families. They left Germany many years ago.

Accords with Paris Treaty.

"Gov. Tate issued the deportation order. He said it was in accord with the provisions of the Paris treaty. All of the property of the deported Germans was confiscated by the New Zealand authorities. The real estate was paid for in drafts drawn on the German government and the personal property in drafts drawn on the British government.

"The deportation order stated that all Germans who lived on the island were included, except those who had married Samoan or half-caste women. The majority of those sent back to Germany were owners of property on the island, were established in business, and desired to live in Samoa and not on the continent of Europe."

The consul pointed out that United States trade with Samoa is now facing absolute ruin. He blamed a recent ruling of the New Zealand authorities setting the tariff on British imports 7½ per cent lower than those on imports from other nations for the trade situation.

"American merchants have protested against the unfairness of the new tariff regulations," he said, "and I believe that they must soon be altered. There is no doubt that if they continue unchanged that American trade with Samoa will speedily become a negligible quantity."

The mandate given New Zealand over western Samoa will continue in effect for three years, Mr. Mitchell explained.

Germany Short 2 Million Tons of Breadstuffs

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—Two million tons of breadstuffs must be imported by Germany, chiefly from America, as the 1920 crop will be considerably short of the country's requirement, says an announcement by the president of the imperial grain department. He points that the prospect so far as cereal stocks is concerned is gloomy. The rye crop has been a disappointment and this year's harvest of breadstuffs is calculated to yield only 7,000,000 tons, while land devoted to breadstuff production has diminished more than 7 per cent.

EXILES SICK ON THEIR WAY FROM HOME TO 'HOME'

Transport Main a Ship of Sadness and Death.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—The British transport Main, formerly a German liner, has arrived in Rotterdam and has discharged there, en route for Germany, 126 men 72 women, and 94 children, Germans or Austrians by birth or ancestry. They were deported by the British from Samoa.

None of these exiles had been interned by the British during the war and they had cherished the hope that they might remain on the South Sea island where, for the most part, they had devoted their life works. They were exiled under a special order for deportation under the "repatriation" article (No. 122) of the Versailles treaty.

A German official met the ship at Rotterdam and stated that conditions were much better than when the Main last completed a trip there in February. This time only two of the deportees were sick in bed.

"Last time, however, the official said, the trip was "murderous." Aboard were 400 Tommies, occupying the best accommodations, and 1,800 Germans, who had been interned in the hottest camps in India and Siam and were jammed together, and left almost without food.

Journey of Death.

Influenza ravaged the ship on this first trip and 700 Germans were landed at Port Said—famous for its cold nights—with no warm covers and poor accommodations. Some died.

Those continuing arrived at Rotterdam afflicted with fever, tuberculosis, and starvation. Many have been unable to work since. They were transported to Germany during the coldest months of the year.

Of the deported Germans from Samoa were many wealthy plantation owners who were ordered to leave upon less than a week's notice to prepare for the departure of themselves and their families. Some had lived in Samoa for thirty years or more.

Nurse Tells Her Story.

Auguste Domscheid, a white haired Red Cross nurse, who arrived on the Main on its previous trip, said of her experience:

"It was the worst experience I ever had. Many Germans died on board or had their lives ruined. Many English inhabitants stated that the treatment of the deportees was unfair. Numbers of them were fever stricken and we nursed them when the vessel reached the South American coast. Most all had chills and bad colds and all were thoroughly miserable."

The Germans who reached Rotterdam on the last trip of the Main had with them only small handbags or bundles, the rest of their possessions having been held by the British authorities under a proclamation which mentioned the words "retention and liquidation," but made no use of the word confiscated.

German Troops Forced to Salute French Flag

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—A company of German reichswehr saluted the flag over the French consulate in Breslau yesterday in apology for the recent attack on that building. Martial law was in effect throughout the day as a precaution against anti-French demonstrations.

Olive Thomas' Body to Arrive on Mauretania

CHERBOURG, Sept. 18.—The body of Olive Thomas, motion picture actress, who died in Paris recently from mercurial poisoning, is being transported to the United States on the steamer Mauretania.

ITALY PROTESTS AGAINST CZECH 'ENCROACHMENT'

ROME, Sept. 18.—[United Press.]—Italy has protested sharply against Jugo-Slavian encroachment on the 1913 boundaries of Albania, it was reported here today.

The move was based on a report that Serbian troops had occupied a large section of Northern and Eastern Albania, advancing over territory not belonging to Serbia.

The Belgrade government was said to have informed Italy that a new boundary line was designated by Gen. Franchet d'Esprey, commanding the French army in the orient. The Italian claim was that D'Esprey's modification was for the emergency only.

Great Britain and France were reported to approve the Italian claim.

SONS OF THIRTY NATIONS CHEER HARDING'S TALK

For G. O. P. Because It Is for America.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Marion, O., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Fifteen hundred sons of Italy and Greece, Germany and Australia, Poland and twenty-five other racial strains—all Americans who had come up through the "melting pot" to places of dignity and comfort, gathered in Senator Harding's front yard today under the leadership of Senator McCormick, head of the foreign born bureau of the Republican national committee. With their bands and banners, singing and speaking for America, their intent interest in the proceedings, their keen alert vigor and the faith that shone in their eyes they made a stirring audience for the Republican candidate to face. They had come from all states in the union, the largest delegations arriving on special trains from New York, Chicago, and Cleveland. The Sons of Italy Civic association of Cleveland was one of the most interesting delegations.

Thirty Races, One Flag.

We are for Harding because he is for America," read one of their banners. "Thirty races, but only one country and one flag," was another.

Senator McCormick led them in parade through the streets. Col. George Christian, Democrat, and official welcomer of delegations, carried a huge American flag at their head. They were presented to the candidate by Senator McCormick, who said:

"We are come to bear witness to our faith that the success of the Republican party and your own election in November holds forth the certain promise of the reestablishment of free and representative government at home, no less than the reassertion abroad of those fundamental American policies under which the American people have become great, and in the pursuit of which their government has enjoyed in ever increasing measure the respect and regard of the people of the world.

Senator Harding's Reply.

Senator Harding replied with a carefully prepared address on citizenship, speaking to these men as Americans. He said that America did not ask them to put aside human relationships but only to consecrate themselves to their citizenship.

"We are unalterably against any present or future hyphenated Americanism," he said. He told of the dangers involved in this country attempting to meddle in European affairs. It is not alone a menace abroad, he said but the greater danger lies in conflict among adopted Americans.

"No good of any kind has proceeded from such meddling in Russia. None in the case of Poland. None in the case of the Balkan states. None in the case of Fiume. On the contrary, the mistaken policy of interference has broken the drawstrings of good sense and spilled bad counsel and bad manners all over the world.

America First Plea.

"Meddling abroad tends to make Americans forget that they are Americans. Meddling is not only dangerous to us, because it leads us into the entanglements against which Washington warned us, but it also threatens an America divided in her own household and tends to drive into groups, seeking to make themselves felt in our political life, men and women whose hearts are led away from 'America first' to 'hyphen first.'

He emphasized the importance of America watching the health of her citizens, protecting especially American childhood and motherhood. He said America must unite to prevent the growth of sore spots in cities. We want these foreign born, he said, to know the best America and give their best to America.

JOSEPH LOFTIS WEDS SECRETARY OF DEAD BROTHER

A second marriage growing out of the death of Samuel T. A. Loftis, diamond merchant, in his Edgewater apartment as the climax of a gay party became known yesterday. Announcement was made of the marriage of Joseph Swift Loftis, a brother of the dead man, to Mrs. Josephine M. Hessell, who was Samuel Loftis' secretary.

The couple were married in Philadelphia by the Rev. Robert Tumbelston on Sept. 1. Mr. Loftis went east on a purchasing trip on Aug. 21. He met his bride in Philadelphia the day of the wedding.

Following the ceremony the couple went to Atlantic City on a honeymoon trip, from which they returned a week ago last Friday.

Following the death of Samuel Loftis and the reorganization of the firm of Loftis Brothers, on Aug. 17, the then Mrs. Hessell was elected president of the concern, with Joseph Swift Loftis as vice president and treasurer. The day before she had been made administratrix of the estate of the dead man, valued at nearly $1,000,00, jointly with his brother.

Mrs. Loftis has been employed by the firm for seventeen years. She has held every position from stenographer to president. She was born in Chicago and educated in the public schools.

Roy M. Shayne and Miss Ruth Woods, who figured in the story of Samuel Loftis' death, were married about a month ago.

HEROES' MOTHERS APPLAUD PLEA TO ENTER LEAGUE

Many Cheer Gov. Cox at San Francisco.

BY ROBERT B. SMITH.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Gov. James M. Cox is waging a desperate battle to get California in line to register its electoral vote in the Democratic column in November.

Finding lack of organization and some of the leaders apathetic, his campaigning yesterday and today are said to have added to the fight.

Among those who met Gov. Cox here was Hiram W. Johnson Jr. He had no comment to make regarding the political lineup here.

Mothers of Dead Heroes Cheer.

Gov. Cox spoke to more than a thousand women at noon today at the St. Francis hotel. He said he believed women should and would take a part in seeing the United States enter the league.

At the meeting were many women who wore mourning—mothers who had lost their boys in the world war. These women led the cheering.

Gov. Cox has made many friends in California by his stand on the Japanese question. A statement he made in his address last night attracted much attention.

His View of Destiny.

"God Almighty," he said, "intended this hemisphere, this continent, which is now called America, to be the experimental field for the sons of man throughout all time, and when Christopher Columbus discovered it God Almighty pulled back the curtain and then and there the greatest drama was staged, the greatest drama in all the history of the world."

"And God Almighty," Gov. Cox added, "provided that the fathers of America should be white men. They builded the ideals upon which a republic has lived, and those ideals will be maintained, and those from other shores who are not disposed to subscribe to that doctrine have the privilege of going back whence they came."

He returned with the title of "individual rifle champion of the world," which he won at the Olympic match last month against ninety competitors representing thirteen nations. Using the regulation U. S. magazine rifle, he won the 300 meter free rifle match with a score of 996. Fisher learned to shoot after he joined the marines. He is a native of Ohio and was a baker before he enlisted. At one time he was attached to the marine recruiting force in Chicago.

PRESIDENT GIVES $500 TO AID FUND OF DEMOCRATS

Report He May Write Letters for Cox.

New York, Sept. 18.—A $500 contribution to the Democratic national campaign fund was received today from President Wilson, who wrote that he was offering the money as a "private in the ranks."

The text of the president's note, as given out by W. W. Marsh, Democratic national treasurer, was:

"May I not, as a private in the ranks, give myself the pleasure of contributing the inclosed to the expenses of the Democratic campaign? I feel very deeply that the very honor and destiny of the nation are involved in this campaign and that I and all citizens who love its honor and covet for it a high influence in the world should contribute to the success of the candidate who stands for the reestablishment of our position among the nations."

The contribution was accepted.

National Chairman George White said:

"Throughout the land there are 'private citizens in the ranks' whose thought and aspiration the president has expressed in his letter. 'The honor and destiny' of the nation are truly involved."

Wilson to Aid Campaign.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—E. H. Moore, Gov. Cox's chief adviser and Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, has succeeded, it is reported tonight, in inducing President Wilson to issue a series of campaign letters on the league of nations.

Mr. Moore is also working on close friends of William Jennings Bryan, urging them to bring Mr. Bryan actively into the campaign.

Yesterday he was walking across the tracks. Apparently he did not see a southbound engine coming. Before Engineer Love could apply the brakes Lucas' body was crushed under the wheels. He was killed instantly.

The child reaches the Junior Unfolding Pedal.

If not it cannot learn to play the piano properly. All pianists agree that the pedal is to the piano as the bow is to the violin.

To ask a little child to learn to play the piano when its feet cannot reach the pedal is equivalent to asking it to learn the violin without a bow.

SCORE HARDING FOR ATTACK ON POLICY IN HAITI

Democrats Say U. S. Rule Is Needed.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Senator Harding stepped on the administration's sore foot yesterday in his speech at Marion when he assailed its policy as to Haiti and San Domingo.

At the state department officials were vehement in their denunciation of the Republican presidential nominee for reflecting on the government's efforts to aid the struggling island republics, and Secretary Daniels joined with his former assistant secretary, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in defending the government's policy.

High Officials Angry.

"Cheap," "disgusting," and other adjectives were applied by high officials in referring to Mr. Harding's references to the administration policy in the isuands, attributing his attack to a desire to injure the administration without investigation into the truth of charges made.

Officials declared the United States was carrying out in Haiti and San Domingo a practice of the Monroe doctrine advocated by former President Roosevelt. The United States went into those island countries, it was said, upon invitation and would come out when the need for the presence of American forces has ceased.

Soon May Quit Islands.

It is the belief of the state department the need may cease to exist sooner than is thought in some quarters. It was intimated the adoption and observance of electoral codes may bring an end to revolutionary disturbances and other conditions which now make it necessary for the United States to police the island republics.

Secretary Daniels came out under his own name with what he had to say on the subject, but withheld for the time being a report on conditions in Haiti recently made to him by Gen. George Barnett, former commandant of the marine corps.

ARTICLE TEN IS VICE OF LEAGUE, HUGHES OPINION

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 18.—[United Press.]—In a speech vigorously attacking the league of nations covenant as it stands, particularly article X, Charles E. Hughes, former Supreme court justice and candidate for the presidency in 1916, today signalized his entrance into the campaign for Harding and Coolidge.

"Article X is a mischief maker," he said in addressing the New Jersey Republican state convention. "It belongs to the category of alliances to make war and is opposed to American principle. It will serve to make disputes and not to heal them. Article X is really the vice of the covenant."

Mr. Hughes contended that this article imposes an obligation upon the signatories of the treaty that is perfectly clear. "The obligation is immediate," he declared. "It awaits no action of the league to impose it. It is of no avail to call the obligation a moral one. If such an undertaking, to respect and preserve against external aggression the political independence of all members of the league, has validity it would create just as legal and just as binding an obligation as any obligation under international law or any treaty obligation can be."

He contended the president might, under Article X, plunge the country into war without waiting for congress, "but," he continued, "it has been urged that the league council might not advise the use of military force. There is no security for this, for plainly the council might advise and force might be plainly needed if the guaranty was to be made good."

He characterized the provision regarding the Monroe doctrine as both inaccurate and ambiguous.

"If it was intended to reserve the Monroe doctrine unimpaired," he asked, "why not say so? Why should the American representatives have failed to secure clear and adequate provisions upon this point?"

ROUGH RIDERS OF '61 THRILL TO BUGLES OF PAST

Heroes in Memory Charge Once More.

"The glory of the men of the revolution was great; the glory of the men of 1812 was wondrous; the glory of the men at the Alamo was lasting—but the glory of the men who fought for the union in 1861 to 1865 is the greatest the history of the United States will ever show!"

The quavering voice was still. In the dim, memento hung G. A. R. hall in the public library thirty-seven old men nodded slowly as their thoughts wandered back fifty-five years.

They remembered the days when the old 8th Illinois cavalry was formed; when they rode into battle against desperate odds; when they marched over the fields of Virginia to their hardest fights.

The Fountain of Youth.

As comrades found strength to stand and retell the sagas of deeds of that time the veterans' old backs straightened, hands fumbled with hat cords and medals, and some forgot and spoke their thoughts even while others held the floor.

While Capt. E. R. Lewis, commander, presided, a dozen comrades recalled incidents in the history of their regiment. C. G. Dixon, 1721 West Austin avenue, told of his recruiting in '62 and of the hardships his company went through.

"We hold the record, I think, of having seven generals selected from among our officers," he declared. He began to tell them off, but his memory faltered and his comrades came to his aid.

Shades of the Mighty.

E. W. Huntoon of Lake Forest told how Gen. Faulkner fell in battle, and that started a discussion as to responsibility for the charge that resulted in his death. But the thread was lost as other revered names—Grant, Sherman, and the rest—were brought up.

After a little girl had played the piano and another had danced for the boys of the "old 8th," the strains of "America" brought them to their feet, and they wondered as they strove to sing how many of the original 300 cavalrymen would attend the fifty-sixth anniversary celebration next September.

"We are going, going." The captain paused. "I'm lonesome today because the comrade who has come with me to these reunions for twenty years couldn't come this time. He was reported 'present' at the last roll call. But we'll keep up our courage and carry our flag on as long as we live."

CASHIER THREATENS TO 'END ALL'; VANISHES; BROTHER LEADS HUNT

Search is being made for E. Maurice Okerbloom, cashier of the National Malleable Castings company, who disappeared from his home at 3210 Potomac avenue last Wednesday. He left a note saying he was "going to end it all." He is believed to have been affected mentally by worry. Officials of the casting concern declare his books are in perfect order. Okerbloom is 43 years old and a bachelor. He lived with his aunt. His brother, Sigurd T. Okerbloom of 5847 Warwick avenue is directing the search.

ALDERMEN VETO $50,000 TO AID HOUSING PLANS

Purchase of $50,000 worth of the bonds of the Chicago Real Estate Improvement corporation by the city to assist in financing the housing association's home building campaign would be unwise at present, a subcommittee, of which Ald. U. S. Schwartz is chairman, reported yesterday to the council finance committee.

The suggestion had been made by Ald. C. F. Smith, who asked that the city invest its funds to help release the $600,000 which the association invested in homes at Eighty-seventh and State streets for use in the construction of more homes at another location.

Shortage of city funds and legal difficulties were given by Ald. Schwartz as reasons for his subcommittee's report.

BANK MACHINES PUT IN SCHOOLS TO TEACH SAVING

To foster the saving habit among pupils in Oak Park schools, Superintendent W. J. Hamilton has installed banking machines to take care of the extra pennies, nickels, and quarters of the suburb's budding capitalists. The "banks" will be officially opened for business tomorrow.

A coin of any denomination up to a quarter is inserted in a slot. A stamp bearing the amount of the deposit is automatically delivered from another slot, and this receipt is placed on a card which is provided to each depositor.

When the stamps amount to $1 they are taken to any bank in Oak Park and a savings account is opened. The cards may also be exchanged for currency.

"This plan has proved of great benefit in other places," said Superintendent Hamilton. "It is convenient, safe, and encourages children to save pennies they would otherwise spend for trifles. The scheme may be the means of the building of comfortable fortunes in years to come."

NEGRO SLAIN IN QUARREL OVER MONEY.

William Johnson, 23 years old, a Negro, 2968 Prairie avenue, died yesterday at his home from a bullet wound he received early yesterday when he was shot twice by Charles Golden, also a Negro, of 4745 South State street, when they got into an argument over money.

BRYAN ATTACKS STANDPAT AND WET DEMOCRATS

Would Beat Them with G. O. P. Progressives.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—Vote for a Republican for the house or senate, if he is opposed by a Democrat who is a "reactionary" or a "wet," is the advice of William Jennings Bryan in the current issue of The Commoner.

President Wilson's effort to repeal wartime prohibition, is called an effort for a brief "national spree." The Wilson treaty policy also is attacked.

"Let us," such are his exact words, "elect just as many progressives to the senate and house as possible—a Republican if the Democratic candidate is a reactionary, just as we should elect a Republican dry if the Democratic candidate is wet."

Progressives Denied Chance.

Of the Democratic convention, Mr. Bryan declares "the progressives had no chance in the Democratic party this year.

"The administration presented no economic issue upon which a division could be made. Those who spoke for the president made the indorsement of the treaty, without reservations the dominant—in fact—the only test. Nothing could be done or said that could in any way be construed as a reflection upon the administration or as a suggestion of improvement.

Where Interest Lay.

"Nearly a third of the delegates at the Democratic convention seemed to be interested in nothing but the liquor question.

"The administration did not want anything said on the prohibition question, doubtless because it might be construed as a rebuke to the president for silence on the subject in general and his lamentable effort to repeal war prohibition at a time when it would have invited a national spree of a few weeks duration before constitutional prohibition went into effect."

AMERICAN WOMEN AND THE TREATY.

American women are being asked in this campaign to vote for the Democratic candidate for president because he is pledged to the treaty of Versailles and the covenant for a league of nations contained therein. They are told this covenant creates the league of peace of which good and great men have dreamed through many centuries. They are told it is a covenant of peace and will end all war.

Four years ago the same party asked for votes for the Democratic president because "he kept us out of war." He got them, and five months later the United States entered the world war.

Is it wise to recall that now that we are asked once more to vote for a Democratic candidate because he will commit us to a covenant that will keep the world out of war?

The Republican party denies that the covenant demanded by Mr. Wilson, without reservation, and indorsed by Mr. Cox is a covenant of peace.

We declare it is an entangling alliance, which for the first time in our country's history, and in disobedience to the wise warnings and example of our forefather, will commit us to the quarrels of the old world and pledge us to the enforcement of policies determined by a council seated in the heart of Europe and composed of the great powers whose clashing ambitions have made all the great wars of modern history save only our own war for the union.

We declare the covenant demanded by Mr. Wilson and indorsed by Mr. Cox is not a covenant of peace but a covenant of war, and we point out to the peace loving women of America that, as Senator Knox has said, "In this alleged instrument of peace war is legalized in seven cases and made compulsory in three."

Who will decide upon these wars?

The council of this league of nations, in which your government will have one vote in a total of nine.

Who will wage these wars?

Your sons or your sons' sons.

The Democrats assert that the United States will have the right under the covenant to veto the action of the council and that the congress of the United States will still retain its constitutional power to declare war or to refrain from doing so.

Yet the Democratic president and his followers in the senate refused to accept a reservation which declares this in plain English.

Why?

Because the Democratic president declared that such a reservation took the heart out of the covenant.

If this be so, then the heart of the covenant is the power of the council of the great powers, in Europe assembled, to make wars under the express terms of this covenant, to which the Democratic party proposes to pledge the American nation.

The American nation keeps faith. If the American nation sets its seal without reservation in behalf of its own independence of conscience, it will pledge itself to enter the league of nations created by the covenant to fulfill its terms and not to evade them. If the American nation sets its seal to this covenant it places its foreign policy in the hands of a council of nine, of which one is the representative appointed by the president of the United States.

Will such a representative in such a body, a body whose labor will be the manipulation of the tangled strands of old world desires and enmities, be able to keep us clear of the entanglements and conflicts against which the great founder of our country warned us?

And if he is not able, shall we still be free to stand back?

The Republican party says no.

The Democratic party says yes.

But if it is yes, why did the Democratic president and senators refuse to accept a reservation declaring that fact?

The treaty of Versailles is not bringing peace to the world. It has brought new wars and revived old.

If any woman doubts this, let her look at Europe.

The covenant of a league of nations was by the deliberate and publicly declared purpose of Mr. Wilson inextricably bound up with the treaty and is an intrinsic part thereof, against the protest and warning of the Republican leaders in the senate. The league of the covenant is and was intended to be the agency for the enforcement of the treaty of Versailles.

Does this promise peace?

Or does it promise war?

The Republican party and its great leaders have taken the foremost rôle in the peace movement of the world.

The only war we ever fought that could in any sense be called a war of conquest, the war with Mexico, was declared by a Democratic president and congress.

The Republican has been at all times a party of honorable peace, but it has always stood and stands today for the independence of the United States, and puts its trust in the righteousness of the American people to serve the cause of peace in their own way, according to the dictates of their own conscience, and in the exercise of their own free will.

For a hundred and thirty-five years this nation has followed the farseeing wisdom of Washington, and amid all the recurrent conflicts of Europe no American mother has had to watch her son march away to give his life in any war not forced upon us by aggression and solemnly decreed by our own free government.

Will American women turn their backs upon that freedom now?

Will American women now vote their first national vote to depart from that path?

If so, innumerable American mothers in the years to come, watching their sons march away on the path that does not return, will pay for our folly as only a mother can pay.

America, free America, is the greatest force for peace in the world, great in proportion to her freedom to act or withhold action.

In the name of peace, our peace, world peace, let America remain free.

That is the issue before the nation in this election.

WHO ARE CAPITALISTS?

"The domination of the proletariat," said Lenin, "is revealed in the expropriation of the property of the landed proprietors and capitalists."

"The working class, according to the constitution, has more rights than the peasantry, and the exploiters have no rights at all."

It is worth while for Americans who do not recognize classes before the law to consider the application of these ideas in this country, as desired by the Communists and I. W. W.'s.

While radicals talk of capitalists as the money trust, Wall street, big business, the corporations, it is easy to applaud because these phrases raise in our minds the idea of vast power organized and acting together to gouge and oppress us.

But when Lenin talks of capitalists, he means all capitalists, as when he talks of dictatorship and the "iron discipline" of enforced labor he means iron discipline and enforced labor. When he talks of capitalists he means every one who has capital. He hasn't dared to take the land from the peasants because his power would not survive the attempt by a week. But wherever he dared attack any one or any number having capital, he has done so.

And what are capitalists in America? Are they only Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Carnegie, and a few hundred masters of millions? They are not. They are every farmer who owns an acre of land, every wage earner who owns a house and lot, or a savings account, or a Liberty bond. It means almost every citizen of the United States.

Lenin's plan is simple. It is to take every bit of private property away from its private owners and turn it over to the state.

But this is not all. Labor is property, and labor belongs to the state. Thus a bolshevik authority asserts that "the fundamental transformation process which we would know and understand is that of goods into men and men into goods." Therefore, "let us introduce military system into labor and we shall thus increase the production of labor."

And what in Russia is the state? It is Lenin and a small group of men who are chosen by a method more indirect, unequal and remote from the mass of the people than in any civilized country of modern times.

No wonder Lenin sneers at equal suffrage, at parliamentary government, at the ideals of equality and democracy which have been evolved through centuries of effort by freedom loving peoples, led by the great men of the past. All these gains of time this tremendous egotist waves aside, and proposes to construct an ideal system of society among a people without education or experience of self-government. What he has set up in fact is a personal tyranny or the tyranny of a very small group, who control an army and by it the means of transportation essential to the life of modern cities, and he supports himself by an irresponsible inquisition and a secret police as bad as the czar's, suppressing and punishing all differences of opinion, free speech, free press, free conscience.

Yet there are men in America and in England who are for bolshevism. Fortunately they are few and we hope will grow fewer.

TO STIMULATE POSTAL SAVINGS.

Eugene Meyer Jr., former chairman of the War Finance corporation and author of a plan presented to the senate reconstruction committee to expand the usefulness of the postal savings bank system, asserts the plan is meeting with widespread approval. It should meet with such approval and with general support.

The chief features of the plan include an increase in interest rates above the 2 per cent now allowed by the government, an arrangement for payment of interest on deposits of three months or more instead of a year as at present, and special financial compensation for postmasters based upon the amount of savings deposited with them.

Application of these reforms to the postal savings banks undoubtedly would stimulate deposits. By thus increasing popular savings the system would add to the wealth of the nation as well as to the wealth of the individual. It would make available for government use at a comparatively small coast funds which are now borrowed from the banks on treasury certificates at a rate as high as 6 per cent. It would put into circulation millions of dollars which are now hoarded in the family stocking by persons of small means who fear to trust their funds to ordinary savings banks.

Records of the postal savings bank show a heavy deposit by persons of foreign birth or small education. Frequent failures of small private banks in the melting pot districts of large cities have resulted in a general distrust of banks by the more ignorant classes of potential depositors. These same persons are disposed to trust the government, and frequently confide their savings to its care. If the postal savings bank can be put upon a more attractive financial basis, and its advantages brought more clearly to the attention of savers, we believe deposits will show a great increase.

In addition to the financial advantage to both the government and the depositors there will be a moral advantage. Possession of a bank account tends to make the possessor a more stable citizen. He is more intelligently interested in protecting and increasing his reserve by putting good men into office and supporting sound economic and political policies. The bank book and bolshevistic propaganda are seldom found in the same pocket.

It is to be hoped that the senate reconstruction committee acts favorably upon Mr. Meyer's suggestions.

TO AVERT MEASLES EPIDEMICS.

"WHAT can we do to lessen the prevalence of measles?" is a pertinent question as the public schools are starting a new session. The United States army surgeons were so plagued by measles in the training camps in 1917 that many of them came out with public statements to the effect that measles could not be controlled and it was just as well for everybody to get measles and get over it.

Their statements must be discounted for two reasons. First, they had just had trying and disappointing experiences and, second, they were thinking in terms of wars and armies. We have about twenty-five years between wars and we must look at the measles question from the standpoint of the civilian population in peace times.

The army surgeons found that a large proportion of the men of soldier age never had had measles. This means that a large part of the people probably go through life without ever having measles. This is contrary to what many people believe.

Dr. John Brownlee, who proposes, in the British Medical Journal, a plan for controlling measles, tells of a Scotch community where there had not been a single case of measles for more than eighty years. Finally, the disease hit the community and every man, woman, and child came down with it. One old fellow, more than 80 years of age, told with tears in his eyes of his disgrace in having a baby disease at his time of life.

Dr. Brownlee made a study of the history of measles in Aberdeen and Glasgow for the last fifty years. This showed that children under 5 years old have a heavy death rate from measles.

In Aberdeen the period of maximum danger was 9 to 12 months of age; in Glasgow from 12 to 24 months. A large percentage of the children who start school at, say, 7, have already had measles. Among children over 7 and under 15 measles is a mild disease in Aberdeen, Glasgow, and everywhere else.

This is the Brownlee plan: Whenever a child enters school the record shows whether there are younger children at home. This record is kept in the schoolroom. Each year it is brought up to date. If measles appears in a school a list of all children with brothers or sisters under 5 who have not had measles is made. Especial care is taken to protect the children on this list against the disease. However, if they are exposed, the nurse goes to their homes and arranges to have them cared for at the homes of their grandparents or at the homes of relatives where there are no children, from the seventh to the fourteenth day after exposure.

Brownlee says there are two excellent signs of oncoming measles—redness and swelling of the eyes, especially the lids, and a mild fever coming before any other symptom.

DON'T EAT RAW PORK.

A. B. writes: "1. What are the symptoms of trichinosis?

"2. Is it curable?

"3. How soon after infection are the symptoms noticeable and what measures will arrest its progress?

"4. Is it fairly safe occasionally to indulge in that delectable morsel, a bit of raw hickory smoked bacon?"

REPLY.

1. While the worms are boring through the tissues there are fever and general pains, particularly in the muscles. Examination of the blood shows an increase in a white blood cell called the eosinophile. Most cases of acute trichinosis are called rheumatism, muscular rheumatism, and lumbago. Some cases are confused with typhoid fever. The fever and backache may suggest smallpox in the early stage.

2. Yes. Most cases get well without arousing suspicion of trichinosis.

3. About the third day after eating infected meat.

4. It is not safe to eat raw pork unless it has been held in cold storage for a considerable time.

BABY BORN RUPTURED.

M. N. L. writes: "1. What causes a 6 weeks old baby boy to be ruptured?

"2. Can he be cured? If so, how? Would you advise a truss?

"3. What would you prescribe for cramps?

"4. Is there a certain diet for such a small kid?"

REPLY.

1. He was born that way. Probably he was born with a weak place in the abdominal wall and straining caused that weak place to give. There is congenital weakness of the wall in all cases of rupture.

2. Yes. As a rule wearing a binder cures rupture in babies. Sometimes it is necessary to wear something like a truss. Some cases need to be operated on.

3. Most cases are caused by overfeeding. Feed him less. Hold him on your shoulder with his head up. Tap his back gently. Give him simple warm teas.

4. Yes. Nature provides it—breast milk. If it is absolutely necessary, diluted cow's milk can be given. The strength of the milk dilution should be determined by the weight and age of the child. The United States department of labor, children's bureau, Washington, D. C., has a free book on infant care telling how to dilute the milk according to weight and age.

STREET TO BE REPAIRED.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—The street under viaduct on Twenty-third street, between La Salle and Federal streets, is in such a deplorable condition that speedy action is necessary. There is heavy traffic through that section and the street there bulges up, making it difficult to proceed with any vehicle.

I hope you will see to it that this is repaired. Thank you. A. R.

Instructions have been issued to our brick repair forces to make the necessary repairs, which we presume will be in the near future.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

COURT SETS ASIDE WILL.

Connersville, Ind., Sept. 15.—To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A is a legally adopted son. The father died after A is of age, leaving a will whose provisions cannot be carried out on account of ...ge amount of indebtedness against the estate.

By appeal of the heirs the court set aside the will, awarding the widow one-third of the total value of estate, A receiving nothing, although willed a large amount by adopted father, remaining two-thirds going to creditors. Widow married again and she and her husband invest total amount. At her death (husband surviving) is A entitled to any part of the estate? HOOSIER.

Not if she wills it to other persons.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please give me the full interpretation of the article of the constitution relative to the person eligible for office of president of the United States?

Also, I should like to know if I am correct in saying that no person other than a native born citizen of the United States is eligible to become president of the United States? G. V. C.

We do not know what you mean by "full interpretation." The constitution requires that the president be a natural born citizen, 35 years old, and fourteen years a resident within the United States.

DUTIES OF A GUARDIAN.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a guardian has been appointed over a person who has become incapable of taking care of his affairs is it not the duty of the guardian to see that the property of the one over whom he has charge is protected and saved from being lost?

2. Who appoints a guardian over one who is alone and unable to take care of himself?

3. Does the guardian's compensation come out of the county in which the party that he is supposed to look after resides, or is it taken out of the party's property while it lasts?

4. Does it not show a neglect of duty on the part of the guardian when the party loses everything that he has, and who had several thousand dollars' worth of real estate when the guardian was appointed over him? G.

1. Depends on whether he is guardian of the person or of the estate.
2. Probate court.
3. The latter.
4. Not necessarily.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WHERE DIVORCE IS ADVISABLE.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A husband and wife have been separated since 1907 and she has not heard from him. In order to marry again is it necessary to get a divorce from him, or is the length of time in not hearing from him sufficient? E. D. R.

We strongly advise divorce before remarriage on such facts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Roseville, Ill., Sept. 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If I sell a hog and poultry tonic to the farmers will I have to get a state license? 2. Does the government require stamps on it? J. J.

2. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE LEAGUE — DISARMAMENT — JAPAN.

Ames, Ia., Sept. 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Gov. Cox, in his Helena, Mont., speech Sept. 9, gave the same line of talk that the pacifists gave us before the war. The pacifists gave figures on what wonderful educational institutions, etc., could be built for the money that would be otherwise expended on preparedness. Well, the pacifists have had their fling and it cost the United States over $20,000,000,000.

Cox gives the impression that the world will disarm under the Wilson league of nations. If this league specifically stated that every member agrees to disarm and it contained no provision that would allow any or all members to disregard or "get around" disarmament, the league would have been gratified. But, as a mater of fact, there is not a sentence in the Wilson league that says the members agree to disarm. But it does say, "Taking into account the geographical position of each member." Which means that Japan may arm, also the British Isles, and Germany because it is surrounded by enemies, but the United States, on account of its splendid geographical position, must not arm, but can continue to pass laws that protect the United States, but which are obnoxious to another nation, a nation that has no intention to disarm under any circumstances on account of its precarious geographical position as sanctioned by the league of nations.

Should this league pass Japan will proceed to send a shipload or two to our west coast. Of course they will be denied admittance. Japan claims that, according to the United States constitution, its people have a right to come to this country to make homes. Now show us a provision in the league of nations that states Japan cannot bring the above case before the supreme council and demand settlement. We do not know whether the supreme council would throw it out or pass on it. We do know the United States and Japan would not have a vote in its decision. The chances are in favor of a compromise that in the end would prove disastrous to the white people of the United States. Of course, we'd have no war. It would be "peace at any price."

Can the United States afford to arbitrate the Japanese question?

A. T. R. PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN.

ANOTHER JOB FOR THE SENATE COMMITTEE.

Columbus Junction, Iowa, Sept. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Now that the senate committee is growing weary of investigating Republican campaign funds and finding nothing unlawful, it would be interesting to me to have them investigate our federal elections in the southern states.

1st. We would like to know how many senators from southern states have seats who were elected by a minority of votes.

2nd. In how many southern states is our constitution violated at federal elections?

3rd. Will Mr. Cox allow his friends to deprive Negroes of their constitutional rights on election day to aid his election?

4th. Will the Cox men try their bulldozing tactics in any new states this year?

5th. When the new apportionment is made in the house of representatives will the southern Democrats add to their representation by counting the Negroes and later depriving them of their ballots? JAS. K. RHAMES.

ON THE GERMAN-POLISH FRONTIER.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I read with much interest your editorial under the heading "Danzig Corridor." The undersigned has recently returned from a nine months trip and has traveled from Warsaw to Danzig and returned, as well as from Berlin, Germany, to Danzig, and I have studied the spirit between the Poles and the Germans, and fully agree with you that they can never live peacefully together.

A German usually considers himself above a Pole, and cannot stand to see a Pole who is stationed at the frontier to be the custom authorities for the purpose of examining the hand baggage carried by passengers over the frontier, and search his baggage when he is traveling from Germany to Germany, as from Berlin to Königsberg.

The German at the frontier offices is always hoping that they will get back this territory, even if they will have to fight for it again. H. ELEVSOOME.

PROBABLY THEY'RE WAITING FOR US TO DO THEIR FIGHTING.

Rockford, Ia., Sept. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If the league of nations will stop or prevent future wars, where's the excuse for the war that's going on over there now? Why do not those European nations who are in the league put it to work and prove to the world that it has merit? The league of nations is the silliest kind of "bunk," that's all. JOHN SAMP.

A VOICE FROM THE SOLID SOUTH.

Macon, Ga., Sept. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The state of Georgia has elected Tom Watson by the largest vote ever cast, killing the league of nations forever. We are all glad of it. Can't next. C. H. JONES.

NO REST IN RUSSIA

1—Russia is reported to have granted Finland the ice-free port of Petchenga on the Arctic ocean. The boundaries are not mentioned.

2—The Riga peace conference is expected to be a failure, reports declare. The nations in the theater of war are only breathing and arming for a new test of strength. There have been no signs of a change of policy in either Poland, Russia, or Lithuania; on the contrary, there is talk on both sides of a new war before winter.

3—Gen. Pilsudski, the head of the Polish state, is following his personal ambitions, it is said, often in defiance of the allies. He entertains hopes of wresting Vilna, his birthplace, from the Lithuanians. Lithuania and Poland are eyeing each other over the territory of Suwalki, shown on the map by a shade.

4—Wrangel in South Russia has abandoned the Kuban to the fortunes of war, and is concentrating in Crimea for a drive into the Ukraine. If Wrangel and Pilsudski would unite in a single drive on the Reds, it is believed they could win, but Pilsudski has declared he will have nothing to do with Wrangel.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

FICTION.

*"This Side of Paradise" [Scribners], by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
*"The Valley of Silent Men" [Cosmopolitan], by James Oliver Curwood.
*"Woman Triumphant" [Dutton], by Blasco-Ibanez.
*"Mrs. Warren's Daughter" [Macmillan], by Sir Harry Johnston.
*"Harriet and the Piper" [Doubleday Page], by Kathleen Norris.
*"What's the World Coming To?" [Harpers], by Rupert Hughes.

NONFICTION.

*"White Shadows in the South Seas" [Century] by Frederick O'Brien.
*"The Story of Opal" [Atlantic Monthly Press], by Opal Whitely.
*"Memoirs of the Empress Eugenie" [Appleton], by Comte Fleury.

Last week's six best circulators at the public library were:
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick O'Brien.
"This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
"Avowals," by George Moore.
"The Prairie Mother," by Arthur Stringer.
"Economic Consequences of the Peace," by John Maynard Keynes.

JAMES GIBBONS HUNEKER'S memoirs, which he characteristically calls "Steeplejack," have finally appeared in book form, in two remarkably well printed volumes which are, for once, exactly what one really expected of him. The first thought any one has about James Huneker is that he is an artist at life, that for him living is the brood mother of the seven arts. His criticisms, of music, of painting, of literature, have always been finely tempered with that genial cosmopolitanism which accepts the arts as assimilable to life rather than apart from it. His memoirs would naturally be memories of life more vividly than memories of art, of artists more than of their work.

He is one of the critics—few in number—who could know the artist intimately, be wholly devoted to him or her personally, and yet remain unprejudiced as to the artistic value of his or her work. It is of the men and women he knew, more than of the operas and pictures and books which were scarlet poppies in a critic's Flanders fields, that he writes about.

In "Steeplejack" one realizes that, after all, music is Mr. Huneker's art; that in it, through its passions and its prayers, he has found his most vivid expression; that musicians have meant more to him than other seven artists. But painters, poets (of the older generation), litterateurs have rounded out his critical life.

Of the foundations of Joseph Conrad's almost perfect English style, he says: "The Bible and Flaubert were his companions throughout the years he voyaged in southern seas; from holy writ he absorbed his racy, idiomatic, and Shakspearian English; from the sonorous, shining prose of the great French writer he learned the art of writing sentences, their comely shape and varied rhythmic gait, their sound, color, perfume; the passionate music of words, their hateful and harmonic power." Such paragraphs are the most brilliant critical writing. But of it there is little in "Steeplejack."

Critical writing is what those who know Huneker as a critic but have never read his criticisms would expect in his memoirs. They hoped for a sort of pemmicanized encyclopedia of the culture of the last generation. They expected a critical Marie Bashkirtseff.

But those who have read Huneker with constancy undiluted knew that he would write just the sort of memoirs that he has written. To those of us who are more interested in books than we are in music, they seem a sparse company of writing folk in comparison with the hordes of musicians who "had a finger in his personal pie" as he says.

And yet there is present in every mood Stendahl and Baudelaire. To those who remember the tales of his marvelous youth in Paris when among the great painters—to quote one of my discerning friends—night after night he listened to the best talk in the world, they seem but a few in comparison to the musicians who molded his mind.

But James Gibbons Huneker is no longer a young man. His memories have taken on the warm glow of a "future that lies behind him." They were, also, written in fifteen weeks—with a pen!

"Books in General," second series, is published under the real name of J. C. Squire, who has veiled, though not cloaked, his critical identity with the pseudonym of "Solomon Eagle." Mr. Squire is now the editor of the London Mercury, and is grandly designated as "the most influential critic in England today." He is a charming essayist, who chooses books and bookish things as his themes, but as for being a critic, there probably aren't more than three paragraphs of real literary criticism in both series of "Books in General." He has a happy faculty of writing with grace and savor about literary incidents. He knows old books and their creators. But he never shocks you with the fundamental, searching truth of his observations, as a great critic always does.

This second series makes delightful bedtime reading. It has some of the mellowness of the more leisurely essayists, a little of their soporific gentleness, and now and then a dash of an essentially modern insouciance about life as expressed in literature.

Mr. Squire is not, however, to be compared to H. L. Mencken as a critic, nor are "Books in General," first and second series, to be compared to "Prejudices" as a stimulus to making literature a part of life instead of apart from life.

"Leda," Aldous Huxley's volume of poetry and polyphonic prose, is the most daring volume of verse which has come off the presses this year, daring because Aldous Huxley is a complete cynic and dares to make his Jovian disillusionment the stuff of poetry. "Leda," the longest poem in the volume, is a new thing in its conception, exquisitely done, pagan in its beauty. Other poems are bitter in their realism.

Mrs. W. L. George says that in England there is now a wave of nausea at sloppy sentimentality—at least among the few. Aldous Huxley's poetry and prose seem to me to be the ultimate expression of that revolt. He is probably the most important of the young English writers. He certainly is the most brilliant, most scathingly sparkling of them all, and his work is undoubtedly the work of a genius.

"The Moreton Mystery" [Bobbs-Merrill], by Elizabeth Dejeans, is a murder-detective-secret service tale in which the real murderer's identity is carefully veiled until the end, and in which beauty and justice triumph. The plot is a good one, complicated without being so many sided as to worry a reader into desperation.

John Spargo's "The Greatest Failure in All History" [Harpers] is about bolshevism, not about the present administration, as many seem to suspect.

Here's a commentary on the cultured life of our city. A lady of unimpeachable social position went into a book shop last week and said: "Do you know anything about an author by the name of Boswell? Is his 'Johnson' a good book? Mr. A. Edward Newton in 'The Amenities of Book Collecting' speaks so highly of it that I would like to read it."

Grace Hazard Conkling has taken very good care that her daughter, Hilda, aged 9, whose "Poems of a Little Girl" have brought unqualified congratulations from every one, shall not be spoiled. They are really exquisite poetry, the loveliest, to my mind, that have come out this year, and certainly poetry which might do honor to any poet of whatever age.

Lest her child lose that unconsciousness of childhood, Mrs. Conkling has impressed it upon Hilda that it is "nicer" not to speak of her book to any one. One day not long ago she and her older sister, Elsa, were calling at the home of another of the professors at Smith college. Elsa announced that Hilda had a whole book of her own poems. Whereupon Hilda, with embarrassed dignity, reproved her: "Well, Elsa, you needn't go telling everybody about it."

She isn't going to be spoiled if that's the way she feels about her work! By the way, her poems will be published in London next month, to the joy of all of the English critics who have read the American edition.

The scientific truth about the famous French gland grafting experiments will soon be available for American readers when Dr. Serge Voronoff's book, "Vivre," will be offered in an English translation by E. P. Dutton & Co. Dr. Voronoff and his wife, who are now in the United States, are shocked at the interviews which are said to have come from him and at the publicity which has attended their experiments. Their work has nothing to do with the reproduction of the human race, they declare, and aims only to find the means by which health and vigor can be increased and continued for a longer term of years. They have performed only one operation on a man and that so recently that the result cannot be announced. They have made experiments on animals for three years, with a hundred successes and a great many failures. Dr. Voronoff's work is carried on in the laboratories of the College of France under the supervision of the French government. His reports must first be submitted to the French Academy of Sciences. He may neither give interviews nor write articles about his work until the report is published in the official bulletin of the French academy. Dr. Voronoff read his first bulletin report before the academy last October. His book has been published in France and has created a sensation.

"October and Other Poems," by Robert Bridges, has been imported by Alfred A. Knopf. The poems are all graceful, but none of them is inspiring, either as poetry or as sentiment, at least to such as I, who feel that poetry is not a craft, but a divine calling; that poetry without a touch of immortality has no reason for being. Mr. Bridges is an excellent poet laureate, undoubtedly, but no real poet could make songs with the laurel wreath scratching grooves in his brain.

A new and cheaper edition of Henry P. Davison's "The American Red Cross in the Great War," has been issued by the Macmillan company, the original publishers for the Red Cross. All of the author's royalties from the sale of the book go to the Red Cross.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

TO THINE OWN SELF BE TRUE.
By Pakenham Beatty.

By thine own soul's law learn to live,
And if men thwart thee take no heed,
And if men hate thee have no care;
Sing thou thy song and do thy deed.
Hope thou thy hope and pray thy prayer,
And claim no crown they will not give,
Nor bays they grudge thee for thy hair.

Keep thou thy soul-worn steadfast oath,
And to thy heart be true thy heart;
What thy soul teaches learn to know,
And play out thine appointed part,
And thou shalt reap as thou shalt sow,
Nor helped nor hindered in thy growth.
To thy full stature thou shalt grow.

Fix on the future's goal thy face,
And let thy feet be lured to stray
Nowhither, but be swift to run,
And nowhere tarry by the way,
Until at last the end is won
And thou mayst look back from thy place
And see thy long day's journey done.

WOMAN FAINTS AS ROBBER FIRES; HER LIFE IS SAVED

Fights Burglar in Home; Bandit Shot, Taken.

Fainting at the proper moment has saved many a woman from a trying situation. Yesterday it probably saved Miss Caroline Kremin's life.

Miss Kremin returned to her flat at 1759 West Twentieth street from a shopping trip to find a man going through the bureau drawers.

Surprised, he wheeled and dashed for the stairs. Miss Kremin blocked his way.

"No you don't!" she commanded. "Put those things right back!"

Fires as Woman Faints.

The man tried to shove her aside. She screamed and clutched at him. Suddenly he drew a revolver.

"I'll shut you up!" he threatened.

She swooned and sank to the floor as he fired and dashed down the stairs and out to the sidewalk with the revolver in his hand.

Patrolman Michael Cullinan was standing about seventy-five feet away. He had heard the scream and shot. He ordered the fugitive to halt. The burglar cut loose with three shots. with three shots and ran into an alley. While the robber continued to fire Cullinan charged into the alley after him, shooting his revolver, too. The policeman shot the man twice in the left arm and he surrendered.

He was taken to the County hospital, where two watches, a string of pearls, and other jewelry stolen from the Kremin home were found in his pockets. He was identified as Joe Matusek of 2121 West Ninteenth street, an ex-convict with a long record. He had gained entrance to the Kremin flat through the rear door by means of a skeleton key.

Keeps Bullet as Souvenir.

An hour later Mrs. Kremin visited the Marquette station to sign a complaint. There were burns on her cheek and nose.

"The bullet must have missed the tip of my nose by the fraction of an inch," she said. "I found it in the wall. It's a good thing for me that I fainted."

MAINE REPLIED TO WILSON PLEA, LODGE ASSERTS

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—The Republican state convention today adopted by unanimous vote a platform which accepted "with full approval" the declarations of the national platform of the party on the league of nations, indorsed Harding and Coolidge, and favored a protective tariff.

Senator Lodge in his address remarked that President Wilson's request for a referendum on the league of nations had been answered in Maine.

"I regard the treaty almost as a betrayal of the rights of America," he said. "I am a good party man, but if my party had sought to make me accept the treaty as Mr. Wilson brought it back from Paris I never would have voted for it, party or no party.

"They talk of my personal hostility to President Wilson. I have none; he never has crossed my path. But I regarded him with that treaty in his hands as endangering the country and I did all in my power to stop it."

SHE SAID (BLUSH) DAMMIT (BLUSH) COP TESTIFIES

"It was a naughty word," said Policeman Frank Borre of Wilmette, "a very naughty word."

"Come, come," said Justice of the Peace D. M. Mickey, "tell the court just what she said."

Borre hesitated, blushed, looked at the defendant, Mrs. Paul Schroeder—charged with having parked her automobile without lights for the sixth time—and stated, "She said 'dammit.'"

Moreover, he put four taxi drivers on the stand to corroborate his testimony. It was after Borre had informed Mrs. Schroeder he would not warn her again that the word was uttered, it seems.

Mrs. Schroeder is the wife of the Wilmette real estate broker who hit Justice of the Peace Nazareth Barsumian with his fist, a squash, and a ripe tomato about three weeks ago.

G. O. P. LEADERS FAIL TO DECIDE ON ELECTOR LIST

Factions Divided on the Legality of Slates.

Efforts were made yesterday by Republican factional leaders to reconcile differences so that an unquestionably legal Republican electoral ticket might be placed in the field. The different opinions of the faction leaders on the effect of the Supreme court holding the 1919 primary law unconstitutional, however, prevented an understanding.

As a result nothing was done to call a convention or a state committee meeting which would nominate Republican electors.

Attorney General Brundage said that such action should be taken to remove any question of the legality of the electoral nominees.

Brundage Gives His Views.

"My interpretation of the Supreme court decision is that the state convention held after the April primaries was illegal," he said. "Consequently it could not legally nominate electors. Electors may be nominated by a state convention, or by a meeting of the state committee. Efforts have been made to call such a meeting, but up to the present they have been unsuccessful.

"However, there is no possibility of the electoral ticket for Illinois being jeopardized. I do not think the adjourned meeting of the state convention will be held Tuesday because it is not yet known who have been nominated. But after the results of the primary are definitely known every Republican element in the state will be striving for harmony and a settlement of the electoral ticket question will be speedily accomplished."

Frank L. Smith, chairman both of the old and the new state committees, took no action during the day to call a meeting of either body. His friends insisted that there was still plenty of time to act, and that it was inadvisable to do so before it was definitely decided who the Republican candidates in the state are.

CONVENTION IS DELAYED.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 18.—The Republican state convention, which was to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21, because the Supreme court primary law decision had invalidated the work of that held in May, has been postponed indefinitely.

Announcement of the postponement was made by Congressman Rodenberg, chairman, at East St. Louis today. There is some talk that the convention may be called on the 28th, and the date may be set Tuesday, when the convention will assemble only to receive the notice of postponement and probably to fix a date.

The reason for the delay is the difficulty in obtaining accurate returns from the statewide primary of last Wednesday. Whenever it meets it will adopt a platform.

It is understood that the question of the state platform will be submitted to the candidates and they will have a share in its drafting.

EX-BANDMASTER IN NAVY FIGHTS TO RECOVER WIFE

Charges that his father-in-law, Paul Monaco, 840 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, threatened to kill him were made yesterday by Frank Nuzzo, former bandmaster at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, who is seeking to have Judge McGoorty in the Circuit court restore his wife, Anna Monaco Nuzzo, 17, to him. Nuzzo complains that Monaco, a salesman for the Puhl-Webb Coffee company, is forcibly detaining his wife from returning to his home, 633 South Laflin street.

Mrs. Nuzzo testified she was not being forcibly detained by her father and had liberty to go to her husband if she desired. She expressed the wish to remain at her father's home.

Judge McGoorty then intimated that he would dismiss the habeas corpus petition on the strength of the wife's testimony. Attorney Mary Belle Spencer, representing Nuzzo, charged the girl had been intimidated. A letter written by the wife to her husband, warning him to remain away from the Monaco home or the father would kill them both, was produced. Judge McGoorty postponed the case until Thursday.

TRIO ARRESTED; BEER SEIZED IN GRAND PACIFIC

Three men were arrested and five barrels of beer seized in the bar of the old Grand Pacific hotel at West Jackson boulevard and South Clark street late yesterday by prohibition agents. Those arrested were Edward Kelly, owner, and John Lewis and Howard Johnson, waiters.

Six agents armed with a warrant searched the place. They said a score of customers were lined up at the bar drinking when they entered. The customers were not taken.

The hotel was closed several months ago and preparations made to raze the building. According to prohibition agents, hundreds of requests to stop the sale of liquor there have been received.

Seize Fanatic Trying to Enter Garrity's Office

An elderly man who declares himself "the adopted son of God," is being held at the detective bureau for observation. He is Andrew Latchion, a Persian, 51 West Chestnut street. He has been in the United States fifteen years, and has his first citizenship papers.

He was arrested by Detective Sergeants Egan and Thorpe yesterday afternoon when he attempted to enter Chief Garrity's office. He said some unintelligible things about anarchists and bombs, and the police questioned him at length.

"This is just the kind of man likely to plant bombs," said Egan. Chief Garrity was unaware of the episode until later.

UNT NEW CLEWS LINKING APACHES TO RHODES CASE

Mrs. Gladys Virginia Jacobson and three other witnesses yesterday failed to identify any of the "Lovers' Lane bunches" as the bandits who operated on the Prairie road district west of Evanston, but the state's attorney's office is still searching for new evidence in the hope one or two of the suspects may yet be linked with the murder of Edward B. Rhodes, wealthy south side dry goods merchant.

Mrs. Jacobson, who was in the automobile with Rhodes when he was shot on the night of Aug. 30, and who has declared that she could identify the slayer if she should see him again, told Assistant State's Attorney John M. Lowery that two suspects bore striking resemblances to the murderer, but she was not sure enough so to testify.

"I know the mental torture I endured when I was under suspicion," she said, "and I would not wis hto subject an innocent man to a like ordeal."

Three More View Band.

Last night three Evanston men who were held up on the Prairie road the night before Rhodes was killed also viewed the prisoners, but failed to identify them. Two of the Evanston men were Thomas Airth, of 1427 Sherman street, and D. H. Mowry, of 1246 Hinman street, who were robbed by two men at Prairie road and Dempster

CUDAHY EXPORT CHIEF, WOUNDED IN ACTION, MADE ARMY CAPTAIN

William A. Murphy, manager of the export department of the Cudahy Packing company received notice yesterday that he had been appointed a captain of infantry in the regular army and assigned to the 51st infantry of the 6th division at Camp Grant. His commission is retroactive to July 1, 1920. Capt. Murphy is a graduate of the first officers' training school at Fort Sheridan and was wounded in action in the Toul sector early in 1918. He is 35 and lives at 4817 Washington boulevard.

of the bandits for nearly fifteen minutes and was sure he was not among the suspects. The third witness was Walter Buek of 1822 Elmwood street, Evanston, who was robbed at Prairie road and Emerson street.

Three more members of the Apache gang were rounded up during the day, making a total of eight being held. Two of the new prisoners are Joseph Ambrose, 1752 Rascher avenue, and August "Buddie" Prassel, 4126 Monticello avenue.

Apache Pistol Is Clew.

Mr. Lowery learned that Rudolph Schwartz, one of the suspects, borrowed a .32 calibre gun on the night of the Rhodes murder. It was with this type of revolver that Rhodes was slain. Schwartz also wore a gray cap such as Mrs. Jacobson said was worn by the slayer.

The man who loaned Schwartz the revolver is being held as the eighth member of the band. His name is said to be Haensel.

"We are going right along in our investigation of the Rhodes case," said Mr. Lowery. "We have enough of these men to convict them anyway and shall hold them pending the unearthing of new evidence."

ADDRESS B O 519, TRIBUNE

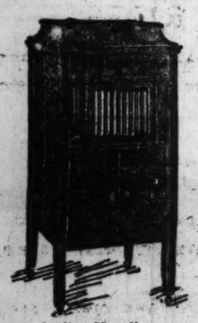
"It remained for the Aeolian Company to produce a Phonograph that is a true Musical Instrument"

The Aeolian Vocalion

The Only Phonograph with an Artistic and Satisfactory Tone Control—

The GRADUOLA

GRADUALLY, tenderly, toward the end of the verse, the lovely voice melted away as if the singer, having lulled her little one to sleep, was moving slowly out of the room. Fascinated, almost doubting that so flexible a tone could come from a phonograph, I noticed that Marjorie, by simply moving the Graduola back and forth, was actually playing the record herself; accenting a note here, modulating a phrase there, making of this remarkable phonograph a responsive medium for the expression of her own musical thought."



Aeolian-Vocalion
Style 430
Price, $165
Convenient monthly terms

The feature or device which makes the Aeolian-Vocalion a true musical instrument, and which was largely responsible for The Aeolian Company's finally entering the field of phonograph manufacture, is the Graduola, the first and only simple and practical method of phonograph tone-control.

Playing the Phonograph

PEOPLE are so accustomed to hearing the phonograph simply play itself, that it is not always easy to picture someone playing it. And it is practically impossible to realize the fascination of doing so without actual experience.

Yet the immense advantage the Graduola gives to the Aeolian-Vocalion is obvious.

Artists never sing twice with exactly the same feeling. Without changing their individual conceptions of their songs and compositions, they vary their interpretations in detail.

This is exactly what anyone can do by using the Graduola. Without actually changing the interpretations (tempo and phrasing always remaining the same) it can be varied in tone color, thus giving it a freshness and spontaneity which the ordinary phonograph performance never possesses.

And it is the fact that even when the player knows nothing of music, these changes sound well and add to the musical result, the explanation being that the arbitrary elements of interpretation, namely:—tempo, phrasing, and basic expression are unaffected by the Graduola.

The Sum Total of Phonograph Satisfaction

Though the Aeolian-Vocalion has been upon the market only about three years, it is today recognized as the leading instrument of its type, not only in this country but also abroad.

This is because the Vocalion offers everything possessed by the best phonographs of ordinary type, and adds its own exclusive and important advantages as well.

For example:—You may search the market over and you will hear no phonograph with so rich, mellow and beautiful a tone; you will see no phonograph that reflects such genuine art in the simple elegance of its cases; and you will find no phonograph that allows you the great privilege of taking an active part in the playing of its records.

Mandel Brothers invite everyone interested in phonographs or in music to visit the Aeolian-Vocalion Salons, ninth floor. You may hear the Vocalion play, for like other phonographs, it plays itself when desired. And then, if you wish, you may take the Graduola in your hands and possibly for the first time in your life experience the fascination and thrill of expressing your own music instincts in beautiful musical tones.

VOCALION PRICES

Conventional Models from $60—with Graduola from $165. Period Styles from $360. Convenient Terms.

PAY ROLL MAN AND SLEUTH HELD UP; LOSE $2,600

Three payroll bandits stepped from a motor car in front of the Stromberg Electric company's factory at 223 West Erie street yesterday morning and robbed Ross Cornelison, paymaster of the company, of a satchel containing $2,600 after threatening him with revolvers.

ROSS CORNELISON.

The paymaster was accompanied by Frederick O. Hegel, an operative of a private detective agency. While the robbers' motor car was fading in the distance Hegel jumped into a passing taxicab and gave chase. The taxicab broke down after five blocks and the chase was abandoned.

The money had been drawn from the Standard Trust and Savings bank, 105 West Monroe street. The paymaster had stepped out of the cab and was turning into the company's door when a man ordered him to "stick 'em up.' He did.

"You, too—and do it quick," was the command to Hegel. The detective raised his hands and his gun was taken from his hip pocket. Then two men ran across the street, picked up the bag containing the money, and all three robbers departed.

Two daylight robbers held up Anton Sczywski, 2336 Altgeld street, and robbed him of $25.

Three colored members of an alleged ring of automobile thieves were taken into custody yesterday morning by Detective Sergeants Sweeney, Revere, and McDonald of the automobile squad. The prisoners confessed to stealing two automobiles valued at $6,000 each from the Rienzi garage at 534 Diversey parkway on the night of Aug. 7.

Miss Calkins' father, an official of the Methodist Episcopal church, is now lecturing in the orient.

MISS LOIS GRANT.

MISS HELEN CALKINS.

According to present plans, Miss Grant and her chum will spend most of the time in a cottage in India, while Mrs. Calkins accompanies her husband on his lecture tours through country.

From time to time the young women will make trips to various parts of the orient in connection with their geological and other studies, which they purpose to continue.

AIR MAIL WAR MAY DEPLETE MAYWOOD PURSE

Now a spite war has arisen in Maywood between Chief of Police Charles Sweeney and Paul Dumas, chief mechanic in charge of the government air mail station at South First avenue and West Roosevelt road.

"He is persecuting our drivers," said Dumas yesterday.

"I am not," answered the chief.

And the entire village has become excited over the question.

Arrests Mail Drivers.

"This chief of police had interfered with the air mail service on numerous occasions by unjustified arrest of the drivers of the truck that carries the mail to and from the airplanes," said Dumas yesterday.

The chief answered.

"These drivers speed through the village streets at thirty miles an hour or more," he said. "They ignore the ordinance which calls for lights on all vehicles. We have not made wholesale arrests. We have only arrested three men and one of these was discharged because of the character of the service in which the offender was engaged."

Threatens to Move Business.

"Our repair work which goes to Maywood garages and the money spent by the fifty men employed at the field and who are forced to live in Maywood amounts to more than $10,000 a week," Dumas said. "We handle the upkeep of ten or more airplanes out here and as many motor cars. We are just preparing to erect a new hangar at the cost of $20,000. All of the pilots live in Maywood.

"If he doesn't stop persecuting us we will take our business out of the town."

The chief of police blinked his eyes and answered:

"My job is to enforce the law. If these men keep on breaking it I will keep on arresting them."

Woman's Press Receiver Makes Report; Discharged

Jacob Goldman presented a final report for the Woman's Press receivership yesterday and was discharged by Judge John P. McGoorty of the Circuit court. Co-defendants with the Woman's Press are the Press Publishing and Printing company and Ferd E. Fisher and Mary Delany Fisher, owners of the publication. The discharge of the receiver ends two months of litigation in which the Library Bureau and the Western Newspaper Union filed petitions in court in an endeavor to liquidate debts owned by the Fishers. The receiver's report states the property is $3,287. The liabilities were paid in full, Mrs. Fisher asserts.

ALLIES OWE U. S. 12 BILLIONS; ASK FOR NEW LOANS

Payments to Retire Bonds Issued During War.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The allied governments will owe the United States nearly $12,000,000,000 for loans made to them during the war by the time they are scheduled to resume interest payments in 1922.

Negotiations are still in progress between Great Britain, France, and the other allies on the one hand and the United States treasury on the other in regard to placing the loans on a new basis with interest due, but unpaid, included in the principal.

Extent of Loans.

The United States loaned a total of $9,534,622,043 to nations at war with Germany, distributed as follows:

Debtor.	Loaned.	Repaid.
Great Britain	$4,277,000,000	$64,164,007
France	2,967,477,800	12,147,000
Italy	1,031,238,986	.....
Belgium	238,745,000	10,000
Russia	187,729,750	.....
Czecho-Slovakia	60,524,041	.....
Serbia	26,750,465	695,000
Roumania	25,000,000	1,794,190
Cuba	10,000,000	500,000
Greece	10,000,000	.....
Liberia	26,000	.....

Cuba Paying Interest.

By virtue of the accounts repaid, the total outstanding principal of the loans is now $9,455,401,528. Cuba is paying its interest regularly. Russia paid interest up to Nov. 15, 1917. The other debtors paid interest in full up to the spring of 1919, when they ceased to pay on account of the unsettled exchange situation and sought a three years' suspension of interest payments, now the subject of the negotiations with the treasury department. The debtor nations undertake to pay in full eventually both the principal and the interest arrears, compounded semi-annually.

Amount of Interest.

The interest accruing between April, 1919, and May, 1920, totaled $463,215,613, distributed as follows:

	Paid.
Great Britain	$211,528,890	$1,200,333
France	139,904,272	1,810,441
Italy	79,595,569	.....
Belgium	16,822,078	.....
Russia	9,539,365	.....
Czecho-Slovakia	2,515,004	.....
Serbia	1,340,606	.....
Roumania	1,165,259	.....
Cuba	500,686	251,360
Greece	144,808	.....
Liberia	969	.....

Rate of 5 Per Cent.

Up till May 15, 1918, the various loans bore interest at varying rates per cent, but on that date, by arrangement with the debtor nations a uniform rate of 5 per cent was fixed for all loans.

Interest becomes due every six months, two-thirds being payable on May 15 and Nov. 15 respectively and the remaining one-third on April 15 and Oct. 15. This arrangement gives the debtor governments greater freedom, both as to time and the number of securities or amount of exchange to be purchased, while it enables the United States government to retire on a more even basis a certain number of short term treasury certificates of indebtedness, thereby avoiding in both instances, an undue disturbance of the money market.

The proceeds of the payments of interest and principal by the allied nations will be employed by the treasury department to retire Liberty and Victory bonds. The total amount of the loans, if paid in full, with interest, will enable the treasury to retire approximately half the national debt created by the war.

WHY DESIRABLE HOME SITES ARE THE BEST AND MOST PROFITABLE INVESTMENT IN REAL ESTATE TODAY

Residence property has not increased in value in the past five years. During the same period building material, labor, food, clothing, manufacturing and practically every commodity has advanced 100% and higher. The purchasing power of the dollar is only one-half of what it was five years ago. When you buy land at prices it sold for five years ago you are actually paying for it only 50c on the dollar, as compared with the value of other commodities. This condition cannot continue, as land is the basis of all value. Never in the history of Chicago has there been such a shortage of homes as there is today. This, coupled with the large increase in population of the city every year, demands the erection of thousands of homes. They are going to be built, irrespective of prevailing conditions, and well located property for home sites is due for a large increase in value. Kensington Park property offers a splendid opportunity for profitable investment. Take advantage of it today and secure one of these beautiful home sites, 40x124, as low as $575.00 (less than $15.00 a foot), $100.00 cash. Balance in easy monthly payments, $12.00 to $15.00.

People Who Live in the Great Southern District of Chicago, Come Out to Kensington Park Today

You know the value of property in this district, its advantages as a home section, its convenience to the large industries of the South Side, and you cannot afford not to take advantage of this opportunity to purchase one of these home lots with your savings even if you do not intend to build in the near future.

U.S. POPULATION OVER 105 MILLION, EXPERTS FIGURE

Census Bureau Calls Gain 15 Per Cent.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The total population of the United States, exclusive of outlying possessions, will be found to be almost 105,000,000, according to unofficial estimates by statisticians of the census bureau.

This will mean an increase of 13,000,000 over 1910, when the population was 91,972,266. The estimate for the 1920 census was made on the basis of an arbitrary increase of 15 per cent.

Census officials believe the United States, as a whole, will not show a greater percentage of increase than that. The population figures for the state of California, at 3,426,536, however, show an increase of 1,048,987, or 44 per cent.

Final Figures Due Much Later.

From compilations of state totals announced thus far, and from a survey of numerous county and city totals, a 15 per cent increase is regarded by census bureau officials as the best available estimate, although the final and correct figures will not be ready to be given out before Thanksgiving, if then. This represents the smallest population increase in the history of the United States, due almost entirely to the world war. In 1800 the population increased 35.1 per cent over the population for 1790. From that time until the census of 1860 the gain exceeded 30 per cent every ten years.

Rate of Increase Drops.

In 1870, the increase dropped to 26.6 per cent. Since that time it has declined steadily until the 1910. Then the gain was 21 per cent, a slight increase over the 20.7 per cent gain for 1900.

It is not believed that the smaller increase in population will be found to be chargeable in any way to race suicide in the United States. During the years 1901 to 1910 inclusive, immigration into the United States was 8,795,387 persons, while immigration between 1911 and 1920, all figures being for fiscal years ending June 30, was only 3,537,366.

This represents a decrease in immigration of 2,868,021. This loss in immigration would account for approximately three of the total of 6 per cent loss in increase of population that officials believe will be shown by the final figures.

Many Quitting America.

The balance of the difference between the increase of 21 per cent for 1910 and the estimated 15 per cent increase for 1920 probably will be accounted for by an enormous increase in emigration. For instance, in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, immigration was 621,576, but emigration for the same year was 428,062.

During some of the years of the war, emigration was greater than immigration. In fact, the greatest emigration known in the history of the United States occurred during the years 1910 to 1920.

Thus, it is believed, statisticians will be able to show that the percentage of increase of children in proportion to population was as great in the years 1910 to 1920 as it ever was.

May Affect Congress.

Incidentally, if the population is found to be in the neighborhood of 105,168,196, it will mean that the new basis for apportionment for members of the house of representatives will be 211,145 unless the membership of the house is increased beyond the present mark of 435 members. The present basis of apportionment is one member for each 211,433.

A new basis of apportionment will mean a change in the representation of a number of state delegations, as well as changes in the electoral vote of the same states and changes in their representation at political conventions. These changes will not be effective this year.

WITNESSES IN OUTLAW STRIKE TRIAL VANISH

Charges that important government witnesses in the prosecution of Fred C. Lipke, accused by federal authorities of violating the Lever law in connection with the railroad "outlaw" strike, had been intimidated and kidnaped were made yesterday by Assistant District Attorney John J. Kelly. He asked for the arrest of four suspects.

Lipke was arrested several days ago by United States officials after he had been taken in custody by the police on a charge of assaulting Stephen Howard, 2102 Jackson boulevard, and Helmer Johnson, both union employés who had been moving freight cars.

The government intervened on the grounds that Lipke and his companions were interfering with the transportation of the necessities of life.

When Lipke was arraigned before Commissioner Mason yesterday, Johnson was the only witness to appear out of six subpœnaed.

"I know that the men have been intimidated and threatened with bodily injury unless they promise not to testify," Mr. Kelly declared, "and I am going to have the guilty parties arrested. I believe that Howard has been kidnaped."

A letter was introduced purporting to have come from Howard in which he retracted his former statements and denied that Lipke was his assailant.

DR. W. B. NORTON TO STAY IN INDIA ANOTHER YEAR

Dr. W. B. Norton, field representative of the interchurch world movement and former religious editor of THE TRIBUNE, has notified his Chicago friends of his intention to remain in India another season, planning to return to the United States about July 1, 1921.

"We have visited Japan, Corea, China, the Philippines, the Straits Settlements and India," he writes. "We will probably sail from Bombay, India, about April 1, 1921, if possible make a stop over at Port Said, a side trip to Palestine, and then go to Venice, working our way to London by way of Paris."

At the time of writing, Dr. Norton was at Nainia Tal, in the Himalayas, where he went May 17 following an accident in which he was injured while driving through a jungle pass in an automobile. Dr. Norton adds that he will probably be permanently slightly lame. He reports himself in good heath otherwise.

Dr. Norton's address until April 1 will be in care of the Rev. S. W. Clemes (his son-in-law), M. E. Mission, Muttra, U. P., India.

1 KILLED, 3 HURT, AS DEATH JOINS CABARET PARTY

A merry little party taking its way from cabaret to cabaret came to a sudden end at Seventy-fifth and State streets in the early hours yesterday, when death swooped down upon it.

The victim was Mrs. Frances Smith of Detroit, a divorcee, who lived at the New Calumet hotel, 1219 East Seventy-fifth street. She was a waitress.

The last cabaret visited was Ryan's, at Seventy-third street and South Chicago avenue. The taxicab, piloted by Oscar Oliver of 7107 Vincennes avenue, in trying to get out of the way of a street car, crashed into a trolley pole. Mrs. Smith was thrown out and killed. Oliver sustained a fractured skull, a fractured arm, and injuries to his spine. He is at the Auburn Park hospital.

The other occupants of the cab, Walter J. McGrath, 1508 East Eighty-seventh street, and James Moore, 5927 South Green street, were not so badly injured, though McGrath was also taken to the hospital. McGrath and Moore are chauffeurs. The men said they did not know who the dead woman was, but knew her as "Mrs. Schwartz." The taxicab was demolished.

LABORER FOUND DEAD FROM GAS.

Charles Nork, 50 years old, Swedish building laborer, was found dead in his room at 803 North La Salle street. Gas was escaping from two open jets. It is not known whether death was due to an accident or otherwise.

POSEN'S MAYOR QUITS HOSPITAL; U. S. SEEKS HIM

Deputy marshals were ordered yesterday to keep a sharp lookout for Ladislaw Haymen, police magistrate and mayor of Posen, who is wanted by the federal authorities on a charge of violating the prohibition laws. A warrant for Haymen was issued last Tuesday, but was not served because the mayor was in St. Francis hospital. Yesterday when Deputy Marshal Hennebry arrived at the hospital Haymen had disappeared.

Haymen, who gained much notoriety because of his treatment of motorists, is charged with selling ten cases of whisky to the manager of the Roamer inn. The whisky had been seized by police officers in a raid.

She Wants Treatment Americans Give Wives

"He does not treat me like American men treat their wives," was the complaint Mrs. Camille Dynkowski, wife of Kazimir Dynkowski, storekeeper at 2903 Milwaukee avenue, made of her husband to Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday. She charged him with the nonsupport of herself and their two children, Chester and Virginia. She said he worked eighteen hours a day in the store and expected her to do the same until his health broke down, when he left.

Dynkowski laid the trouble to the failure of his health, and the judge continued the case to see if a reconciliation could not be effected.

Chicago	120	000	330—9
Philadelphia	000	312	010—7

Two base hits—Paskert, Marriott, R. Miller, Wheeler. Home runs—Martin, Williams. Struck out—Tyler, 1; Meadows, 2; Betts, 1. Bases on balls—Martin, 1; Meadows, 1; Betts, 1. Double play—O'Farrell, Terry, Deal. Hits—Tyler, 10 in six innings; Betts, 11 in six two-thirds; Smith, 1 in one and one-third. Winning pitcher, Martin. Losing pitcher, Smith. Passed ball—O'Farrell, 1; Wheeler, 2. Time—1:57. Umpires—Klem and Rigler.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—When a pitcher arises and hoists home runs into the bleachers, what chance have the hostile of defeating the persevering Cubs? The answer is—none.

SPEED MARTIN.

This baseball miracle was accomplished this afternoon and the Cubs wound up their pleasant little stay in these parts with three victories. Today's score: Cubs, 9; Phillies, 7.

The sparkling feature of this limber contest came in the eighth portion after the Cubs seemed in for a sound trimming. Speed Martin was the hero of the opposition.

Drives Ball Into Bleachers.

The Cubs were trailing along with the score tied, when O'Farrell got to second on Meusel's muff. Two persons had been removed when Mariott stepped to the plate and drew a base on balls. Martin walked into the box and plunked the first ball pitched amongst the cash customers in the left field bleachers, naturally counting three runs. The Phils managed to shove over one in their half, but Martin tightened up and removed them without further damage.

The game was not a contest of science and skill—it was loose as ashes, both sides committing atrocious errors. Tyler was the original Cub pitcher, but all he had was his flash teeth and the proverbial prayer. Nine hits and six runs were made during his reign of six innings.

Meadows Treated Roughly.

The bespectacled Meadows, who started for the Phillies, found the ocean rough. Six of the Cubs' runs were batted and errored around during the six and two-thirds he toiled. Smith worked the glad eighth and a person entitled Betts, did the flinging in the ninth. He seemed to have something.

Singles by Terry and Merkle and Williams' poor return to the infield, fetched one for the Cubs in the first. Paskert and O'Farrell singled, Deal sacrificed and Tyler singled for two more in the second, then the Cubs stuck.

In the seventh Paskert doubled and two were out when Mariott did likewise. Tyler walked and Twombly ran for him after two passed balls scored Mariott. Singles by Flack and Terry put Twombly over.

Phillies Pound Tyler.

In the meantime the Phillies also had made six runs by hitting Tyler, one error by Terry assisted them, but the other misplays had no part in the scoring. Then came the eighth in the manner already related.

THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT

In the Wake of the News

MARKET LETTER.

"WHAT chance has a fellow against this game?" remarked an amateur speculator on Thursday, following the bomb explosion in Wall street. "Here we've been hung up with stocks since the break of last November and as soon as they start to go up some anarchist tries to blow up the stock exchange."

Despite this wail, the market on the whole acted better than at any time during the mild recovery which has been taking place for the last few weeks. Signs of easier money, rather than easier money itself, except on call, was the moving impulse, along with the impression of a Republican victory in November. Perhaps some readers of this column do not know what call money is. You borrow from your bank or broker and must pay back whenever he asks for it. He always asks when you haven't it. Then you're in a fine fix and have to sell your shirt and collar buttons for what they will bring second hand.

The Wake frequently has called attention to the strong position of the Standard Oils. Indiana last week moved, as we predicted, from $665 per share to $722 per share. We still think the chap who buys 1,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey at $660 per share for a long pull will realize a handsome profit.

We continue favorable to the oils, except castor, and think the rails must share any sustained upward movement, although nursing a long standing prejudice against common carriers.

Along Came Ruth.

Dear Wake: Owner Harry Frazee of the Red Sox alibied himself for selling Ruth to New York by saying it was on account of Babe's "ego." We don't know just what Frazee meant, but it must be something easy to look at, judging by the way other club owners are enlarging their parks to accommodate those who want to see it.

If the right man does not answer,

About this nice man and his dog
You've "told the world aloud,"
Now all the nice men who have dogs
Are trying hard to crowd.
But any man with good red blood
Would surely not get riled;
Perhaps the answer is that he
Has both a wife and child.

[A reader of The Wake complained that the present conductor never referred to or told anything about his family. In response, here is little Miss Wake's first school composition, entitled "The Opening Day of School"]:

It was the 13th day of September when George started his first day in 4th Grade.

He was cleaning up his shirt and tieing his tie when George's mother, Mrs. Ray, came in and said "For heaven's sake George its 15 minutes to nine and school starts at nine o'clock."

George had to hurry but he got there. And on his way, he met his school chum Jack. Jack patted him on the back and said "Well, George did you have a good vacation."

"You bet I did, I went swimming every day," said George.

George got to school and saw his friend Harry. George called and said, "I'll join you in a game of ball."

"Alright come on George," Harry called.

"Oh dear!" said George, "the bell is ringing."

"Good morning, Miss Shaw," said George.

"Good morning George," said the teacher.

Oh! goodie, we got out at ten o'clock today. I like our teacher real well, don't you Jack?

WHO'LL WIN RAG IN BAN'S LEAGUE? FANS ARE ASKING

Chicago's three straight victories over New York threw the American league pennant race into a three cornered jam again, with little to choose among the contenders. Although in third place the Yankees have an even chance to win out for two reasons. They are only two games behind the leading Indians and have comparatively soft going the rest of the way, while Cleveland and the White Sox have to play a series of three games in which they may cut each other's throats to the advantage of the easterners.

The Indians have the greater number of games left to play, as there are fourteen left on their schedule. Three of these are with Boston, while the Yankees are playing St. Louis and the White Sox are hooked up with the Athletics today, tomorrow and Tuesday.

Easy Going for Yanks.

Following the east-west contest, the Yankees will have the easiest going. They will have four games to play with Washington and three with Philadelphia, both second division teams. While Huggins' men are enjoying that menu, the White Sox and Indians will be pitted against each other in three games this week, and whatever the outcome of that series the Yankees ought to profit, because they will be up against comparatively easy marks.

When they get through with each other the Sox and Indians still will have sturdy antagonists in the St. Louis Browns. Cleveland has to play four games against St. Louis and Chicago is booked for three in the Mound City. Cleveland has four games left to play with Detroit and the Sox have one game scheduled with the Tigers, in addition to another contest which has not been played off and may not be, on account of a disagreement between the Chicago and Detroit club owners.

Squabble Over Detroit Game.

This complicates the problem. The White Sox officials assert that it was agreed to play the postponed game with Detroit on an open date here in June, but that the Tigers disregarded the agreement and went to St. Louis instead. Whether or not the south side team intends to claim the game by forfeit or to refuse to play it off remains a secret, as the officials are noncommittal.

Unless one of the three teams in the tangle makes a clean sweep of its remaining games the pennant is likely to hang in the balance until the final series of the season.

The Sox are a game and a half behind Cleveland and half a game ahead of New York, which is within two games of the leaders.

Nearly a Cinch for Robins.

Brooklyn has the National league pennant as good as won. The Robins are five games ahead of their nearest rivals and have only nine more to play. New York still has a possible thirteen games on the books, including two postponed games in Boston, for which there are open dates if the club owners care to use them. Cincinnati still can play sixteen games and by winning all of them compel the Robins to win eight of their nine to stay in the lead. But the Reds have nine games to play with Pittsburgh, and it is doubtful if all of them can be worked off in the remaining days of the race, as these nine include four postponed games.

Which teams will finish first, second, and third in the American, and National leagues?

Where Asked.

The Answers.

Sidney Lipschultz, 2622 Potomac avenue, claim agent—I think Cleveland and Brooklyn will win the pennant in their respective leagues. In the American league the White Sox will finish second, and the New York Yanks third.

The finish of the season in the National league will probably find the Giants in second place, and Cincinnati holding down third place.

George Pelton, 5133 Dorchester, sales correspondent—I have a hunch that the major league teams will close the season in the order named: American: Cleveland, White Sox, and New York. In the National: Cincinnati, Brooklyn, and New York.

James Glorney, 1504 Roscoe street, pressman—It does not look like we will see a world's series in Chicago this fall. It looks to me like Cleveland Sox, and the Yanks in the junior league, and Brooklyn, the Giants, and Cincinnati in the National, in the order named. New York may edge the White Sox out of second place, but I doubt it.

T. H. Cleveland, 4227 Grand boulevard, credit man—If Cleveland and Brooklyn play .666 ball until the end of the season they will cop the bunting. The Sox will end up in second place, and Babe Ruth in third place. Cincinnati will most likely finish second, and the Giants third. It is possible New York may finish in second place.

M. J. Foyer, 4540 North Central Park avenue, salesman—When the curtain falls on the baseball season we probably will be gazing at Cleveland and Brooklyn battling for the world's championship, with Chicago in second place, and New York resting at the third station. In the National league, New York probably will nose out Cincinnati.

NEARLY BLINDED, DE PALMA DRIVES TO TWO RECORDS

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Ralph De Palma, driving a Ballot Special, tonight holds two new world motor records for a circular track. He covered the ten miles at the fair grounds today in 7:47¼, the old record being 7:56, and the twenty mile run in 16:25, bettering Bob Burman's Bakersfield, Cal., time by twenty-five seconds.

De Palma drove all but the first three laps of the twenty mile event with a piece of glass in his eye. A cinder broke the lens of his goggles, imbedding the glass in his eye. An ambulance rushed him to the hospital after the new record had been established. The glass was removed, and De Palma went after the one mile track record set by Barney Oldfield at :45. He made the course in :45¼.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Lambasting four Yankee pitchers all over Cook county yesterday, the White Sox hammered themselves back into second place in the pennant scramble by beating New York, 15 to 9, in the final of the season's series. And Babe Ruth went homerunless for the third consecutive day.

Eddie Cicotte, who had been sentenced to a second edition of spring training to get himself in shape, was thrust into the most crucial game of the crucial series and delivered as good a game as could have been expected under the circumstances.

Cicotte was steadied at the start by three miraculous plays pulled by Eddie Collins, Risberg and Jackson in the first inning and he was given a lead of eight runs in two innings during which the Gleason tribe drove Bob Shawkey, New York's pitching ace, off the slab with one down in the secon dround and sent George Mogridge limping to the shower bath before the side was out in that glorious spasm.

Ruth Gets Pass In First.

With those eight runs as a margin to work on, Cicotte had a soft job and he pitched to T. Babe Ruth with complete nonchalance every time the slugger came up. Cicotte gave Ruth one base on balls which was intentional in the first inning. Babe arrived with two out and nobody on and Cicotte tried to make him hit bad ones but failed.

The other four times Ruth faced Cicotte Eddie made him hit the ball or strike out, and he whiffed one of the four times. It wasn't a called strike, either, but a full swing at the pill that set Ruth down in the fifth on strikes. The ball had so much on it that Schalk muffed it and had to throw to first to make the out. Ruth's lone single came in the ninth inning and contributed to the three runs scored in that round after the game had become a joke.

Cicotte Gets Great Support.

The battle was won in the first inning. Peck opened on Cicotte with a line fly over second. Eddie Collins made a diving catch of it on the fly. Pipp bounded one over Cicotte's head and it looked safe enough, but Risberg dashed behind the slab and fired the ball to first in time for the out. Ruth wouldn't touch anything Cicotte handed him and walked. Pratt soaked a single to right. Meusel pulled a liner into left which sailed into the fringe of society behind Jackson. Joe leaped in the air, speared the ball, and fell into the throng, but held the ball aloft in his fist. That kind of support would hearten any pitcher.

Drive Shawkey to Shower.

Better than that was the home half of the first, in which the Sox clouted Shawkey for two singles and two doubles into the left field crowd good for two runs. They made three more singles off Shawkey with one out in the second. Then Mogridge tried to stop them. A single and two doubles were made off him, while one Sox was being retired, and then McGraw was rushed to the rescue. He stopped that attack and lasted until the fourth, then blew up, and had to give way to Jack Quinn, who was unable to retire the side until five more runs had been scored.

Quinn stuck the game out, although batted hard, and the contest degenerated into a tryout for Yankee youngsters, of whom four were inserted into the lineup before the finish.

Sox Pole Twenty-one Bingles.

The Gleasons rang up a total of twenty-one base hits off their four victims and a lot of them were hits into the crowd. Weaver and Felsch led with four hits apiece. All of Buck's were singles, but one of Hap's was a double and another was a three base knock over Ruth's head to the score board. John Collins made three straight two baggers and Schalk pummeled out three hits, including a double.

1919 World Series Scandal Revived

—X—X—

FAN SEEKS ANSWER TO RUMORS

THE appended letter, received yesterday, comes from Fred M. Loomis, one of Chicago's most enthusiastic baseball followers and a personal friend of several members of the White Sox club. Mr. Loomis' home is at 4840 South Michigan avenue and his office is in the First National Bank building. For the last twenty-five years he has been a close friend and associate of Fred Sterling, state treasurer and candidate for lieutenant governor. He also has been closely associated for years with Charles Ringling of the Ringling Brothers circus. He asks questions which are upon the lips of nearly every White Sox fan. Here is the letter:

"Where There's Smoke, Etc."

Widespread circulatich has been given to reports from various sources that the world series of last fall between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds was deliberately and intentionally lost through an alleged consptracy between certain unnamed members of the Chicago White Sox team and certain gamblers.

I have been startled by these rumors and was inclined in the first place to give no credence to these reports, but where there is so much smoke there must be some fire.

It is generally accepted among the fans of the country that Hal Chase and Lee Magee are refused further recognition as ball players because of the alleged betting which they did on games.

Sport of High Standard.

Up to this time baseball has been accepted by the public as the one clean sport above reproach in every particular and engaged in by men, both owners and players, whose honesty and integrity have been beyond suspicion or reproach.

At this time, therefore, it occurs to me, and I know it likewise appears to others in the same light, that the game must be cleaned up and it must be cleaned up at once. It is immaterial how this is done, whether by the newspaper men or by the owners of the ball clubs, or by a committee of players themselves, or by a committee of citizens, but no matter who does it, it must be done if baseball is going to survive.

Investigation Called For.

An investigation might disclose that there is absolutely nothing to these reports. Therefore there is all the more reason why an investigation should be made because rumors of this nature place the game of baseball in a bad light and seriously reflect upon every ball player engaged in the game.

In justice, therefore, not only to the fans who pay their money to see games played honestly, but likewise in justice to the men who are honestly playing the game out on the field, prompt action should be taken to settle this question, having in mind not only to eliminate dishonest players, but one action should also be taken to surround the game with some protective policy that will assure every one that the gamblers cannot influence the decision of individual games or individual series.

Player Voices Complaint.

Only recently a friend of mine of unquestionable veracity told of talking to a player of a visiting team in which that player stated that it was shameful the way certain White Sox members were playing ball in that particular series. The player who made that statement stands among the highest in his profession, both as a player and as a man.

I believe the great body of fans throughout the United States feel as I do, that it makes no difference who is hit in this investigation, from the president of either major league down to the clubhouse boy in the smallest league in the country. The game must be protected. The public is interested in the game more than they are interested in the players. What is imperative is protection for baseball, and not protection for a few men who are engaged in baseball but who may be engaged in baseball, but who may be detriment of the business itself.

What's Going to Be Done?

I am intensely a lover of the game. I am constrained to write to inquire just what is going to be done to clarify this situation, which at the present time seems so badly confused.

There is a perfectly good grand jury located in this county. The citizens and taxpayers of Illinois are maintaining such an institution for the purpose of investigating any alleged infraction of the law.

Those who have in their possession the evidence of gambling last fall in the world series should come forward with it and present it in a manner that may give assurance to the whole country that justice will be done in this case where the confidence of the people seems to have been so flagrantly violated.

FRED M. LOOMIS.

PLAYERS ANXIOUS TO HAVE SCANDAL YARNS UNDERGO REAL 'AIRING'

FIRST rumors that there was something wrong with the world's series last fall between the White Sox and Reds were heard before the third game had been played, but at that time were confined to a few baseball officials and others on the inside.

Not until some weeks after the series was over did the rumors appear in print, and generally they were discredited. However, the bonus checks of eight players on the White Sox team were held back for many weeks last year awaiting evidence of a convincing nature.

President Comiskey spent much time and money in running down various clews, but apparently was unable to find any one who would come to the front with an affidavit that there was crookedness on the part of any players. Even well along in the winter Comiskey's investigators were working on the case, but since then it seems to have died out and so far as outward results show the White Sox officials have given up the task.

Cub Scandal Revived Rumors.

The recent story of a "fixed game" between the Cubs and Philadelphia teams brought forth talk of conspiracy between gamblers and ball players and naturally revived the discussion of last fall's world's series.

The discussion has become so widespread that a majority of the fans all over the country have heard the talk. Many of them openly express distrust of some of the players and the game and, undoubtedly their distrust is misplaced in many instances. Some even suspect most of the players on most of the teams of dishonesty, which of course is unjust.

During the last few months, a number of players, feeling the sting of this distrust of their faith and integrity, have expressed a desire to have the entire affair cleaned up so that the innocent ones may be restored to good standing and the guilty, if any, be expelled.

Baseball Officials Inactive.

However, no action has yet been taken by baseball officials.

Following the story of the Cubs-Phillies affair, Judge McDonald of Chicago came forth with a request for the local grand jury to investigate the rumors of crookedness in baseball and bring suspected parties into court. That was more than two weeks ago, and so far no one has voluntarily come forth with information nor has any one been drawn in with a court order. In the meantime the scandal talk continues among the fans.

NOTES

Philadelphia today.

The Sox-Yankee series ended twelve games to ten in New York's favor.

Leibold took Jackson's place in left in the eighth and plainly showed the effects of his long vacation, both in the field and at bat.

The new rule regarding runners hit by batted balls caught every one asleep except Manager Gleason and Capt. Collins, but the umpires quickly rectified their decision when reminded of the change. If Schalk's hit had struck J. Collins before Peck had a chance to field it, the old ruling would have been in effect. The new way prevents robbing a batsman of a clean base hit such as Schalk delivered in the fourth.

The crowd exceeded all expectations, and not enough policemen were on hand at the start to handle it. Before the game the jammed stands spilled their surplus onto the field and the few cops on hand managed to drive them back to the edges of the lot. Ropes were strung in the first inning and more policemen were called for. They arrived in time to prevent forfeiting the game for interference by the fans.

Misses His First Game Since Opening Day of '17

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Left Fielder Fred Bratchi of the Chattanooga club, who holds the Southern association record for consecutive games played, this afternoon missed his first contest since opening day, 1917. He was unable to play because of a sprained knee, sustained yesterday.

DODGERS RETAIN FEW OF LEAGUE CHAMPS OF 1916

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—It is only four years ago since a Brooklyn team represented the National league in the world series, but a glance over the personnel of the team shows many changes since then. Only eight of the twenty-two players eligible in the 1916 series remain.

Ed Pfeffer, who started one of the five games that year and finished two others; Rube Marquard, the only Brooklyn slab man called upon to start two games, and Sherrod Smith, who pitched the great fourteen inning battle against Babe Ruth, and lost the decision in what stands as the longest game of world's series history, are the three flingers who were with the Robins then and now.

Otto Miller is the lone catcher to survive. Ivan Olson is the only player left of the regular infielders of that year, but Jimmy Johnston, then a substitute outfielder, is now playing an infield position. In the outfield Zach Wheat and Hi Myers were regulars then as now.

Michigan Star, Back from Olympic Games, Disabled

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Carl Johnson, Michigan's great track star, returned today from the Olympic games. Unfortunately for Johnson, his track days are over for at least two years. In a triangular meet in which he participated in Paris he sprained his back and an ankle. The latter injury will preclude his entering into any track sports for at least two years, according to physicians.

Athletes representing Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. won both senior and intermediate sections of the All-Chicago Y. M. C. A. track and field meet at the Sears-Roebuck field yesterday. The Sears senior team piled up 67 points, while the intermediates aggregated 27 points. Wabash won the junior meet with 28 markers.

The senior meet was a walkaway for the Sears team, which placed men in every event. Division, who finished second, mustered only 17 points. The intermediate meet was more of a struggle, as the mail order house team was only six points ahead of Wabash until the relay race was run off. The junior meet was a clear victory for the Wabash aggregation, the only opposition being furnished by Larrabee's two man team. Fred Fagenholz was the scoring power of the north side Y's team. He made 15 of his team's 18 markers and was individual honor man of the juniors. Sapanos, the other member of the Larrabee team, scored the other three points.

Individual honors of the senior meet went to N. P. "Peanuts" Steinberg of the Sears-Roebuck squad, who hauled in 17 points. Lew Ball of the Wabash Y led the intermediate class scorers with 11 points.

Shields were awarded the winning teams, while medals were the reward of the place winners. James S. Andresen, physical director at the Sears Y, who was in charge of the meet, donated silver cups for the winners of individual honors in each meet. Summaries:

Dempsey Can See Board's Decision on Brennan Go

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—While Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns are keenly disappointed over the action of the boxing commission and the license committee in refusing to countenance a bout between the world's heavyweight champion and Bill Brennan at this time, they are not nursing any real grievance. They seem to appreciate the stand taken by the boxing solons in ruling against not only this match, which was scheduled to be held at Madison Square Garden, Oct. 1, but the Carpentier-Levinsky bout as well. They realize the commission is desirous of having its full machinery in smooth working order before permitting any bouts of such momentous importance.

Referee Noah Perry awarded Tendler a technical knockout.

MIDWAY GRID SQUAD LARGEST IN HISTORY; LACKS MINOR COACHES

CAPT. COLVILLE JACKSON.

COACH A. A. STAGG, University of Chicago football coach, is up against an unusual proposition. He has the biggest squad that ever reported for a Maroon team, nearly fifty men, and he has not an assistant coach to help him out. Earl Huntington, former Chicago end, will devote a few days this week to the varsity, but he must soon turn his attention to the freshmen, who will begin arriving in droves, leaving the "Old Man" without assistance.

Huntington replaces Pat Page as freshman coach. Pat did not have time to spend any time with the varsity in past seasons, for his time was consumed training the yearlings and on scouting trips over the week ends.

Coach Stagg likes to have as assistants men who formerly played under him, for they are familiar with his tactics and have always proved loyal workers for the Maroon cause. But there has been such a demand for former Chicago players as coaches throughout the country that nearly every available former star is directing another squad.

Steffen, Iddings, Mefford, Paine, Rademacher, and a host of others who have ably assisted on the Maroon coaching faculty in past seasons hold regular positions elsewhere.

TWO PREP SCHOOLS DEFEAT ALUMNI IN FOOTBALL OPENING

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Disregarding summery weather, local school teams took a running jump into autumn sport, playing two football games yesterday. The Deerfield High school eleven, with last year's captain and six other players back in harness, slipped a defeat to the alumni, 10 to 6, the first time the Highland Park youths ever have been able to down the old timers. Loyola academy also hung a black eye on the alumni, 10 to 2.

In the Deerfield game Coach Jack Rothacher's boys benefited by the educated toe of Full Back Parcells, one of the veterans of 1919. This player booted a thirty yard drop kick in the first period, and the school held the lead until the grads worked their way to a touchdown in the third period through a couple of simple passes and a deciding push through the line, Quarter Back G. Solon going over.

Win in Final Period.

In the last period the preps blocked an alumni kick a few minutes before the closing whistle, and Proctor fell on it behind the goal, winning the game. In addition to Capt. J. Bolon of the 1919 eleven, Baldwin, McDonald, Proctor, McIlwain, Stewart, and Parcells of last fall's team, played for the school.

Loyola put the ball over the alumni line in the first quarter on end runs, and in the third quarter aerial play added another score. The alumni came back in the same period with a strong bid for touchdown, but Loftus carried the ball over only to fumble it, and Toomey pounced on it for a safety.

Malone, former Notre Dame player, who is the academy's new coach, was elated at Golsen's plunging, Bowe's work at quarter and a fifty-five yard run by Clark. Kullman, O'Donoghue, H. Ford, and Loftus led the grads. Lineups:

AMATEUR STARS HAND "PRO" PAIR 10 AND 9 DEFEAT

Evans and Jones in Great Form in East.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—After an absence from the New York neighborhood since Aug. 1, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the British pros, came back today, expecting a triumphal march, but got instead the soundest beating of any exhibition of their tour.

It wasn't a pair of metropolitan linksmen who did it today, for the Morris County Golf club, Convent, N. J., went far and wide to obtain formidable opponents. The winners were Chick Evans of Chicago and Bobby Jones of Atlanta, by a 10 and 9 score.

In the morning round it was the southern juvenile who drew forth the applause with his phenomenal drives, approaches, and putts, but in the afternoon the newly ordained amateur champion, with his typical smile, did stunts with his gold looking putter that were unbelievable. Evans, starting at the twenty-second hole, made five birdies in a row with one of the most remarkable runs of putting ability ever seen in this golfing neighborhood. On the twenty-second he sank a thirty-footer, on the next a one-footer, after being in the rough on his drive; on the twenty-fourth a putt twenty feet long, one twenty-five feet long on the following green, and on the twenty-sixth a tap that measured fully twelve feet.

This put the American amateur's dormie 10, and when Jones and Vardon halved the twenty-seventh in fours it finished the match officially, although for the benefit of the gallery, numbering 1,500, the players continued on with the bye holes.

Scrubs and Varsity Work as Separate Units.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Head Coach Tad Jones of the Yale eleven has decided to make a split division between the varsity and the scrub football squads. Most of the best players will be retained in the varsity and the remainder will be scrubs.

The latter group will be turned over to Dr. Billy Bull, to train as a separate squad, given separate signals, and taught separate strategy. Plays will be developed by it which will be used upon the regulars without warning, and their effect will be noted closely. the laboratory demonstrating plays them by the scrub squad.

New System to Be Tried.

In former years the scrub squad had the same set of signals and the same general strategy as the varsity, and the regulars have been able to diagnose the scrubs' play by knowing the signals. The new system will make this impossible.

In connection with this change it is announced that the training season for the varsity this year will be greatly limited. Only the best players and half a dozen substitutes will be taken to Asheville, N. C. This number will be carefully selected. Last year there were several training table, and the squad did not work harmoniously.

Two Organizations.

The plan of Jones will have the first squad, consisting of the most leading substitutes, separate, as a organization, from the general body, who will be developed as quickly as they are and promoted as they show use.

Win, Although Outhit and Outfielded.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 18.—Cleveland retained its lead in the race for the American league pennant by defeating Washington, 7 to 5, in one of the most exciting games of the season.

Cleveland errors twice gave the Senators a chance to tie the score. Despite loose fielding, Ray Caldwell pitched masterly ball, retiring the side on strikes in the seventh. The Indians made seven of their nine hits and three of their four passes count, while half of Washington's hits were wasted.

Friends presented Jack Graney with an automobile previous to the game. Approximately 20,000 were in the park.

Washington was the first to score, registering a run in the second inning, when, with two out, Shanks doubled and scored on J. O'Neill's single.

Speaker's Bingle Scores Two.

Cleveland took the lead in the third. S. O'Neill walked, Caldwell singled, Jamieson sacrificed, and Speaker dropped a pop single in left field, netting two runs. They scored another in the fourth on singles by Gardner and S. O'Neill.

One hit and two errors enabled Washington to tie it up in the fifth. Judge singled with one out, Harris hit to Wambsganss and an easy double play should have resulted, but Wambsganss delayed tossing to Sewell until too late to force Judge. Then Sewell threw wide to first, both runners advancing. Judge scored when Sewell fumbled Rice's grounder, and Harris came in when the shortstop threw out Brower.

Cleveland Regains Lead.

The Indians regained the lead in their half, scoring two on a pass to Jamieson, J. O'Neill's error on Wambsganss' drive, Speaker's sacrifice fly and Gardner's triple. Shaw replaced Erickson and retired the side.

Washington evened the score in the sixth, on an error and some lucky breaks. Gardner's single in the seventh, following a single by Wambsganss, a base on balls to Speaker, and a sacrifice by Graney, who batted for Smith, placed the Indians in the lead again, from which they were never routed.

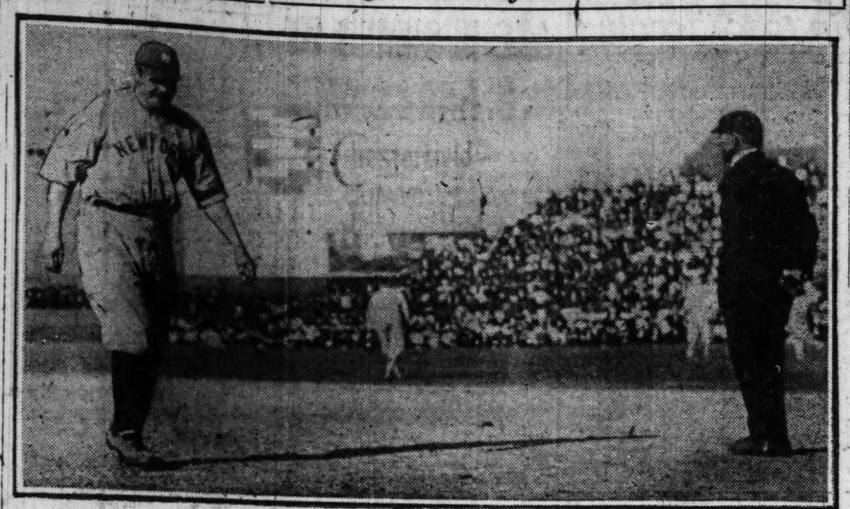
Babe Ruth Returning to Bat After "Near" Homer



Ruth came the nearest to his fiftieth home run during the three games played at Comiskey park in the fifth inning yesterday. With one strike and one ball called he got a partial hold on the next one Cicotte dished up, but hit under it and lofted it far into the corner of right field. When the ball finally came down it fell at the foot of the flagpole, several yards foul. By this time Ruth had sprinted to second base and the photograph shows him returning hopefully for another swing at the ball. He struck out on the next ball pitched.

FIVE DODGER SLABMEN UNABLE TO CARRY FLAG RUSH THROUGH CINCYS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Cincinnati stopped Brooklyn's onrush toward the National league pennant today by winning the final of the season between the cubs, 11 to 5. Manager Robinson tried his best to stem the Reds' onslaught, and before the world's champions were retired in the ninth five Brooklyn pitchers, all of them first string men, had been used.

Batting pitchers off the slab was the popular pastime of the day, Brooklyn taking a hand at it in the sixth, when they routed Ring, after erasing a Cincinnati five run lead.

Ring and Marquard were the opposing twirlers at the start and both retired in the sixth.

Four Reds Hit in Succession.

In the first five innings, Ring held Brooklyn to three hits, which were scattered over as many innings, while Cincinnati had touched Marquard for five hits and two runs. In the sixth with Roush disposed of, the next four Reds hit safely to left field and these with an error by Wheat, accounted for three runs. Mamaux finished the inning without further scoring by Cincinnati.

The attack on Ring consisted of two singles, a home run by Griffith and a triple by Wheat. Napier, a recruit, then succeeded Ring, and Myers greeted him with a double that scored Wheat. An error by Groh enabled Myers to tie the score. Napier then pitched brilliant ball, allowing one hit and issuing a pass to the only further Dodgers to reach first.

Robbie Uses All Strength.

Smith started to pitch in the seventh, but was withdrawn after two of the first three men to face him had hit safely. Then Robinson called upon his pitching ace, Burleigh Grimes. A hit by Duncan sent home two runners and in the eighth three hits off Grimes added another run. Mitchel pitched the last inning and three runs were added to Cincinnati's score as the result of three hits and Wheat's second error. Score:

PYOTTS GET FOUR HOMERS, BEATING OAK PARKS, 12-9

Kilby Leads Slugfest with Two Circuit Clouts.

With George W. Pyott an interested spectator, the team bearing his name outslugged the team from Oak Park, of which he is mayor, in a 12 to 9 batfest at Pyott field. Some tremendous batting by Roger Kilby, who turned in two homers, and a double with the bags loaded, was a big factor in the victory for Niesen's men. Driscoll and Daubert also hit for four sacks, while Bryant of the suburbanites lifted one over the wall with two men on. Score:

CHAMP HERMAN FINDS SHARKEY IS JINX OF RING

"Can't Lick Him if He Won't Fight," Says Pete

BY RAY PEARSON.

All is not sweet and happy in the lives of ring champions. For instance take the case of Pete Herman of New Orleans, world's bantam champion. Herman is a champion because he is a good fighter, not because he makes any great claims to being a boxer. His way of winning is fighting, not boxing, and if the opposition is willing to stand toe to toe and battle it out with him the chances are strongly in favor of Pete shooting over a right cross for a knockout.

But there is always a joykiller and in the case of Pete Herman this fellow happens to be a chap of his own race, Jack Sharkey of New York. Sharkey who is an Italian, makes life unbearable for the champion, in fact he has on no less than five occasions made Herman wish that Jack didn't know how to have a glove laced on his hand. Their fifth meeting which was staged a week ago in a ring at East Chicago, Ind., demonstrated conclusively why Herman wishes Sharkey weren't a ringman.

Sharkey Some "Popper."

I talked with Herman in Chicago after that meeting in which Sharkey simply showered Pete with gloves and won the verdict by a big margin, and this is what the champion had to say:

"That fellow Sharkey certainly gets my goat. He won't stand up and fight me. All he does is hop in, pop me a few wallops and away he goes. He won't stand still long enough for me to let go with my right hand, and it is as useless as if it was strapped to my side. If he'd give me a chance to fight him, I'd give him a licking, but he won't, and so he outscores me. His punches don't sting and they don't carry anything that resembles knockout force, but just the same he gets the points that win for him.

Old Same Thing Before.

"This fifth meeting wasn't the only one that made it unpleasant for me. There were others and in most of them he made me look bad. Funny, isn't it how a fellow like that can make a champion look bad? Well he does it all right and I'm going to tell you something—his tactics in the ring have spoiled me as a card in several places. He did that in Milwaukee and he did it in Detroit. Now he does it in East Chicago and I guess that after this I'd better knock him off my slate of prospective opponents.

"There isn't any chance of Sharkey stopping me or anything like that, because he won't take a chance on mixing it, but as long as he can get matches with me he hops, skips and jumps his way through ten rounds and doesn't give me a chance of doing any real fighting. The other fellows don't play the game as Sharkey plays it and I have a chance to show my real ability. But with Sharkey there isn't any chance for me to show anything. He sure is a joykiller."

Beat Champions on Points.

It is one of the peculiarities of the game that there are some scrappers who can beat champions on points, while other battlers who are far from championship class can "take" the fellow who outscores the titleholder. Sharkey is a good boxer, a tricky fellow, but he is not a champion. A real champion, in the estimation of close followers of pugilism, is not a light hitting clever boxer, but a fellow who stands up to the job, mixes wallops, and carries a knockout punch.

There are other champions who have found things just as Herman finds them, but there is one who is not troubled in that way. This is Jack Dempsey. The fellows who face the Utah mauler, may hop, skip and jump, play the clever stuff to the limit, or wallop as hard as they may, but it doesn't do them one bit of good. If they don't get cracked out in the first round by one of Dempsey's hooks, left or right, they get it in some other session, which usually is early in the fight.

Dempsey Isn't Clever! What?

There have been a few fellows who have openly stated that Dempsey is not clever—that he wins simply because he can punch with knockout force. But brother, don't ever let yourself believe that Dempsey isn't clever. He's as clever a boxer as ever was made with the exception of Jim Corbett, and it doesn't make any difference how clever his opponent may be, Dempsey will catch him, and when he does, the other fellow is certain to kiss the canvas. Dempsey is clever enough to catch anybody, and that being the case, any time he lets go with left or right hook the fight is over. They seldom build two fisted heavyweights like Dempsey

MORE FLY FISHING GOSSIP.

THE trout season of 1920 is now a matter of history. Every golden hour of beautiful days astream may be lived over again in memory and every move of the big one that got away may be described alongside of hot stoves or sizzling radiators but, for the time being, the trout may be forgotten, there is other work at hand—the black bass of river and lake will keep your fly fishing tackle in service from now until cold weather.

Bass fly fishing in autumn has many charms, not the least of which is the probability of taking much larger fish than you got in midsummer. The big fellows are stirring about these days and that old lunker, who has his lair under that tangle of logs, and who merely flirted with your offerings during the summer, may take what the small boy calls a "healthy wallop" at the first fly you drop near him. But if he doesn't it will not bother you like it did before—there is something in being on a stream in early autumn that breeds contentment with things as they are; that compensates one for the absence of many or big fish on the stringer.

C. E. Cook of New London, Ia., an expert bass fly fisherman, writes: "I have had a number of very interesting experiences within the last week. When making a cast near an old willow snag I had a small twist in the line near the reel. I heard a strike and when I got my line taut he had traveled at least thirty feet. I gave him the wrist hard and repeated and I had a real fighter on.

"After a game battle I brought to net the largest small mouth ever caught in this section. Length, 22¼ inches; girth, 12¼ inches; breadth, 4¼ inches; weight, 6 pounds 3 ounces. You will note that was a very large fish and he was in excellent condition, but if he had been filled with food he would have weighed seven pounds.

"I note your Wisconsin friend having a twenty-one inch small mouth that weighed eight pounds. In looking over my records I find that I have caught sixty-three small mouths between twenty and twenty-one inches long and the heaviest one weighed five pounds fourteen ounces. My largest small mouth was 23 inches in length, 13¾ inches in girth, 4¾ inches wide at the shoulder, and weighed seven pounds seven ounces three hours after being taken from the water.

"Another interesting event was my catching a three and one-half pound small mouth in among a number of swimmers on the bathing beach.

"We are catching our largest bass right now on some floating dragon flies that are made similar to the cork bodied bass bug. During the hot part of the day you will see some of the medium sized bass come in shore and strike hard at dragon flies that alight on the little grass and weeds protecting above the water."

Mr. Cook wrote the above several weeks ago, but the bass are still rising to the dragon flies. We do not believe that they catch very many of them, for the dragon fly, snake doctor, or darning needle, as he is variously known, is a canny critter, and the most able bodied insect that flies. Any bass, however, can catch the artificial dragon fly, and that accounts for its deadliness as a lure.

Some of the artificial dragon flies are rather crude, but a Chicago fly tier turns them out so exact that they would fool little Johnny Dragon Fly's own mother, even duplicating the sheen on the wings by using hackle feathers from the Japanese game cock. A friend who fishes the quarries in the vicinity of Chicago, where the bass are both big and wary, informs us that the artificial dragon fly is the only fly these bass will take.

The twenty-one inch eight pound bass Mr. Cook mentions was one taken this summer in Wisconsin by Mr. Callahan, a Chicago attorney. It is an unusual weight for so short a fish, but its photograph shows it to be one of those aldermanic fellows.

Dr. Henshall, in his "Book of the Black Bass," records some unusually large small mouthed bass taken in a small lake near Glen Falls, N. Y., and among them was a specimen weighing eight and one-quarter pounds and twenty-two inches in length. We once weighed a specimen caught in Lake Erie that was eight pounds even, but a fourth of an inch shorter than Mr. Callahan's fish. On the other hand, Henshall lists one small mouth from Canadian waters that was twenty-one inches and weighed but four pounds twelve ounces.

From the above it will be seen that the weight of a bass can not be judged merely by its length. They vary considerably in different waters, and even in individual fish. Last fall we took a small mouth on the upper Mississippi that was built more like a common grunish than like an ordinary black bass. He was a regular "humpback seed" as to shape, weighing, we would judge, about two and one-quarter pounds and not much over thirteen inches in length. Such a bass—and they are powerful fighters—are not uncommon in the lower Chippewa and other rivers flowing into the Mississippi.

Sir John Nutting Cup Won by Dauchy's Sari in Race Revival

Samuel Dauchy's class R sloop Sari won the Sir John Nutting cup in the revival for the old time trophy sailed yesterday as the feature event of the annual fall regatta of the Chicago Yacht club. In taking the trophy Sari defeated both Commodore Sheldon Clark's Rainbow and Edward M. Railton's Gossoon, the only other eligible contestants.

The regatta brought out thirty-six starters and furnished a fitting windup of the principal competitive events on the season's calendar. Morgan L. Eastman's sloop Dorello, the largest craft of the fleet, made the fastest elapsed time when it sailed twice around the triangle in 1:18:07, but was closely pressed by the much smaller Sally VII., which was credited with 1:18:25 elapsed time. SPORT RELATIONS ARE RESUMED BY N. U. AND CHICAGO

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Resumption of athletic relations between Chicago and Northwestern, adoption of a rule allowing a player to be taken out of a game and returned once at any time, and slating of games for the winter season were the salient features of the annual meeting of the Western Conference Basketball association at the Auditorium hotel yesterday.

Chicago and Northwestern broke off relations a year ago when it was charged the Purple teams were composed of former Great Lakes athletes who had not spent the necessary time at Northwestern to be eligible under conference rules. Although Northwestern tried to book contests with the Maroons, Stagg refused to meet the Purple until the players under suspicion had either left the university or completed the allotted three years.

Rivals for Years.

The Purple and Maroons have been athletic rivals for years, and the resumption of relations will be welcomed by college athletics fans. In the past Northwestern has furnished the necessary opposition for Chicago. They will not meet on the gridiron this fall, but it is a certainty a contest will be slated next year.

Adoption of the rule permitting a player to be removed and put back in the game is expected to make the play faster and more interesting. The star players will thus be given opportunities to rest and saved for the closing stages of the contests. The rule met with the hearty approval of the coaches.

Dr. Meanwell Chairman.

Dr. E. W. Meanwell of Wisconsin was elected chairman of the association and Dr. L. J. Cooke of Minnesota re-elected secretary. Dr. Meanwell, Dr. Cooke, and L. W. St. John of Ohio State, were picked as a committee to name officials for the winter games. The date for next year's meeting was set for Sept. 17. Another rules interpretation session will be held Dec. 4 of this year.

The dollar is a fixed quantity: one hundred cents. But its purchasing power depends somewhat on where you spend it. For more than thirty-three years the idea of extreme value has been a hobby here—we have always felt certain it was and is the "tie that binds" desirable patronage. And perhaps that partly explains why this Store has earned world leadership in its field

SEES TWO MORE YEARS OF HIGH BUILDING COST

Architect Finds Prices Up Since Aug. 1.

BY AL CHASE.

Don't read this if your nerves and heart aren't strong—for you'll get a shock. Of course, all of us are getting pretty well toughened by constantly skyrocketing prices, but for some reason or other there seems to have come a sort of feeling of hope in the calloused breasts of quite a few of us—a faint, timid bit of optimism—that prices are slowly turning the other way.

F. E. DAVIDSON.

And now—blooey—comes Architect F. E. Davidson, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, and a member of the architectural firm of Davidson & Weiss, with a staggering array of facts which show building materials have advanced from 2½ per cent to 35½ per cent since Aug. 1.

And he follows this wallop on our optimism with a left hander to our hopefulness by making the cheerful prediction that prices are going to keep on mogging upward for two years at least.

One Tiny Bit of Cheer.

The only bit of cheer in the gloomy price list Mr. Davidson has compiled is that structural timber, boiled linseed oil, and turpentine are lower.

But let Mr. Davidson tell his sad tale, which will appear next Tuesday in the September Bulletin of the Illinois Society of Architects, of which he is editor. Here it is in part:

"The only change since our last issue in the building situation is the further postponment of many large projects, a continued increase in the cost of practically all materials entering into any structure and a further advance in bankers' commission charges for building loans.

"Many owners who have had complete plans and specifications for important work prepared are ready to proceed, notwithstanding the present high building costs, if they could secure any assistance from the banking interests in financing; but with United States bonds selling in the open market at prices netting the investor over 6 per cent, with foreign government bonds selling at prices netting better than 8 per cent, with securities of first class industries realizing from 9 per cent to 12 per cent, there is practically no money available for building operations.

Suggests Possible Remedy.

"Perhaps one way temporarily to stimulate the construction of buildings of all classes would be to amend the present income tax law and exempt from taxation for a period of, say, five years, all money invested in new buildings. This exemption, if granted, would make first mortgage securities more attractive to investors and would undoubtedly result in large sums being immediately placed at the disposal of builders.

"It is a peculiar circumstance that, notwithstanding the great falling off in the amount of work contracted for in Chicago and vicinity, the cost of almost all building materials is continually advancing.

Writes to Contractors.

"The editor recently addressed a letter to a representative contractor in each of the various building trades doing work in Chicago, asking about the changes in the cost of building materials that have taken place since Aug. 1.

"A tabulation of replies received follows:

"Owners contemplating building are advised that there are practically no available stocks of most building supplies and that delays in any building project are bound to occur, due to the impossibility of contractors securing materials as they will be required for any building operation to proceed in an orderly manner.

Face Jurisdictional Rows.

"Owners are further advised that under present circumstances they are confronted with the certainty of there being further delays in construction, due to the jurisdictional claims of the Chicago union labor trades. As a matter of history, there have been more strikes reported during the last sixty days than ever before in a like period in the history of Chicago.

"At present building operations which should be consummated in a period of, say, four months now require eight or ten months to complete, notwithsatnding all the efforts of the architect and contractors for the improvement.

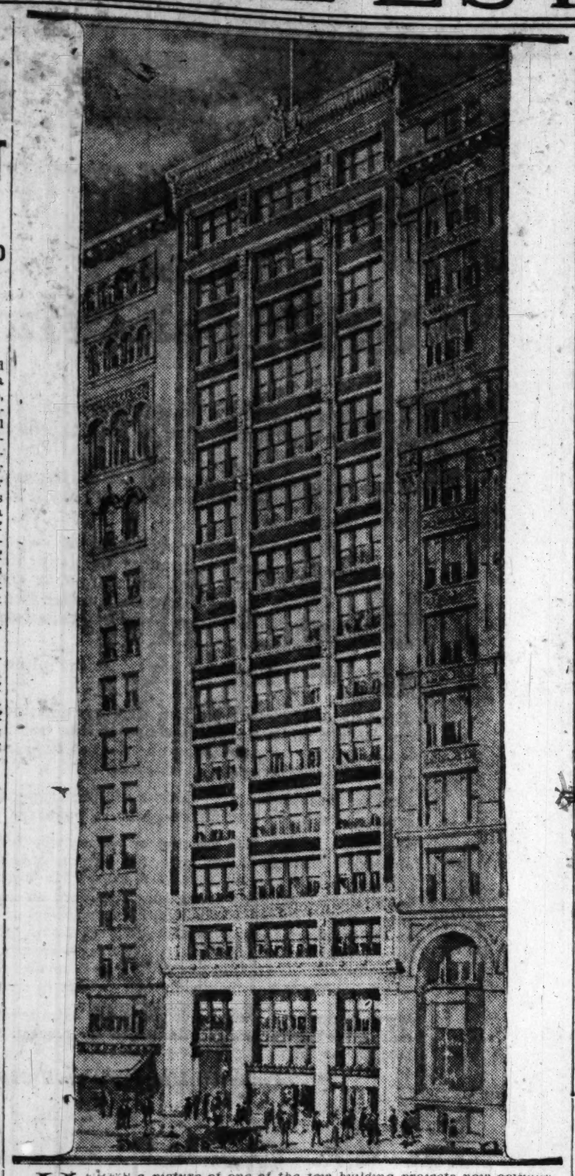
"Owners contemplating building are advised that it is the editor's opinion that building material costs will continue to advance for many months and that there is no prospect of any immediate lowering of building costs. In fact, building costs will probably increase for at least two years more.

No Use Kidding Ourselves.

"Union labor has agreements which do not expire for many months, so that it is utterly hopeless to expect any reduction in labor costs before this time, and as labor in the ultimate represents by far the largest item in the cost of any building project building costs cannot and will not be reduced until the wage scales have been revised. Not only the wage scales of the building mechanics but the wage scales of the laborers and mechanics producing and creating all of the various items of building materials.

"This is the condition confronting owners and architects today, and there is no use of camouflaging the situation or of kidding our clients or ourselves into believing that building costs are going to be reduced for many months."

All we can say in conclusion is that it's a sad, sad tale.



HERE'S a picture of one of the few building projects now actually under way in the loop. It's the fifteen story Jackson-Quincy building at 168-170 West Jackson boulevard, between the old Medinah Temple building on the west and the new federal reserve bank building now under way on the east.

The building, planned by Architect C. A. Eckstrom, has a fifty foot frontage on both Jackson and Quincy. It is 166 feet long. It is being connected at each floor with the fireproof Lombard hotel at the southeast corner of Wells and Quincy, which has been remodeled into an office building. The combined buildings will have a total floor area of over 12,000 square feet on each floor.

Later the Lombard hotel will be made higher and the Jackson-Quincy building probably made 260 feet, foundations having been put in to carry twenty-one stories. The owner is the Old Colony Life Insurance company.

SUBDIVIDERS HAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY.

In celebration of their first anniversary, Branigar Brothers, subdividers, held a birthday banquet Tuesday evening at the Brevoort hotel, followed by a theater party. Thirty-two members of the organization were present. The year's business was reported as $618,939.

REALTORS GOING TO STATE MEET AT ROCKFORD

Fifteen Realty Boards to Attend.

"Going to Rockford?"

That's the question now being put to members of the Chicago Real Estate board, and if your answer is "yes" then be sure and let Callistus S. Ennis, chairman of the local committee, know about it or else Secretary Herbert E. Cole.

It's going to be the fourth annual convention of the Real Estate Association of the State of Illinois and will be held on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Sept. 30, Oct. 1 and 2. And listen to this comment by the committee: "Ladies are especially invited to keep the delegates cheerful and happy, as well as good, and in addition there has been special entertainment provided in their behalf, so that each moment will be a joyous one."

On Thursday evening there'll be a "get acquainted" reception and informal dance at the Nelson house. On Friday from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. there will be motor trips through Rockford and Camp Grant. In the evening a complimentary banquet will be given by the Rockford Real Estate board at the Rockford Motor club, with a five minute speech contest for a silver trophy cup presented by the Danville Real Estate board. Hiram S. Cody will enter the contest as the Chicago representative.

Saturday noon a box luncheon will be served and the final session of the convention held on the steamer City of Rockford, with a river trip.

Gov. Lowden will be one of the speakers. Some of the others will be: Fred E. Taylor, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards; John Fletcher, vice president of the Fort Dearborn National bank F. W. Blankley of W. E. Harmon & Co., F. W. Thompson, vice president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust company; Max Loeb, Charles B. Ball, and S. K. Hughes.

There will be discussions on "How to Handle Hair Splitting and Fault Finding Attorneys," "Scientific Appraisals of Real Estate," "Modern Office Equipment for Handling Daily Business and Preserving Records," and others.

Realtors are expected to attend from all of the fifteen cities in Illinois which have real estate boards affiliated with the state organization. The convention will be called to order for business on Friday morning, Oct. 1, at 9 o'clock.

Jungle Denizens Drive Big Game Hunter to Hotel Life

With thirteen lions, two tigers, an elephant or two, a steenbok, an alcelaphine antelope, a coupe of long tailed pangolins, a dozen dibatags, a flying phalanger, a hartbeest, two wombats, to say nothing of a reebok, half a dozen gorillas, a petaurist, a mandrill, a suricate, a pied thous, a giraffe, and an indefinite number of other ferocious former residents of tropical jungles scattered about your own home, you just naturally need considerable room.

Of course, having them stuffed makes things less exciting for the family and neighbors, but takes up just as much space. That's why Stewart Hodges, wild game hunter, has sold his residence at 61 Bellevue place and is temporarily to live at the Parkway hotel. Charles W. Wrigley, brother of the man who made spearmint known, bought the Hodges house for $35,000, subject to $10,000, through Harold Bradley & Co.

"We're going abroad again after Christmas," explained Mrs. Hodges. "When we get back we'll either build or buy a much larger house—one large enough to take care of Mr. Hodges, hunting trophies. We haven't room enough now. The six tons of skins Mr. Hodges brought back this summer we're having stuffed.

"On our last trip we spent four months in Nairobi, or British East Africa, and six months altogether in Africa. Later we spent two months in Indo-China tiger hunting. We're going down the Nile this winter, after making the Mediterranean trip."

Pioneer Trunk Co. Rents Vogelsang Building Shop

Chicago's oldest trunk manufacturer—the Charles T. Wilt Co.—has leased a store and basement, 19x180, in the newly remodeled Vogelsang restaurant building at 173-181 West Madison street across from the Hotel La Salle. The lessee rented the space from John Vogelsang, president of the Blackhawk Hotel company, through E. F. Keebler & Co., agents of the building, for ten years from Oct. 1 at a term rental of $120,000. This is on the site of the proposed Blackhawk hotel, which has been postponed for ten years.

The Wilt company was established in 1862 by the father of the present head of the company. It now has two stores in the loop, one at 226 South Michigan avenue and another at 221 West Madison street. Its factory is at Moore and Elm streets.

Leases

In the lease of the John A. Thompson property at 206-12 South State street, printed in Friday's TRIBUNE, the firm name was given as Friedman & Trosky. This should have been William H. Trouski and Harry L. Feldman. As stated, the lessees will pay a rental of $575,000 for the ten year term, beginning Oct. 1, 1920. L. L. Sachs of J. P. Strickland & Co. represented both sides in the transaction. The new store will have no connection with any other establishment in the city, it is claimed.

$450,000 PAID FOR BREAKERS IN ROGERS PARK

One of the north side's largest apartment buildings—the Breakers—on the lake shore at Sherwin avenue, in Rogers Park, has been purchasd by Edward J. Riedy of the real estate firm of Harrison & Riedy, for a reported $450,000. Anton, Arthur and Walter Wille were the sellers.

The Breakers was designed by Architect Paul Frederick Olsen and has just been completed. There are fifty apartments of two, three, four, and five rooms. There is a private beach with canoe storage, garages, and promenade.

The property fronts 141 feet on Sherwin and 157 feet on the lake shore, with riparian rights. The building is rather unusual in that instead of the usual cubby holes for entrance halls there is a lobby 47x26 similar in furnishings to a high class hotel lounge. Harrison & Riedy will have charge of the property.

FACTORY PROPERTY SOLD.

C. T. A. Anderson has sold the factory property at 1831-35 North Halsted street, to Varco Brothers, for Alma W. Duerlin, through E. N. Duerlin & Co., for a reported $22,000. Lot 66x181. There is reported approximately 11,000 square feet of floor space.

DROP IN GRAINS SENDS CORN TO LOW FOR SEASON

BY CHARLES S. MICHAELS.

Liquidation was on in corn and oats in volume. The deferred deliveries of corn and all futures of oats broke sharply to a new low on the crop and closed well toward the bottom, with net losses of 2@3½c on corn and ½@⅞c on oats, while wheat was off 2¼@2½c, rye 2¼@3½c, and barley ½c.

Every day during the last week has seen new low figures made on corn. Support has been absent and, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered on the way down, bears had things their own way. At the close corn showed 9¼@12½c, oats 2¾@3¾c, and wheat 7@7½c under the close of a week ago. Provisions were as strong as grains were weak and pork closed with net gains of $2.25@2.45, lard 97½c@$1.05, and ribs 97½c@$1.02. January lard lost 22½c.

New Low on Corn.

There was the same utter absence of support in corn which has characterized the market the greater part of the week. Liquidation was on until near the close, when week end evening up made a small rally. There was some selling of September and buying of December by traders closing out spreads.

Fears Canadian grain would be offered abroad at a lower basis than American led to free selling by local traders, and liquidation started in oats, which carried prices off sharply. The close was on a fair rally due to short covering.

Weakness in other grains led to local selling of rye and made a lower range. No. 2 on track brought ½c over September.

Barley sold slowly with prices 2@3c lower.

Cash Trade Is Good.

With hogs up to $18 there was more disposition on the part of a few packers to buy October lard and it was well supported, all offerings being taken. Cash trade in lard and meats was good, but weakness in corn induced selling of product by speculators.

The Preferred Investments Are Not Always Obtained on La Salle Street

OFF on a byway from La Salle Street, but located in the heart of a section rich in investment opportunities, this Bank renders a service that offers many a choice investment plum to the people of the West Side, and to people of other sections who will take the slight trouble to come here for them.

The Madison-Kedzie District is one of the foremost industrial sections in Chicago. It is also a community of homes and a retail business center of constantly increasing importance. These diverse and rapidly expanding activities, coupled with its unequaled location, make this a section of unusual investment opportunities.

To participate in these opportunities, what would be more logical than to go direct to the district where they exist—and to the Bank that serves this district?

Every investor should learn about MADISON & KEDZIE FIRST MORTGAGE INVESTMENTS. They are absolutely safe, free from fluctuation and perfectly convenient. They pay current interest rates.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

While a majority of commission houses continue to advocate caution in the selling side of corn, due to the break of around 12c in December from the high figure of last Monday, leading bears were more confident of their position after the close than heretofore. The fact country offerings of cash corn to arrive are large despite a break of more than 15c within a week is evidence enough, as they see it, to warrant materially lower prices, especially for the September. The great spread between the present price of hogs and corn, according to the bears, means nothing other than affording a chance for the producer to get out about even on the high priced grain he was forced to feed over a period of some months.

Liquidation was regarded as having started in oats by many traders after the close. For several days there has been fair buying and the market showed resistance to selling pressure, but yesterday the support was not in evidence. With large receipts, prospects of a big increase in the visible supply Monday, and a slow shipping demand, they look for lower prices, although any bulge in corn probably would result in short covering.

R. W. McKinnon wired from Clarksville, Tenn., that there is a wonderful crop of corn here, and sales are at equal to 85c per bu.

Samples of American and Italian red clover seed were received by a Chicago house yesterday from a Copenhagen firm, which offered the seed for resale to this country.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Domestic shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago Saturday were 140,000 bu wheat, 85,000 bu corn and 115,000 bu oats.

A fair export business was put through in cash wheat. Duluth reported over 200,000 bu durum sold to the east, with more business in sight, while at the Gulf hard winters were sold at 26@28c over December for October loading. There was also 200,000 bu Manitobas sold at New York.

Milling demand for wheat, combined with small offerings, was responsible for an advance of 3@4c in local cash premiums. No. 1 red brought 15@16c, and No. 1 hard 12@13c over December. Dark No. 1 northern was $18.00@23.00, and No. 1 northern 10@15c over December. Receipts, 37 cars winter, 6 cars spring and 14 cars mixed. Kansas City prices were unchanged, with the bulk of the receipts carried over unsold. St. Louis unchanged to 2c higher, and Omaha unchanged.

Cash corn at Chicago sold at unchanged figures as compared with the September. Sample values were 1½@3½c lower, and closed with No. 1 mixed and white at $1.26½, and No. 1 yellow at $1.27½. Receipts, 217 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 5c lower, the latter at Kansas City. Cash oats at Chicago were ½@1c lower, and outside markets ½@⅝c lower. Local receipts, 103 cars.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Dry goods trade was quiet today. Cotton goods showed good spirit where low prices have stimulated trade. Broad silks were firmer, as raw silks held their upward trend. Burlaps waited further news of the jute crop. Wool goods were spotty. Knit goods probably will be opened next week.

SUGAR MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—With the raw and refined sugar markets closed, there was little interest manifested in sugar futures and closing prices were irregular, ranging from 10 points decline to 5 advance. Futures: Sales, 100 tons; October, 9.70c; December, 9.65c; January, 9.45c; March, 9.40c; May, 9.45c.

Another 10@25c gain forced the long expected $18.00 hog into our midst, the price being the highest in a year. Receipts at 2,500 were hardly large enough to establish quotations, and more than half of the local packers were out of the trade.

The day's average price of hogs at $16.80 was $1.10 above previous Saturday and within 50c of a year ago. Week's receipts were second smallest in a year, barring the strike period last April. More than a fourth of the 84,300 received were taken by shippers.

Estimated average weight of hogs for the week at 251 lbs was only one pound below the previous week and two lbs heavier than a year ago. The average at present is inclined to increase, whereas it usualy falls off sharply at this season.

Closing trade in cattle and sheep was slow and weak, with buyers inclined to fight any further upturn in values, which applies more especially to cattle. The week's average price of good beef steers at $15.55 was the highest of the year.

Next Monday's receipts are estimated at 27,000 cattle, 25,000 hogs, and 33,000 sheep, again 23,262 cattle, 21,340 hogs, and 40,053 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago.

Haste and Waste vs. Saving and Having

WE are passing through an era which has been aptly characterized as one of speed, spending and speculation.

When the history of today appears in retrospect to the historian of tomorrow we have no doubt he will be able to explain present-day conditions.

He may be able to tell why the world has substituted wasteful, improvident, extravagant, prodigal habits for its war-time habit of thrift; why silk stockings and silk shirts, costly motor cars, grand pianos and talking machines, summer furs for women and fifteen-dollar hats for men are bought by countless thousands who before were content to SAVE.

Today, haste and waste have taken the place of saving and having.

The lure of the stock market, also, has corrupted the thrift of our people. Thousands now bet on the ups and downs of a business they know nothing about—and hope to win in a game where the outsider always LOSES.

And so these voluntary victims of speed, spending and speculation pursue their primrose paths to poverty.

How much better off is the man or woman who follows the dictates of con

U.S. FINANCING AND TAX FAIL TO STRAIN RESERVE

Payment of the third quarterly instalment of federal income and profits taxes last Wednesday and the federal treasury's new financing were the principal factors of influence in the weekly statements issued yesterday by the federal reserve banks. The tax payments for the whole country were estimated at $1,000,000,000, and to meet this in part there was a total of $657,469,000 in treasury certificates of indebtedness, or tax anticipation certificates, maturing. Of the about $843,000,000 was left to be met in cash, the furnishing of a considerable part of which devolved upon the banks.

In addition the government sold $448,000,000 of new treasury certificates, which had its effect on the banks. But, taken as a whole, both the tax payment and the new treasury financing were accomplished without undue strain on the banks, and the reserve position even showed some improvement.

Status of Twelve Banks.

The principal feature of the consolidated report of the twelve federal reserve banks was a sharp decrease in loans, while less important changes were increases in deposits and certificate holdings and a decrease in federal reserve note circulation. Loans receded $165,000,000, those on government obligations declining $96,530,000, and those on commercial paper dropping $69,466,000. Bills purchased increased $4,623,000, so that total bills on hand declined $161,373,000. With the decline in loans, the member banks reduced their reserve account by $71,991,000. Total earning assets receded $230,321,000.

Total deposits increased $159,718,000, this being chiefly the result of a gain in government deposits of $104,262,000. Treasury certificates held expanded $61,-852,000. Note circulation receded $5,494,-000. Cold reserves declined $3,099,000, but total reserves increased $1,898,000 by virtue of an increase in subsidiary currency of $4,977,000.

The ratio of reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 42.8 from 42.1 per cent in the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposits, rose to 48.1 from 48.5 per cent in the preceding week.

Loan Accounts Vary.

Both the New York and Chicago federal reserve banks showed rather sharp declines in gold reserves and considerable increases in deposits. But the loan account showed sharp divergence, the New York bank showing a large decrease, due to the fact that that district had an excess of about $190,000,000 in maturing treasury certificates above its requirements for tax purposes, while the Chicago bank showed an increase, as this district's holdings of certificates were about $90,000,000 less than required for tax payments. Therefore loans were reduced in New York and expanded in Chicago.

The New York bank showed a decline in gold reserves of $32,321,875 and a decrease in total reserves of $28,470,005. Loans declined $182,211,466, those on government obligations receding $54,639,573, and those on commercial paper dropping $127,571,791. Borrowings from other federal reserve banks were reduced by $25,-000,000, leaving standing at $10,975,000. Bills bought increased $1,046,594, so that total bills on hand receded $818,914,371. Total earning assets receded $39,023,571.

Total deposits increased $22,870,816 despite a decline in government deposits of $1,820,000. Federal reserve note circulation decreased $2,341,070. The ratio of reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined remained stationary at 39.5 per cent, while the ratio of reserves to net deposits, after deducting 40 per cent gold reserve against note circulation, was 82, compared with 38.9 per cent in the preceding week.

Chicago Loans Increase.

The Chicago federal reserve bank showed a decline in gold reserves of $22,-191,000. This was largely due to an increase in loans of $12,048,636, but this increase was moderate when it is considered that tax payments in this district required about $90,000,000 in cash. Loans on government obligations declined $8,-741,532, but those on commercial paper expanded $27,790,208. Bills bought increased $2,375,463, so that total bills on hand expanded $22,424,689.

Total deposits increased $49,116,230, this being entirely the result of a gain in government deposits of $49,506,690. Federal reserve note circulation declined $4,715,-000. The ratio of reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined fell to 40.93 from 43.66 per cent in the preceding week, while the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposits, fell to 42.44 from 47.35 per cent in the preceding week.

Clearing House Banks.

The New York clearing house banks showed a somewhat less favorable position. Excess reserve declined $4,783,790, now standing at $19,395,410. Aggregate reserve increased $6,569,000. The principal changes, however, were large increases in loans and deposits. Loans expanded $112,981,000, demand deposits increased $85,067,000, and time deposits increased $8,658,000. Government deposits, which do not figure in the reserve position, increased $168,221,000. The member banks increased their reserve account at the federal reserve bank by $6,627,000. Cash declined $2,116,000.

Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,248,463,000, compared with $1,237,844,000 reported by 23 clearing houses for the corresponding week last year.

An increase in the capitalization of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company to $37,500,-000 has been proposed to the stockholders by William L. Clause, chairman of the board of directors. The increase in capitalization is made necessary by a merger on which the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, the Patton Paint company of Milwaukee, the Rennoco-Xiena company of Baltimore, the Pittsburgh Varnish company, and the Corona Chemical company are consolidated.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Peoples Trust and Savings bank has been called for Oct. 19 for the purpose of considering and voting on the question of increasing the capital stock of the bank from $500,-000 to $1,000,000, and also on the question of increasing the number of directors of the bank.

R. G. Dun & Co. report 187 commercial failures in the United States last week, compared with 125 in the preceding week and 107 in the corresponding week in 1919.

A Tale of a Maiden's Lost Modesty, Which Revives at the Touch of a Wasp

MISSY was embroiled in a catastrophe, a tangle of embarrassments and odd complications. Aunt Nettie attributed the blame broadly to "that O'Neill girl"; she asserted that ever since Tess O'Neill had come to live in Cherryvale Missy had been "up to" just one craziness after another. But then Aunt Nettie was an old maid—Missy couldn't imagine her as ever having been fifteen years old. Mother, who could generally be counted on for tenderness even when she failed to "understand," rather unfortunately centered on the wasp detail—why had Missy just stood there and let it keep stinging her? And Missy felt shy at trying to explain it was because the wasp was stinging her leg. Mother would be sure to remark this sudden show of modesty in one she'd just been scolding for the lack of it—for riding the pony astride and showing her——

O, legs! Missy was in a terrific confusion, as baffled by certain inconsistencies displayed by her own nature as overwhelmed by her disgraceful predicament. For she was certainly sincere in her craving to be as debonairly "athletic" as Tess; yet, during that ghastly moment when the wasp was . . .

No, she could never explain it to mother. Old people don't understand. Not even to father could she have talked it all out, though he had patted her hand and acted like an angel when he paid for the bucket of candy—that candy which none of them got even a taste of! That Tess and Arthur should eat up the candy which her own father paid for made one more snarl in the whole inconsistent situation.

Gypsy samples the peach pie, hers, as well as the minister's, favorite dish.

It all began, as nearly as one can trace down a beginning in such affairs, with the day Arthur Simpson "dared" Tess to ride her pony into Pieker's grocery store. Tess had recently come to live in the sanitarium at the edge of town where her father was head doctor, but before that she had lived in Macon City and had had superior advantages—city life, to Missy, a Cherryvalian from birth, sounded exotic and intriguing. Then Tess in her nature was far from ordinary. She was characterized by a certain dash and fine flair; was inventive, fearless, and possessed the gift of leadership. Missy, seeing how eagerly the other girls of "the crowd" caught up Tess's original ideas, felt enormously flattered when the leader selected such a comparatively stupid girl as herself as a chum.

For Missy thought she must be stupid. She wasn't "smart" in school like Beula Crosswhite, or strikingly pretty like Kitty Allen, or president of the Iolanthians like Mabel Dowd, or conspicuously popular with the boys like Genevieve Hicks. No, she possessed no distinctive traits anybody could pick out to label her by—at least that is what she thought. So she felt on her mettle; she wished to prove herself worthy of Tess' high regard.

Just now Tess' particular interest veered toward athleticism; she had recently returned from a visit to Macon City and brimmed with colorful tales of its "country club" life—swimming, golf, tennis, horseback riding, and so forth. These pursuits she straightway set out to introduce into drowsy, behind-the-times Cherryvale. But in almost every direction she encountered difficulties: there was in Cherryvale no place to swim except muddy Bull creek—and the girls' mothers unanimously vetoed that; and there were no links for golf; and the girls themselves didn't enthuse greatly over tennis those broiling afternoons. So Tess centered on horseback riding, deciding it was the "classiest" sport, after all. But the old Neds and Nellies of the town, accustomed leisurely to transport their various family surreys, did not metamorphose into hackneys of such spirit and dash as fulfilled Tess' dreams.

Even so, these steeds were formidable enough to Missy. She feared she wasn't very athletic. That was an afternoon of frightful chagrin when she came walking back into Cherryvale, ignominiously following Dr. O'Neill's Ben. Old Ben, who was lame in his left hind foot, had a curious gait, like a sort of grotesque turkey trot. Missy outwardly attributed her inability to keep her seat to Ben's peculiar rocking motion, but in her heart she knew it was simply because she was afraid. What she was afraid of she couldn't have specified. Not of old Ben surely, for she knew him to be the gentlest of horses. When she stood on the ground beside him, stroking his shaggy uncurried flanks or feeding him bits of sugar, she felt not the slightest fear. Yet the minute she climbed up into the saddle she sickened under the grip of some increasingly heart-stilling panic. Even before Ben started forward; so it wasn't Ben's rocking lopsided gait that was really at the bottom of her fear—it only accentuated it. Why was she afraid of Ben up there in the saddle while not in the least afraid when standing beside him. Fear was very strange. Did everybody harbor some secret, absurd, unreasonable fear? But, no, Tess didn't; Tess wasn't afraid of anything. Tess was cantering along on rawboned Nellie in beautiful unconcern. Missy admired and envied her dreadfully.

Her sense of her own shortcomings became all the more poignant when the little cavalcade, with Missy still ignominiously footing it in the rear, had to pass the group of loafers in front of the postoffice. The loafers called out rude, bantering comments, and Missy burned with shame.

Then Arthur Simpson appeared in Pieker's doorway next door and grinned.

"Hello! Some steed!" he greeted Tess. "Dare you to ride her in!"

"Not today, thanks," retorted Tess, insouciantly—that was another quality Missy envied in her friend, her unfailing insouciance. "Wait till I get my new pony next week and then I'll take you up!"

"All right. The dare holds good." Then Arthur turned his grin to Missy "What's the matter? Charger get out of hand?

"Want a lift?" asked Arthur, moving forward.

Missy shook her head. She longed to retrieve herself in the public gaze, longed to shine as Tess shone, but not for worlds could she have essayed that high, dizzy seat again. So she shook her head dumbly, and Arthur grinned at her not unkindly. Missy liked Arthur Simpson. He wore a big blue denim apron and had red hair and freckles—not a romantic figure by any means; but there was a mischievous imp in his eye and a rollicking lift in his voice that made you like him anyway. Missy wished he hadn't been a witness to her predicament.

At supper she was still somewhat bitterly ruminating her failings.

"Missy, you're not eating your omelet," adjured her mother.

Missy's eyes came back from space.

"I was just wondering—" then she broke off.

"Yes, dear," encouraged mother. Missy's hazy thoughts took a sudden plunge, direct and startling.

"I was wondering if, maybe, you'd give me an old pair of father's trousers."

"What on earth for, child?"

"Just an old pair," Missy went on, ignoring the question. "Maybe that pepper and salt pair you said you'd have to give to old Jeff."

"But what do you want with them?" persisted mother. "Jeff needs them disgracefully—the last time he mowed the yard I blushed every time he turned his back toward the street."

"I think Mrs. Allen's going to give him a pair of Mr. Allen's—Kitty said she was. So he won't need the pepper and salts."

"But what do you want with a pair of pants?" Aunt Nettie put in. Missy wished Aunt Nettie had been invited out to supper; Aunt Nettie was relentlessly inquisitive. She knew she must give some kind of answer.

"O, just for some fancy work," she said. She tried to make her tone insouciant, but she was conscious of her cheeks getting hot.

"Fancy work—pants for fancy work! For heaven's sake!" ejaculated Aunt Nettie.

Mother also was staring at her in surprise. But father, who was a darling, put in: "Give 'em to her if she wants 'em, dear. Maybe she'll make a lambrequin for the piano or an embroidered smoking jacket for the old man—a la your Ladies' Home Companion."

He grinned at her, but Missy didn't mind father's jokes at her expense so much as most grownups. Besides, she was grateful to him for diverting attention from her secret purpose for the pants.

After supper, out in the summer house, it was an evening of such swooning beauty she almost forgot the bothers vexing her life. When you sit and watch the sun set in a bed of pastel glory, and let the level bars of thick gold light steal across the soft slick grass to reach to your very soul, and smell the heavenly sweetness of dew damp roses, and listen to the shrill yet mournful even song of the locusts—when you sit very still, just letting it all seep into you and through and through you, such a beatific sense of peace surges over you that, gradually, trivial things like athletic shortcomings seem superficial and remote.

Later, too, up in her room, slowly undressing in the moonlight, she let herself yield to the sweeter spell. She loved her little room, especially when but dimly lit by soft white strips of the moon through the window. She loved the dotted Swiss curtains blowing, and the white valanced little bed, and the white valanced little dressing table, all dim and misty save where a broad shaft of light gave a divine patch of illumination to undress by. She said her prayers on her knees by the window, where she could keep open but unsacrilegious eyes on God's handiwork outside—the divine miracle of everyday things transformed into shimmering glory.

A soft brushing against her ankles told her that Poppylinda, her cat, had come to say good-night. She lifted her pet up to the sill.

"See the beautiful night, Poppy," she said. "See!—it's just like a great, soft, lovely, blue-silver bed!"

Poppy gave a gentle purr of acquiescence. Missy was sure it was acquiescence. She was convinced that Poppy had a fine, appreciative, discriminating mind. Aunt Nettie scouted at this; she denied that she disliked Poppy, but said she "liked cats in their place." Missy knew this meant, of course, that inwardly she loathed cats; that she regarded them merely as something which musses up counterpanes and keeps outlandish hours.

Aunt Nettie was perpetually finding fault with Poppy; but Missy had noted that Aunt Nettie and all the others who emphasized Poppy's imperfections were people whom Poppy, in her turn, for some reason could not endure. This point she tried to make once when Poppy had been convicted of a felonious scratch, but, of course, the grown-ups couldn't follow her reasoning. Long since she'd given up trying to make clear the real merits of her pet; she only knew that Poppy was more loving and lovable, more sympathetic and comprehending, than the majority of humans. She could count on Poppy's never jarring on any mood, whether grave or gay. Poppy adored listening to poetry read aloud, sitting immovable save for slowly blinking eyes for an hour at a stretch. She even had an appreciation for music, often remaining in the parlor throughout her mistress' practice period, and sometimes purring an accompaniment to tunes she especially liked—such tunes as "The Maiden's Prayer" or "Old Black Joe with Variations."

There was, too, about her a touch of something which Missy thought must be mysticism; for Poppy heard sounds and saw things which no one else could—following these invisible objects with attentive eyes while Missy saw nothing, then, sometimes, she would get up suddenly, switching her tail, and watch them as they evidently disappeared. But Missy never mentioned Poppy's gift of second sight; she knew the old people would only laugh.

Now she cuddled Poppy in her lap and, with a sense of companionship, enjoyed the landscape of silvered loveliness and peace. A sort of sad enjoyment, but pleasantly sad. Occasionally she sighed, but it was a sigh of deep content. Such things as perching dizzily atop a horse's back, even cantering in graceful insouciance, seemed far, far away.

Yet, after she was in her little white bed, in smiling dreams she saw herself, smartly accoutered in gleaming boots and pepper and salt riding breeches, galloping up to Pieker's grocery and there, in the admiring view of the postoffice loafers and of a dumfounded Arthur, cantering insouciantly across the sidewalk and into the store!

Her dream might have ended there, nothing more than a fleeting phantasm, had not Tess, the following week, come into possession of Gypsy.

Gypsy was a black pony with a white star on her forehead and a long wavy tail. She was a pony with a personality—from the start Missy recognized the pony as a person just as she recognized Poppy as a person. When Gypsy gazed at you out of those soft bright eyes, or when she pricked up her ears with an alert listening gesture, or when she turned her head and switched her tail with nonchalant unconcern—O, it is impossible to describe the charm of Gypsy. That was it—"charm"; and the minute Missy laid eyes on the darling she succumbed to it. She had thought herself absurdly but deep rootedly afraid of all horseflesh, but Gypsy didn't seem a mere horse. She was pert, coquettish, coy, loving, inquisitive, naughty; both Tess and Missy declared she had really human intelligence.

She began to manifest this the very day of her arrival. After Tess had ridden round the town and shown off properly, she left the pony in the side yard of the sanitarium while she and Missy slipped off to the summer house to enjoy a few stolen chapters from "The Duchess." There was high need for secrecy for, most unreasonably, "The Duchess" had been put under a parental ban; moreover, Tess feared there were stockings waiting to be darned.

Presently they heard Mrs. O'Neill calling, but they sat still, stifling their giggles. Gypsy, who had sauntered up to the summer house door, poked in an inquisitive nose. Mrs. O'Neill didn't call again, so Tess whispered: "She thinks we're gone over to your house—we can go on reading."

After a while Missy glanced up and nudged Tess. "Gypsy's still there—just standing and looking at us! See her bright eyes—the darling!"

"Yes, isn't she cute?" agreed Tess.

But, just at that, a second shadow fell athwart the sunny sward, a hand pushed Gypsy's head from the opening, and Mrs. O'Neill's voice said:

"If you girls don't want your whereabouts given away, you'd better teach that pony not to stand with her head poked in the door for a half hour without budging!"

The ensuing scolding wasn't pleasant, but neither of the miscreants had the heart to blame Gypsy. She was so cute.

She certainly was cute.

The second day of her ownership Tess judged it necessary to give Gypsy a switching; Gypsy declined to be saddled and went circling round and round the yard in an abandon of playfulness. So Tess snapped off a peach tree switch, and, finally cornering the pony, proceeded to use it. Missy pleaded, but Tess stood firm for discipline. However, Gypsy revenged herself; for two hours she wouldn't let Tess come near her—she'd sidle up and lay her velvet nose against Missy's shoulder until Tess was within an arm's length, and then, tossing her head spitefully, she'd caper away.

No wonder the girls ejaculated at her smartness.

Finally she turned gentle as a lamb, soft as silk, and let Tess adjust the saddle; but scarcely had Tess ridden a block before—wrench—something happened to the saddle, and Tess was left seated by the roadside, while Gypsy vanished in a cloud of dust. The imp had deliberately swelled herself out so that the girth would be loose!

Every day brought new revelations of Gypsy's intelligence. Missy took to spending every spare minute at Tess'. Under this new captivation her own pet, Poppy, was thoughtlessly neglected. And duties such as practicing, dusting, and darning were deliberately shirked. Even reading had lost much of its wonted charm; the haunting, soul swelling rhythms of poetry, or the oddly phrased mediaeval romances which somehow carried you back through the centuries—into the very presence of those queenly heroines who trail their robes down the golden stairways of legend. But Missy's feet seemed to have forgotten the familiar route to the public library and, instead, ever turned eagerly toward the O'Neills—that is, toward the O'Neills' barn.

And, if she had admired Tess before, she worshiped her now for so generously permitting another to share the wonderful pony—it was like being a half owner. And the odd thing was that, though Gypsy had undeniable streaks of wildness, Missy never felt a tremor while on her. On Gypsy she cantered, she trotted, she galloped, just as naturally and enjoyably as though she had been born on horseback. Then one epochal day, emulating Tess' example, she essayed to ride astride. It was wonderful. She could imagine herself a Centaur princess. And, curiously, she felt not at all embarrassed. Yet she was glad that, back there in the barn lot, she was screened by the big barn from probably critical eyes.

But Gypsy made an unexpected dart into the barn door, through the barn, and out into the yard, before Missy realized the capricious creature's intent. And, as luck would have it, the Rev. Mr. Macgill was sitting on the porch, calling on Grandma Shears. If only it had been anybody but the Rev. Mr. Macgill! Missy cherished a secret but profound admiration for the Rev. Mr. Macgill. He had come recently to Cherryville, and was younger than ministers usually are, and, though not exactly handsome, had fascinating dark, glowing eyes. Now, as his eyes turned toward her, she suddenly prickled with embarrassment; her legs were showing to her knees! She tried vainly to pull down her skirt, then tried to head Gypsy toward the barn. But Grandma Shears, in scandalized tones, called out:

"Why, Melissa Merriam! Get down off that horse immediately!"

Shamefacedly Missy obeyed, but none too gracefully, since her legs were not yet accustomed to that straddling position.

"What in the world will you girls be up to next?" Grandma Shears went on, looking like an outraged Queen Victoria. "I don't know what this generation's coming to," she lamented, turning to the minister. "Young girls try to act like hoodlums—deliberately try! In my day girls were trained to be—and desired to be—little ladies."

Little ladies! In the minister's presence the phrase didn't fall pleasantly on Missy's ear.

"O, they don't mean any harm," he replied. "Just a little innocent frolic."

There was a ghost of a twinkle in his dark, glowing eyes. Missy didn't know whether to be grateful for his tolerance or only more chagrined because he was laughing at her. She stood, feeling red as a beet, while Grandma Shears retorted:

"Innocent frolic—nonsense! I'll speak to my daughter!" Then, to, Missy: "Now take that pony back to the lot, please, and let's see no more such disgraceful exhibitions!"

Missy felt as though she'd been whipped. She felt cold all over and shivered, as she led Gypsy back, though she knew she was blushing furiously. Concealed behind the barn door, peeping through a crack, was Tess.

"It was awful!" moaned Missy. "I can never face the Rev. Mr. Macgill again!"

"O, he's a good sport," said Tess.

"She gave me an awful calling down."

"O, grandma's an old fogy!" Missy had heard Tess thus pigeonhole her grandmother often before, but now, for the first time, she didn't feel a little secret repugnance for the rude clasification. Grandma Shear was old fogyish. But it wasn't her old fogyishness, per se, that irritated; it was the fact that her old fogyishness had made her "call down" Missy—in front of the minister. Just as if Missy were a child. Fifteen is not a child, to itself. And it can rankle and burn, when a pair of admired dark eyes are included in the situation, just as torturesomely as can twice fifteen.

The Rev. Mr. Macgill was destined to play another unwitting part in Missy's athletic drama which was so jumbled with ecstasies and disconaitures. A few days later he was invited to the Merriams' for supper. Missy heard of his coming with mingled emotions. Of course she thrilled at the prospect of eating at the same table with him—listening to a person at table, and watching him eat, gives you a singular sense of intimacy. But there was that riding astride episode. Would he, maybe, mention it and cause mother to ask questions? Maybe not, for he was, as Tess had said, a "good sport." But all the same he'd probably be thinking of it; if he should look at her again with that amused twinkle she felt she would die of shame.

That afternoon she had been out on Gypsy, and, chancing to ride by home on her way back to the sanitarium barn, was hailed by her mother.

"Missy! I want you to gather some peaches!"

"Well, I'll have to take Gypsy home first."

"O, you won't have time—it's after 5 already, and I want to make a deep dish peach pie. I hear the Rev. Mr. Macgill's especially fond of it. You can take Gypsy home after supper. Now hurry up! I'm behind hand already."

So Missy led Gypsy into the yard and took the pail her mother brought out to her.

"The peaches aren't quite ripe," said mother, with a little worried pucker, "but they'll have to do. They have some lovely peaches at Pieker's, but papa won't hear of my trading at Pieker's any more."

Missy thought it silly of her father to have curtailed trading at Pieker's—she missed Arthur's daily visit to the kitchen door with the delivery basket—merely because Mr. Pieker had beaten father for election on the board of aldermen. Father complained it was a larger issue than party politics; even had Pieker been a Republican he'd have fought him, he said, for every one knew Pieker was abetting the waterworks graft. But Missy didn't see why that should keep him from buying things from Pieker's which mother really needed. Mother said it was "cutting off your nose to spite your face."

Philosophising on the irrationality of old people, she proceeded to get enough scarcely ripe peaches for a deep dish pie. Being horribly afraid of climbing, she used the simple expedient of grasping the lower limbs of the tree and shaking down the fruit.

"Missy!" called mother's voice from the dining room window. "That horse is slobbering all over the peaches!"

"I can't help it—she follows me every place."

"Then you'll have to tie her up!"

"Tess never ties her up in their yard!"

"Well, I won't have him slobbering over the fruit," repeated mother, firmly.

"I'll—climb the tree," said Missy desperately.

And she did. She was in mortal terror—every second she was sure she was going to fall—but she couldn't bear the vision of Gypsy's reproachful eyes above a strangling halter. Gypsy shouldn't think her hostess, so to speak, less kind than her own mistress.

The peach pie came out beautifully, and the supper promised to be a great success. Mother had zealously ascertained the Rev. Mr. Macgill's favorite dishes, and was flushed but triumphant; she came of a devout family that loved to feed preachers well. And every one was in fine spirits; only Missy, at the first, had a few bad moments. Would he mention it? He might think it his duty, think that mother should know. It was maybe his duty to tell. Preachers have a sterner creed of duty than other people, of course. She regarded him anxiously from under the veil of her lashes, wondering what would happen if he did tell. Mother would be horribly ashamed, and she herself would be all the more ashamed because mother was. Aunt Netty would be satirically disapproving and say cutting things. Father would probably just laugh, but later he'd be serious and severe. And not one of them would ever, ever understand.

As the minutes went by her strain of suspense gradually lessened. The Rev. Mr. Macgill was chatting away easily—about the delicious chicken stuffing and quince jelly, and the election, and the repairs on the church steeple, and things like that. Now and then he caught Missy's eye, but his expression for her was exactly the same as for the others—no one could suspect there was any secret between them. He was a good sport!

Once a shadow passed outside the window. Gypsy! Missy saw that he saw, and, as his glance came back to rest upon herself, for a second time her heart surged. But something in his eyes—she couldn't define exactly what it was save that it was neither censorious nor quizzical—subtly gave her reassurance. It was as if he had told her in so many words that everything was all right, for her not to worry the least little bit.

All of a sudden she felt blissfully at peace. She smiled at him for no reason at all and he smiled back—a nice, not at all amused, kind of smile. O, he was a perfect brick! And what glorious eyes he had! And that fascinating habit of flinging his hair back with a quick toss of the head. How gracefully he used his hands. And what lovely, distinguished table manners—she must practice that trick of lifting your napkin, delicately and swiftly, so as barely to touch your lips. She ate her own food in a kind of trance, unaware of what she was eating; yet it was like eating supper in heaven.

And then, at the very end, something terrible happened. Marguerite had brought in the pièce de résistance, the climatic dish toward which mother had built the whole meal—the deep dish peach pie, sugar coated, fragrant, and savory—and placed it on the serving table near the open window. There was a bit of wire loose at the lower end of the screen, and in the one second Marguerite's back was turned—just one second, but just long enough—Missy saw a velvety nose fumble with the loose wire, saw a sleek neck wedge itself through the crevice, and a long red tongue lap approvingly over the sugar coated crust.

Missy gasped audibly. Mother followed her eyes, turned, saw, jumped up—but it was too late. Mrs. Merriam viciously struck at Gypsy's muzzle and pushed the encroaching head back through the aperture.

"Get away from here!" she cried angrily. "You little beast!"

"I think the pony shows remarkably good taste," commented the Rev. Mr. Macgill, trying to pass the calamity off as a joke. But his hostess wasn't capable of an answering smile; she gazed despairfully, tragically, at the desecrated confection.

"I took such pains with it," she almost wailed. "It was a deep dish peach pie—I made it specially for Mr. Macgill."

"Well, I'm not particularly fond of peach pie, anyway," said the minister, meaning to be soothing.

"O, but I know you are! Mrs. Allen said that at her house you took two helpings—that you said it was your favorite dessert."

The minister coughed a little cough—he was caught in a somewhat delicate situation; then, always tactful, replied: "Perhaps I did say that—her peach pie was very good. But I'm equally fond of all sweets—I have a sweet tooth."

At this point Missy gathered her courage to quaver a suggestion. "Couldn't you just take off the top crust, mother? Gypsy didn't touch the underneath part. Why can't you just——"

But her mother's scandalized look silenced her. She must have made a faux pas. Father and the Rev. Mr. Macgill laughed outright, and Aunt Nettie smiled a withering smile.

"That's a brilliant idea," she said satirically. "Perhaps you'd have us pick out the untouched bits of the crust, too!" Missy regarded her aunt reproachfully but helplessly; she was too genuinely upset for any repartee. Why did Aunt Nettie like to put her "in wrong"? Her suggestion seemed to her perfectly reasonable. Why didn't they act on it? But, of course, they'd ignore it, just making fun of her now, but punishing her afterward. For she divined very accurately that they would hold her accountable for Gypsy's blunder—even though the blunder was rectifiable; it was a big pie, and most of it was as good as ever. They were unreasonable, unjust.

Mother seemed unable to tear herself away from the despoiled masterpiece.

"Come, mamma," said father, "it's nothing to make such a fuss about. Just trot out some of that apple sauce of yours. Mr. Macgill doesn't get to taste apple sauce like that every day." He turned to the minister. "The world's full of apple sauce—but there's apple sauce and apple sauce. Now, my wife's apple sauce is apple sauce! I tell her it's a dish for a king."

And the Rev. Mr. Macgill, after sampling the impromptu dessert, assured his hostess that her husband's eulogy had been only too moderate. He vowed he had never eaten such apple sauce. But Mrs. Merriam still looked bleak. She knew she could make a better deep dish peach pie than Mrs. Allen could. And then, to give the minister apple sauce and nabiscos—the first time he had eaten at her table in two months.

Missy, who knew her mother well, couldn't help feeling a deep degree of sympathy; besides, she wished the Rev. Mr. Macgill might have had his pie—she liked the Rev. Mr. Macgill better than ever. But she dreaded her first moments after the guest had departed; mother could be terribly stern.

Nor did her fears prove groundless.

"Now, Missy," ordered her mother in coldly irate tones, "you take that horse straight back to Tess. This is the last straw! For days you've been no earthly use—your practicing neglected, no time for your chores, just nothing but that everlasting horse!"

That everlasting horse! Missy's chin quivered and her eyes filled. But mother went on inflexibly: "I don't want you ever to bring it here again. And you can't go on living at Tess', either. We'll see that you catch up with your practicing."

"But, mother," tremulously seeking for an argument, "I oughtn't to give up such a fine chance to become a horsewoman, ought I?"

It was an unlucky phrase, for Aunt Nettie was there to catch it up.

"A horsewoman!" and she laughed in sardonic glee. "Well, I must admit there's one thing horsy enough about you—you always smell of manure these days."

Wounded and on the defensive, Missy tried to make her tone chilly. "I wish you wouldn't be so indelicate, Aunt Nettie," she said.

But Aunt Nettie wasn't abashed. "A horsewoman!" she chortled again. "I suppose Missy sees herself riding to hounds! All dressed up in a silk hat and riding breeches like pictures of society people back east!"

It didn't add to Missy's comfiture to know she had, in truth, harbored this ridiculed vision of herself. She colored and stood hesitant.

"Some one ought to put pants on that O'Neill girl, anyway," continued Aunt Nettie with what seemed to her niece unparalleled malice. "Helen Allison says the doctor saw her out in the country riding a-straddle. Her mother ought to spank her."

Mother looked at Missy sharply. "Don't let me ever hear of you doing anything like that!"

Missy hung her head, but luckily mother took it for just a general attitude of dejection. "I can't tolerate tomboys," she went on. "I can't imagine what's come over you lately."

"It's that O'Neill girl," said Aunt Nettie.

Mother sighed; Missy couldn't know she was lamenting the loss of her sweet, shy, old fashioned little girl. But when she spoke next her accents were firm.

"Now, you go and take that horse home. But come straight back and get to bed, so you can get an early start at your practicing in the morning. Right here I'm going to put my foot down. It isn't because I want to be harsh—but you never seem to know when to stop a thing. It's all well and good to be fond of dumb animals, but when it comes to a point where you can think of nothing else——"

The outstanding import of the terrific and unjust tirade was that Missy should not go near the sanitarium or the pony for a week.

When mother "put her foot down" like that, hope was gone, indeed. And a whole week! That is a long, long time when hope is deferred—especially when one is 15 and all days are long. At first Missy didn't see how she was ever to live through the endless period, but, strangely enough, the dragging days brought to her a change of mood. It is odd how the color of our mood, so to speak, can utterly change; how one day we can desire one kind of thing acutely, and then, the very next day, crave something quite different.

One morning Missy awoke to a dawn of mildest sifted light and bediamonded dew upon the grass; soft plumes of silver, through the mist, seemed to trim the vines of the summer house and made her catch her breath in ecstasy. All of a sudden she wanted nothing so much as to get a book and steal off alone somewhere. The right kind of a book, of course—something sort of strange and sad that would make your strange, sad feelings mount up and up inside you till you could almost die of your beautiful sorrow.

As soon as her routine of duties was finished she gained permission to go to the library. As she walked slowly, musingly, down Maple avenue, her emotions were fallow ground for every touch of nature; the slick greensward of all the lawns, glistening under the torrid azure of the great arched sky, made walking along the shady sidewalk inexpressibly sweet; the many hued flowers in all the flower beds seemed to sing out their vying colors; the strong, hard wind passed almost visible fingers through the thick, rustling mane of the trees. O, she hoped she would find the right kind of book!

Mother, back on the porch, looked up from her sewing to watch the disappearing figure, and smiled.

"We have our little girl back again," she observed to Aunt Nettie.

"I wish that O'Neill girl'd move away," Aunt Nettie said. "Missy's a regular chameleon."

It's a pity Missy couldn't hear her new classification; it would have interested her tremendously; she was always interested in the perplexing vagaries of her own nature. However, at the library she was quite happy; for she found two books, each the "right" kind, though different. One was called "Famous Heroines of Mediæval Legend." They all had names of strange beauty and splendor—Guinevere, Elaine, Vivien—names which softly rustled in syllables of silken brocade.

The other book was no less satisfying. It was a book of poems—wonderful poems, by a man named Swinburne—lilting, haunting things of beauty which washed through her soul like the waves of a sun bejeweled sea. She read the choicest verses over and over till she knew them by heart.

Before the beginning of years, there came to the making of man and, equally lovely:

From too much love of living, from hope and fear set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving whatever gods may be
That no life lives forever; that dead men rise up never;
That even the weariest river winds somewhere safe to sea . . .

The verses brought her beautiful, stirring thoughts to weave into verses of her own when she should find a quiet hour in the summer house; or to incorporate into soul soothing "improvisings" at the piano.

Next morning, after her hour's stint at "finger exercises," she improvised, and it went beautifully. She knew it was a success both because of her exalted feelings and because Poppy meowed out in discordant disapproval only once; the rest of the time Poppy purred as appreciatively as for "The Maiden's Prayer!" Dear Poppy! Missy felt suddenly contrite for her defection from faithful Poppy. And Poppy was getting old—Aunt Nettie said she'd already lived much longer than most cats. She might die soon. Through a swift blur of tears Missy looked out toward the summer house, where, beneath the ramblers, she decided Poppy should be buried. Poor Poppy! The tears came so fast she couldn't wipe them away. She didn't dream that Swinburne was primarily responsible for those tears.

Yet even her sadness held a strange, poignant element of bliss. It struck her, oddly, that she was almost enjoying her week of punishment—that she was enjoying it. Why was she enjoying it, since, when mother first banned athletic pursuits, she had felt like a martyr? It was queer. She pondered the mysterious complexity of her nature.

There passed two more days of this inexplicable content. Then came the thunderstorm. It was, perhaps, the thunderstorm that really deserves the blame for Missy's climactic athletic catastrophe. No lightning bolt struck, yet that thunderstorm indubitaly played its part in Missy's athletic destiny. It was the causation of renewed turmoil after time of peace.

Tess had telephoned that morning and asked Missy to accompany her to the library. But Missy had to practice. In her heart she didn't really care to go, for, after her stint was finished, she was contemplating some new improvisings. However, the morning didn't go well. It was close and sultry, and, though she tried to make her fingers march and trot and gallop as the "exercises" dictated, something in the oppressive air set her nerves to tingling. Besides it grew so dark she couldn't see the notes distinctly. Finally she abandoned her lesson. But even improvising failed of its wonted charm. Her fingers kept striking the wrong keys. Then a sudden, ear splitting thunderclap hurled her on to a shrieking discord.

She jumped up from the piano; she was horribly afraid of thunderstorms—mother wouldn't mind if she stopped till the storm was over. She longed to go and sit close to mother, to feel the protection of her presence; but, despite the general softening of her mood, she had maintained a certain stiffness toward the family. So she crouched on a sofa in the darkest corner of the room, hiding her eyes, stopping her ears.

Then a sudden thought brought her bolt upright. Gypsy! Tess had said Gypsy was afral dof thunderstorms—awfully afraid. And Gypsy was all alone in that big, gloomy barn—Tess blocks away at the library.

She tried to hide among the cushions again, but visions of Gypsy, with her bright, inquisitive eyes, her funny little petulances, her endearing cajoleries, kept rising before her. She felt a stab of remorse; that she could have let even the delights of "reading" and "improvising" compensate for separation from such a darling pony. She had been selfish, self-centered. And now Gypsy was alone in that old barn, trembling and neighing . . .

Finally, unable to endure the picture longer, she crept out to the hall. She could hear mother and Aunt Nettie in the sitting room—she couldn't get an umbrella from the closet. So, without umbrella or hat, she stole out the front door. Above was a continuous network of flame, as though some one were scratching immense matches all over the surface of heaven; but doggedly she ran on. The downpour caught her, but on she sped, though rain and hail hammered her head, blinded her eyes, and drove her drenched garments against her flesh.

She found Gypsy huddled, quivering and taut in a corner of the stall. She put her arms around the satiny neck, and they mutely comforted each other. It was thus that Tess discovered them; she, too, had run to Gypsy, though it had taken longer, as she had farther to go. But she was not so wet as Missy, having borrowed an umbrella at the library.

"I didn't wait to get an umbrella," Missy couldn't forebear commenting, and slightly slurring the truth.

Tess seemed a bit annoyed. "Well, you didn't have to go out in the rain, anyway. Guess I can be depended on to look out for my own pony, can't I?"

But Missy's tactful rejoinder, that she'd only feared Tess mightn't be able to accomplish the longer distance, served to dissipate the shadow of jealousy. Before the summer storm had impetuously spent itself the friends were crowded companionably in the feed box, feeding the reassured Gypsy peppermint sticks—Tess had met Arthur Simpson on her way to the library—and talking earnestly.

The earnest talk was born of an illustration Tess had seen in a magazine at the library. It was a society story, and the illustration showed the heroine in riding costume.

"She looked awfully swagger," related Tess. "Flicking her crop against her boot, and a derby hat and stock collar and riding breeches. I think breeches are a lot more swagger than habits."

"Do you think they're a little bit—indelicate?" ventured Missy, remembering her mother's recent invective against tomboys.

"Of course not!" denied Tess, disdainfully. "Valerie Jones, in Macon City, wears 'em, and she's awfully swell. Her father's a banker. She's in the thick of things at the country club. It's depasse to ride side saddle, anyway."

Missy was silent; even when she felt herself misunderstood by her family and maltreated she had a bothersome conscience.

"There's no real class to riding horseback," Tess went on, "unless you're up to date. You got to be up to date. Of course, Cherryvale's slow, but that's no reason we've got to be slow, is it?"

"No-o," agreed Missy, hesitantly. But she was emboldened to mention her father's discarded pepper and salt trousers. At the first she didn't intend really to appropriate them, but Tess caught up the idea enthusiastically. She immediately began making concrete plans, and soon Missy caught her fervor. That picture of herself as a dashing, fearless horsewoman had come to life again.

When she got home, mother, looking worried, was waiting for her.

"Where on earth have you been? Look at that straggly hair! And that dress—fresh just this morning—limp as a dish rag!"

Missy tried to explain, but the anxiety between mother's eyes deepened to lines of crossness.

"For heaven's sake! To go rushing off like that without a raincoat or even an umbrella! And you pretend to be afraid of thunderstorms! Now, Missy, it isn't because you've ruined your dress or likely caught your death of cold, but to think you'd willfully disobey me! What on earth am I to do with you?"

She made Missy feel like an unregenerate sinner. And Missy liked her stinging, smarting sensations no better because she felt she didn't deserve them. That heavy sense of injustice somewhat deadened any pricks of guilt when later she stealthily removed the pepper and salts from the upstairs store closet.

But Aunt Nettie's eagle eyes chanced to see her. She went to Mrs. Merriam.

"What do you suppose Missy wants of those old pepper and salt pants?"

"I don't know, Nettie. Why?"

"She's just sneaked 'em off to her room. When she saw me coming up the stairs she scampered as if Satan was after her. What do you suppose she wants of them?"

"I can't imagine," repeated Mrs. Merriam. "Maybe she hardly knows herself—girls that age are like a boiling tea kettle, you know; their imagination keeps bubbling up and spilling over, and then disappears into vapor. I sometimes think we bother Missy too much with questions—she doesn't know the answers herself."

Mrs. Merriam was probably feeling the compunctions mothers often feel after they have scolded. Aunt Nettie sniffed a little, but Missy wasn't questioned. And now the scene of our story may shift to a sunny morning a few days later, and to the comparative seclusion of the sanitarium barn. There has been, for an hour or more, a suppressed sound of giggles, and Gypsy, sensing excitement in the air, stands with pricked up ears and bright, inquisitive eyes. Luckily there has been no intruder—just the three of them, Gypsy and Missy and Tess.

"You're wonderful—simply wonderful! It's simply too swagger for words!" It was Tess speaking.

Missy gazed down at herself. It was swagger, she assured herself. It must be swagger—Tess said so. Almost as swagger, Tess asseverated, as the riding outfit worn by Miss Valerie Jones, who was the swaggerest member of Macon City's swaggerest young set. Yet, despite her assurance of swaggerness, she was conscious of a certain uneasiness. She knew she shouldn't feel embarrassed; she should feel only swagger. But she couldn't help a sense of awkwardness, almost of distaste; her legs felt—and looked—so queer! So conspicuous! The upper halves of them were clothed in two separate envelopments of pepper and salt material, gathered very full and puffy over the hips, but drawn in tightly toward the knee in a particularly swagger fashion. Below the knee the swagger tight effect was sustained by a pair of long buttoned "leggings."

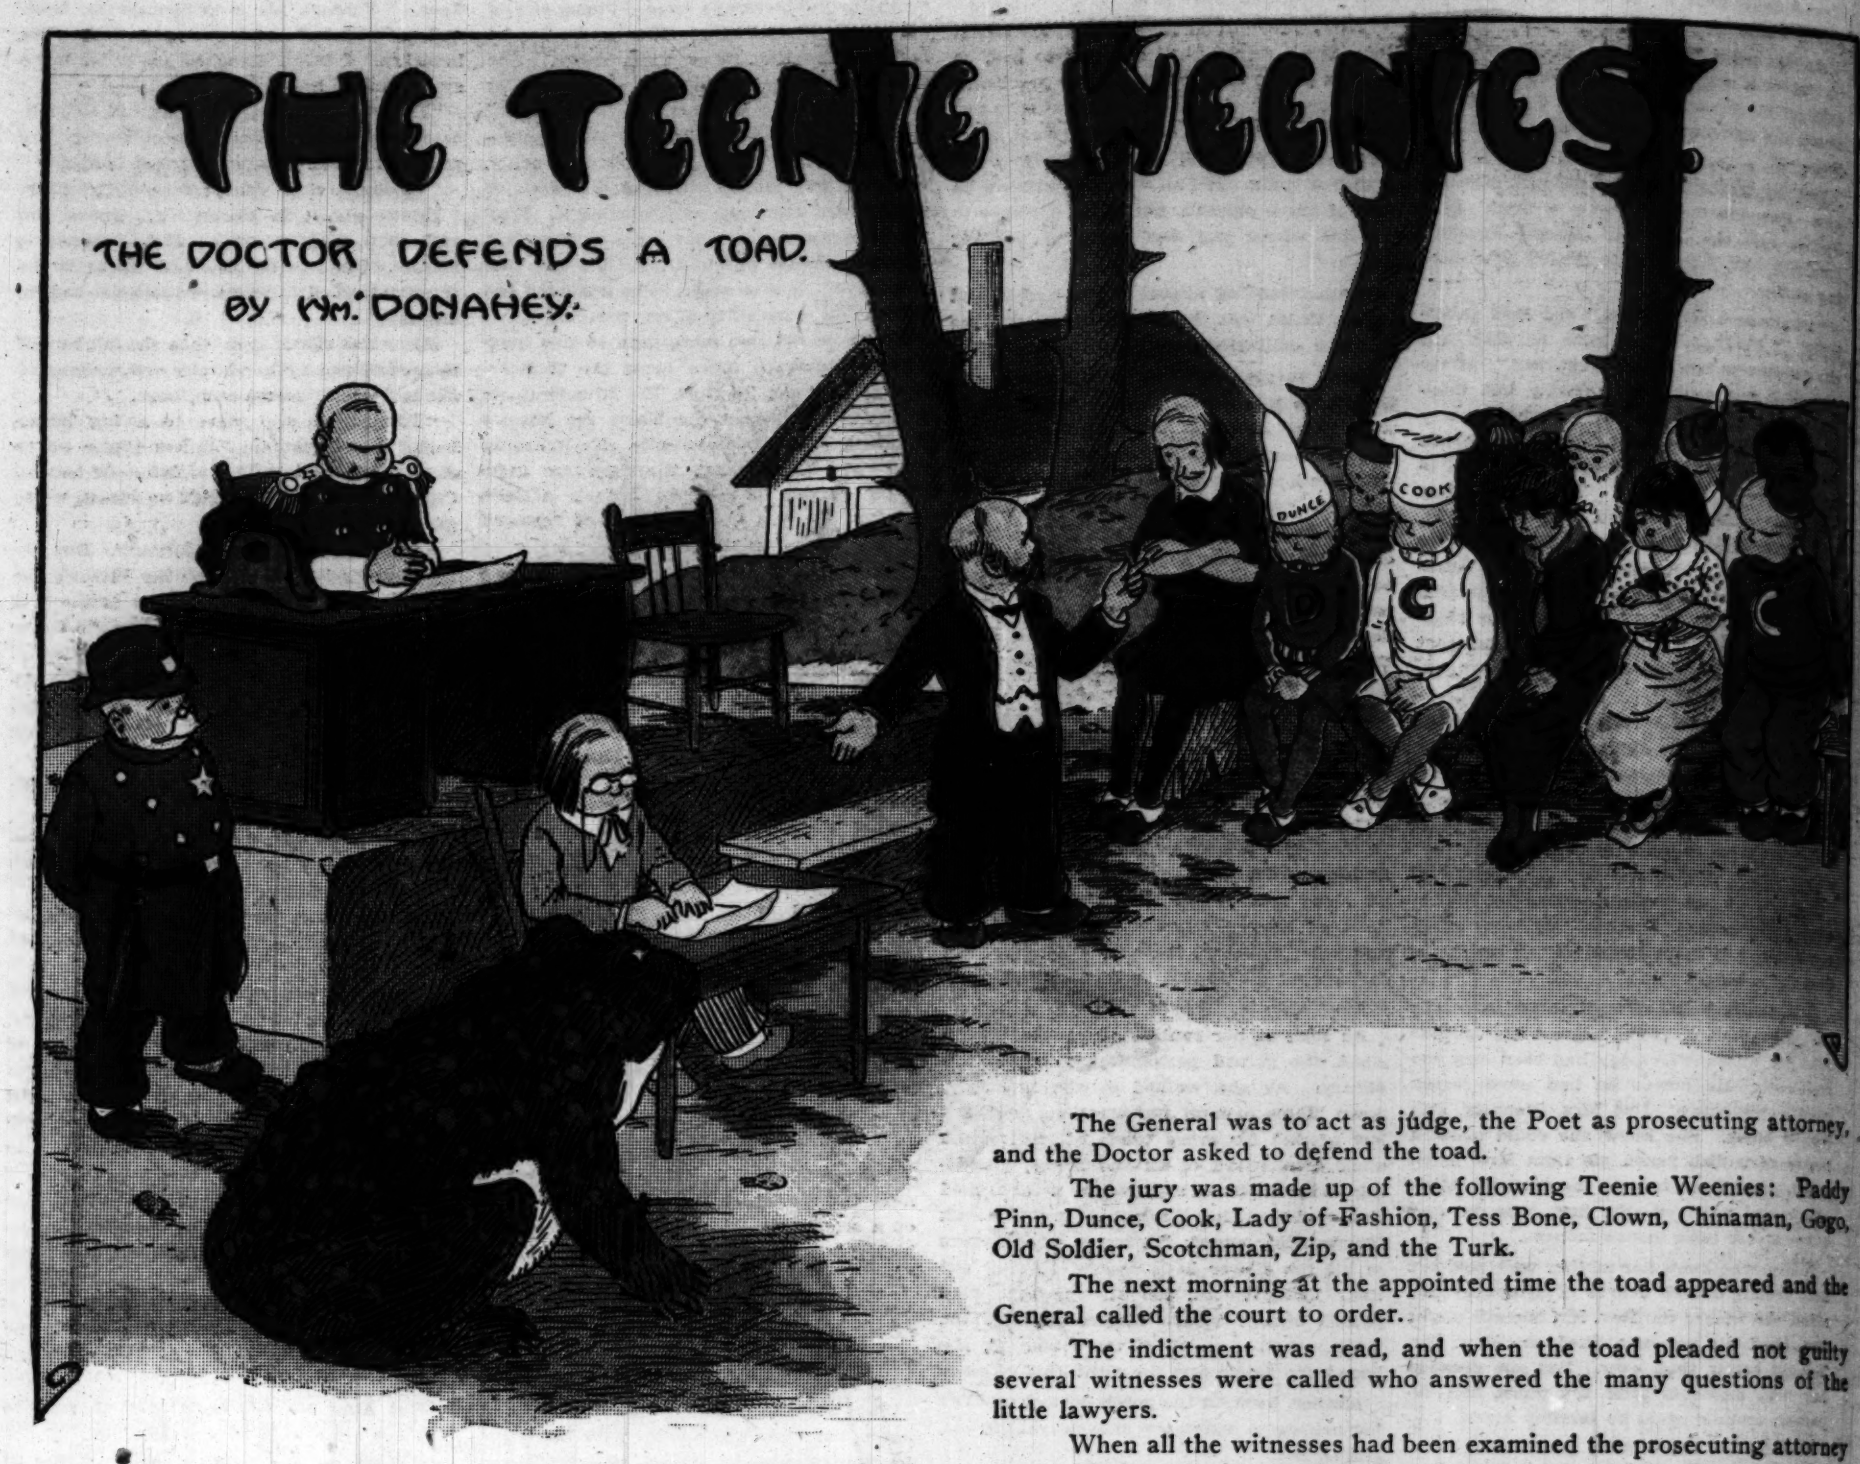
THE TEENIE WEENIES

THE DOCTOR DEFENDS A TOAD.

BY WM. DONAHEY.



SYNOPSIS—A big toad had been seen several times around the Teenie Weenie village and the little folks were much worried. The Lady of Fashion, Mrs. Lover and the Twins ran across the toad one day and they were so frightened they climbed onto the head of a hatchet and screamed for help. The Teenie Weenies were greatly frightened, so the General decided to call out the army and chase the toad away.

"DON'T do that, General. Don't call out the army. That toad hasn't done anything," cried the Doctor, as he rushed up to the General, who had just issued orders for the mobilization of the Teenie Weenie army.

"He hasn't!" shouted the General. "What do you call scaring the life out of our women. Is that nothing?"

"It's not good enough reason to call out the army," cried the Doctor. "Don't call out the army, and I'll get that toad to come over here and stand trial. We'll have a regular fair and square trial, and I believe when you have all heard the evidence you'll all be surprised."

"That's fair enough," said the Old Soldier, who was standing near.

"All right," agreed the General. "Bring him over and we'll give him a chance to defend himself."

The Doctor hurried to the tall grass into which the toad had disappeared, where he soon found the big fellow.

The Doctor told the toad how the Teenie Weenies wanted to send the army after him and that he had persuaded them to give the toad a squafe trial.

"Sure!" exclaimed the toad when the Doctor had finished. "I never hurt any one in my whole life, and I'm perfectly willing to stand trial if I get a fair and square deal."

The Doctor assured the toad that he would be treated with all respect, and the Doctor offered to act as his lawyer.

The toad agreed to come over to the Teenie Weenie village the next morning, and the Doctor hurried home with the good news.

"Where will we hold court?" asked the General. "The school house would be the right place, but that toad is too big to get through the doorway."

"We'd better have it outdoors," suggested the Doctor.

The Teenie Weenies considered this the only way out of the question, and they set to work making the necessary arrangements back of the hospital.

The top of an old candy box was used as the judge's bench, and several benches were set up for the jury.

The General's desk was carried out of the library and placed on the candy box, and a small table and two chairs made up the rest of the furnishings.

The General was to act as judge, the Poet as prosecuting attorney, and the Doctor asked to defend the toad.

The jury was made up of the following Teenie Weenies: Paddy Pinn, Dunce, Cook, Lady of Fashion, Tess Bone, Clown, Chinaman, Gogo, Old Soldier, Scotchman, Zip, and the Turk.

The next morning at the appointed time the toad appeared and the General called the court to order.

The indictment was read, and when the toad pleaded not guilty several witnesses were called who answered the many questions of the little lawyers.

When all the witnesses had been examined the prosecuting attorney stepped before the jury and made a short speech against the toad.

"Look at this ugly creature," cried the Poet, pointing to the toad. "His appearance is enough to scare the very wits out of the bravest man, and when I think of our dainty and lovely women meeting this monster face to face it makes my flesh fairly creep. He is dangerous to our peace, and this toad should not be allowed to run at will, scaring our women and children. I ask that he be banished from our community for ever and a day."

Next the Doctor addressed the jury, and his wise and kindly remarks will be remembered for many years by all the tiny folks who were gathered beneath the rose bush that day.

"Gentlemen and ladies of the jury," began the Doctor, "you have an opportunity to right a great injustice here today. Before you stands this poor toad accused of frightening our women and children.

"Maybe he has frightened some of us, but it is not his fault so much as our own. We were frightened through superstition and lies, and I hope that you will agree with me that this toad is, and should be, our very best friend instead of our enemy.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, do you know that this toad lives entirely on bugs and worms. He hops about near our houses and eats the vicious bugs and worms which annoy us so much. If it hadn't been for this toad our garden would have been destroyed by worms, for this ugly toad has spent the entire summer keeping our garden free from these pests.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, if it were not for toads our children would be in danger most of the time, for all of you know how dangerous bugs are to the little tots. This toad keeps the place free of bugs and worms, thereby making it safe for our children. None of the witnesses has proved that the toad has harmed them—he has hardly looked at them—they themselves have been frightened simply through silly, unfounded fears.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I ask you to right a great injustice and acquit this toad, for he is a real friend of the Teenie Weenies."

When the Doctor sat down the jurors talked among themselves for a few seconds and presently Paddy Pinn, who was foreman of the jury, announced that they had made a decision.

"We find this toad not guilty," said Paddy, when the General asked for the decision. "And we ask that he be requested to live near the shoe house as long as he likes."

The poor toad was made so happy by the verdict that he broke down and cried right in court, but soon he dried his tears and thanked each one of the tiny jurors.

"I certainly thank you for your kindness," said the toad, "and you can just bet your last ant I'll keep this place cleaned of bugs," and the big fellow hopped off as though he wanted to get right to work.

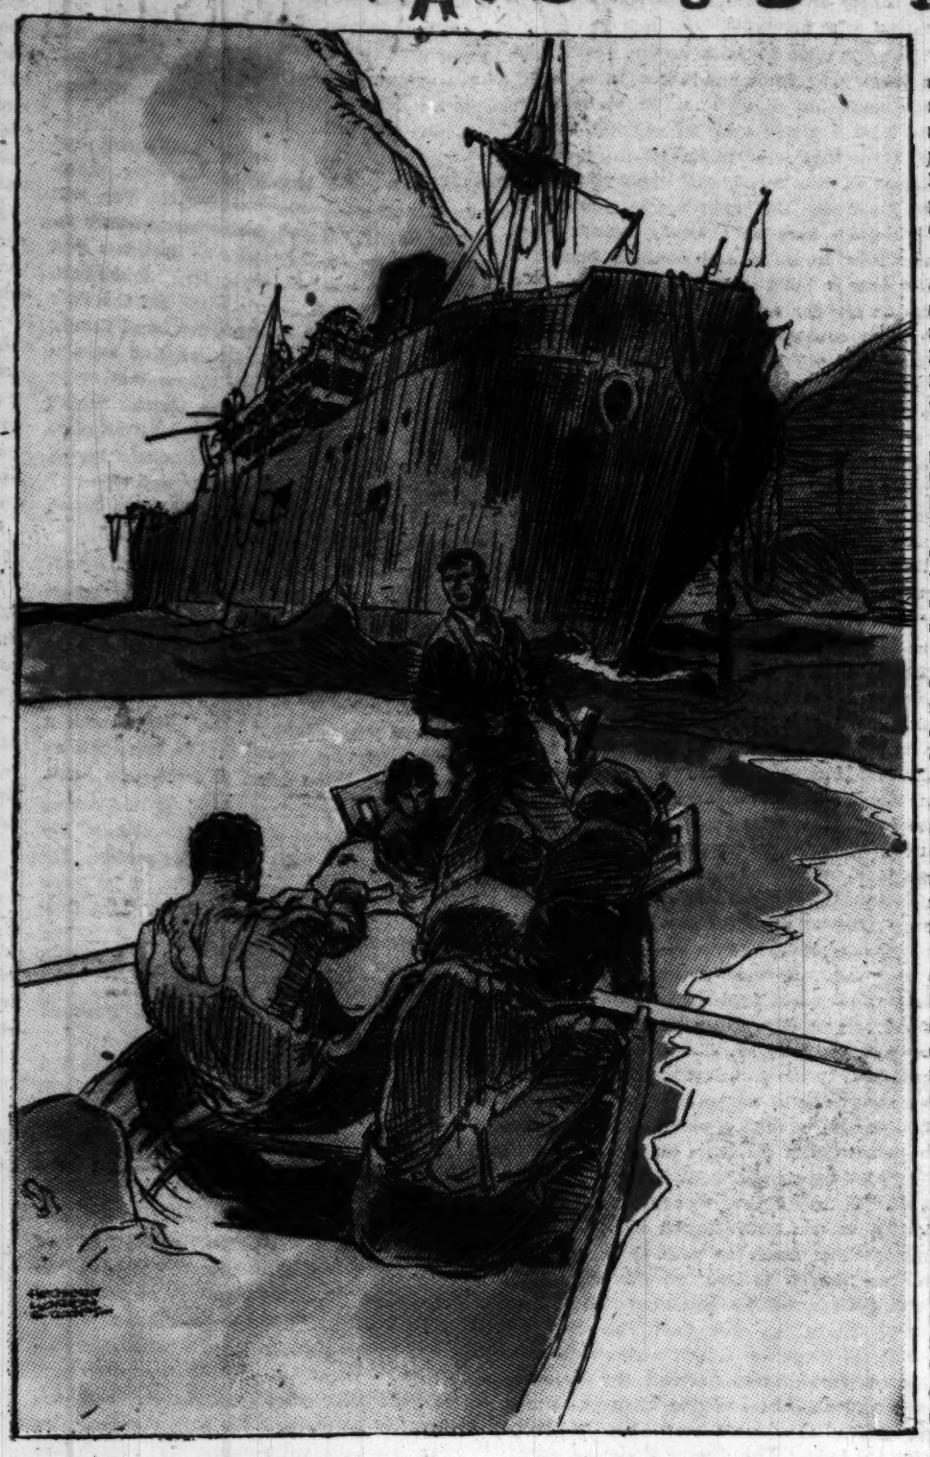
WEST WIND DRIFT by George Barr McCutcheon

THE STORY—His money stolen in a South American port on the eve of his embarking for the United States, Algernon Adonis Percival, American mining engineer, goes aboard the liner Doraine as a stowaway. The adventure begins to be amusing when, as he is at work scrubbing the deck, he is discovered by Ruth Clinton and her aunt, Mrs. Spofford, and the girl recognises him as her dancing partner of a few nights before. Percival's amusement is short lived, however. Before making his presence known to the captain he has observed certain strange goings-on about the ship and given a warning which leads to the finding of several bombs in the hold, evidently planted by German agents, for it is the year of the United States' entry into the great war. The search averts complete disaster, but not all the bombs are found, and those that remain explode, partially wrecking the vessel and setting it afire. The surviving passengers take to the lifeboats while the crew battles desperately with the flames, and, after a long fight, succeeds in extinguishing them. On being called back to the ship, the occupants of the lifeboats find it hopelessly adrift. Class distinctions are obliterated as every one sets to work burying the dead and caring for the wounded, and Percival, his hands badly burned, finds himself the object of Ruth Clinton's friendly solicitude, as well as that of Olga Obesky, a beautiful Russian dancer, who has taken a great fancy to him. The ship is caught in a gale, from which it emerges in a sinking condition, but on the second morning after the storm an island is sighted. A strong current draws the vessel into an opening in the rocks along the shore, and it finally runs aground in the shallow waters of an inland basin. Most of the steerage passengers promptly stampede for the boats, whereupon Percival takes command of the dangerous situation and quiets the mob with a masterly harangue in Spanish—a proceeding which causes much discussion among those in the first cabin. The next day the Stars and Stripes are planted on the island, and Percival prepares passengers and crew for the probable necessity of a long stay in the uninhabited place.



Tobacco, olives, flour, hides, rugs, blankets, all these came ashore in course of time.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

The Island Town Gets Under Way.

"NOW, here is what we will have to do. We must select a site for our camp —or town, you may well say—and we must build upon it without delay. That is to be our first step. Details will come later. There are over six hundred of us here. We represent a fair-sized village. We have mechanics, carpenters, farmers, surveyors, masons and merchants, to say nothing of cooks, housekeepers, and so on. The ship contains all sorts of tools to work with; canvas for temporary quarters, beds and bedding, cooking utensils; in fact, we have everything that Robinson Crusoe didn't have, and, besides all that, we've got each other. We are not alone on a desert island. We are, my friends, as well off as the Pilgrims who landed on Plymouth Rock, and we are better off than the hardy colonists who laid the foundation for the country that flies that flag up there. Centuries ago bold adventurers set out to discover unknown lands. They were few in number and poorly equipped. But they ventured into the wilderness and built villages that grew to be cities. They went through a thousand hardships that we will never know, and they survived.

"Captain Trigger and the others selected me to make this talk to you because I have had some practical experience in establishing and developing a camp such as we will have to build. Experience has taught me one thing above all others: work, hard work of a constructive nature, is our only salvation. Unless we occupy ourselves from one day's end to another in good, hard, honest toil, we will all go mad. That's the long and the short of it. If we sat still on this boat for thirty days, doing nothing, we'd lose our minds. There isn't a man in this crowd, I am sure, who wouldn't work his head off to spare the women an hour of hardship. But the greatest hardship you women could possibly know would be idleness. There will be work for every one to do, and we can thank God for it, my friends. We will have to work for nothing. We will have to help each other. There is but one class on this island at present, and that is the working class.

"We've all got people at home waiting for us. By this time the whole world knows that the Doraine is three weeks overdue at Rio Janeiro, and that no word has been had from her. The ocean is being searched. Our friends, our relatives are doing everything in their power to get trace of this lost ship. You may depend on that. In a little while, a few weeks, at best, the ship will be given up for lost. We will be counted as dead, all of us. That's a hard, cruel thing for me to say, and I hate to say it, but we've just got to realize the position we're in. It's best that we should look at it from the worst possible angle. I do not speak jestingly when I say that we may as well consider ourselves dead—and forgotten. I am as full of hope and confidence as anybody and I am an optimist if there ever was one, but I don't work on the theory that God takes any better care of an optimist than he does of a pessimist.

"It will require months, maybe years, for us to construct a ship, and even then it will not be big enough to transport all of us. The most we can hope for is a craft that will be stout enough to go out and bring help to the rest of us. I am trying, at Captain Trigger's suggestion, to convince you that we can't build a ship, that we can't expect to get away from this island by our own endeavors, unless we go about it in the proper and sensible way. That means, first of all, that we must safeguard ourselves against time. We've got to live and we've got to keep our strength.

"Mr. Landover has made a very generous proposition. He agrees to give a hundred thousand dollars to any boat's crew that will take one of these lifeboats and make port somewhere. He fails to mention the compensation they are to receive if they never make port. He forgets that this big ship floundered around for a good many days without sighting anything but water. He would have been perfectly safe in offering a hundred million dollars, because he would never be called upon to pay it. I understand, however, that his offer still stands.

"Tomorrow morning surveying parties will be sent ashore to look for a possible site for our town. Volunteers will undertake this work. As soon as possible thereafter a temporary camp will be set up and practically every one on board will be moved from this ship. Captain Trigger and a few chosen men will remain on board. It is his wish, ladies and gentlemen. He is the captain of the Doraine. He will not leave her. We are all here today, and alive, because Captain Trigger would not leave his ship. We owe our lives to him. This is not the time to propose three cheers for the gallant master of the Doraine. It is not the time to cheer for anybody or for anything. We do not feel like cheering. We've done all the praying that is necessary. We've offered up all the thanksgiving that the situation calls for, so now we've got to roll up our sleeves and go to work."

He stepped down from the gun platform. There were no cheers. Every voice was stilled, every face was set. Many seconds passed before there was even the slightest stir among those who had listened so intently.

Then the few English speaking people from the steerage began to whisper hoarsely to their bewildered companions.

The warm summer season was well advanced in this far southern land before the strenuous, tireless efforts of the marooned settlers began to show definite results.

Some six weeks after the stranding of the Doraine stanch log cabins were in course of completion along the base of the hills overlooking the clear, rolling meadow-land to the north and east. Down in the lowlands scores of men were employed in sowing and planting. The soil was rich. Farmers and grain raisers among the passengers were unanimously of the opinion that almost any vegetable, cereal or fruit indigenous to Argentina [or at the worst, Patagonia], could be produced here. Uncertainty as to the duration of the warm period, so vital to the growing and maturing of crops, was the chief problem. No time was to be lost if there were to be harvests before the cold and blighting weather set in.

It was extremely doubtful if the spring and summer seasons combined covered more than five months in this latitude. Assuming that the climate in this open part of the world was anything like that of the Falkland Islands, the rainy season was overdue. Midwinter usually comes in July, with the temperature averaging between 35 and 10 degrees above zero over a period of four or five months. At the time of the wreck, the thermometers were registering about 70 degrees during the day, and dropping to 50 degrees or thereabouts after nightfall. This would indicate that spring was fairly well advanced and that midsummer might be figured on as coming in January. It was now the end of November. Warm weather probably would last until February or March. Possibly they would be too late with their planting, but they went about it speedily, determindedly, just the same.

All of them had had crop failures before. All of them had seen the labor of months go for naught in the blight of an evening's frost, or the sweep of a prairie fire. So here on this virgin isle, in soil whose sod had never been turned, they sowed from the bins of the slumbering ship. Wheat and oats and flax, brought from the Argentina plains; potatoes, squash and beet-root; even beans and peas were tried, but with small hope. And there were women ready to till the soil and work the gardens, women to draw the strangely fashioned plowshares as willing beasts of burden, to wield the hoe and spade, and to watch for the cherished sprout that was to glorify their deeds.

The ring of the axe resounded in the forest: the clangor of hammer and nail, the rasp of the saw, the clatter of timber went on from dawn to dusk—for there was no eight hour law in this smiling land, nor was there any other union save that of staunch endeavor, no other brotherhood except that of man. There was never a question of wage, never a dispute as to hours, never a thought of strike. Every laborer was worthy of his hire, and his hire was food!

The Doraine was gradually being dismantled. She was being stripped of every bit of material that could be used in constructing and furnishing the huts. The new camp lay not more than a mile and a half from the basin. A road had been cleared through the wood from the small, hastily constructed dock and runway on the eastern side of the basin to the open territory beyond.

Material, supplies, equipment were carried through the densely shaded avenue, and later on, after the warehouses and granaries had been built, the leafy lane witnessed the transportation of ton upon ton of stores, patiently borne in hundredweight lots, in bushel bags, in clumsy parcels, by men whose work seemed endless; wheat, barley, oats, sugar, coffee and other commodities entrusted to the steamship company for delivery in the United States. Tobacco, canned and refrigerated meats, olives, flour, figs and dates in large quantities were included in the vast cargo, to say nothing of the enormous supply of canned fruits and vegetables. Washed wool, tanned leather, homespun cotton and woolen cloth, silks, hides, furs, rugs, laces, linseed oil, blankets, all these came ashore in course of time, but of the sinister treasure that had inspired the destruction of the ship, i. e., the manganese, the rubber, the nitrates, the copper bars, and the stacks of high explosives, not a pound was moved. All this was left for another and more leisurely day.

In the end, the once luxurious liner was to be reduced to "skin and bones," to employ the trite but eminently appropriate phrase. Ultimately she became a black, unlovely skeleton, bereft of every vestige of her former opulence. Her decks were torn up and the timbers hauled away to make floors in the huts; the doors, mirrors, stairways, windows, rails, carpets, pipes, bathtubs, toilets, lamps, every foot of woodwork from stem to stern, berths, washbasins, kitchen ranges, boilers, in fact, everything that man could make use of was taken from the ship, leaving nothing of her but a hollow, echoing shell through which the wind howled or moaned a ghostly requiem.

Much of this material was carefully stacked or stored away against the day when it could be utilized in the construction of a small but sturdy ship, in which a chosen company of sailors were to fare out to sea once more in search of the world they had lost.

Tireless and indomitable engineers later on succeeded in transferring portions of the damaged machinery, including dynamos, to the camp, where in course of time their skill and ingenuity bade fair to triumph over seemingly insurmountable difficulties in the matter of restoration.

Fully six weeks elapsed, however, before the women were allowed to leave the ship for their new homes on the land, and even then they came but a few at a time and only as huts were ready and fully equipped to receive them. Each hut contained a combination kitchen and living room, with a single bedchamber. A substantial fireplace, built of stone and mortar, with a tall chimney at the back, was a feature in every house. The cracks between the logs, and all chinks, were sealed with thick layers of mortar; the ceilings, made of stout saplings, were treated in a similar manner, while the roof, resting on a sturdy ridgepole, and securely anchored, was of three layers of poles, interstices mortared and the whole covered with a vast quantity of seaweed, moss and reeds held in place by several well-fastened sections of iron railing from the decks of the Doraine. While the huts were uniform in size, shape and construction, there was nothing to prevent the occupant from subsequently enlarging and improving his house. For the present, however, the interests of all were best served by speed and compactness.

The superintendent of construction was Algernon Adonis Percival. As a matter of fact, the end of the first week found him occupying the position of general manager for the whole enterprise, an unsolicited honor but one which he was resolved that no one, great or small, should deride. He had one stormy "run-in," as he described it, with Mr. Landover and his group of satellites. This occurred about the middle of their first week on the isand when practically every able bodied man from the Doraine was at work cutting a way through the forest or in constructing the dock at the water's edge. As the incident is entitled to a very definite place in his narrative, a more or less extended account of it may be given here and now, even at the risk of being classed as a digression, or a step backward in the sequence of the history.

Mr. Landover, Mr. Block, Mr. Nicklestick and two or three other men were grouped on the after deck early one morning decrying the brainless scheme to build a camp out there in the open. Their audience included several women, among them Mrs. Spofford, Ruth Clinton, Mme. Careni-Amori, Mme. Obosky, Mrs. Block and a couple of loquacious Rio Janeiro ladies.

Percival bore down upon this group. He wasted no time in getting to the point.

"We've been at work for two days out there, gentlemen, and up to date not one of you has turned to with the rest of us. The understanding was that—"

Mr. Landover whirled on him, white with anger. "That will do!" he exclaimed. "Clear out! I do not intend to allow any such riffraff as you to order me to—— O, pray do not be alarmed, ladies! This rowdy is not likely to assault me. Nothing will happen, I assure you. Clear out, you bum—do you hear me?"

Percival was smiling. "I wish you wouldn't interrupt me, Mr. Landover. As I was saying, it was understood that every man on this ship who is well enough to—"

"Can't you see that there are ladies present? Haven't you an atom of decency about you?"

"—understood that every man on this ship was to do his share of the work laid out. I owe these ladies an apology for reminding you in their presence that the boats are leaving for shore and that if you do not get off in the next relay you will be compelled to swim to that landing over there, and I doubt very much whether any of you can make it."

"Wha'what's that?" demanded Mr. Block.

Mr. Landover was speechless. A hard glitter came to Percival's eyes, the smile left his lips.

"You heard what I said, Mr. Block. I'll make it plainer, however. If you men don't get into the next boat leaving this ship, I'm going to have you thrown overboard and made to swim to your work. I regret exceedingly, ladies, that I have been obliged to resort to harsh words in your presence, but time is so precious that I can't afford to give them a private audience."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" cried Mrs. Block, twisting her fat hands in an agony of alarm. "Maybe you better go, Moses. You vas nearly drownded twice yet in pool at White Sulphur."

"This is the most outrageous, high-handed—" began Landover, explosively, but stopped short as Percival leveled his unlovely forefinger at him.

"Cut it out, Mr. Landover, cut it out," he snapped, inelegantly. "Now, listen to me. For two days you and these boon companions of yours have been loafing on the job. While the rest of us have been working like dogs, you and your friends—you needn't look insulted, because by the looks of things they are your friends—you've been sitting up here talking to the ladies, smoking cigars, and telling every one how successfully you conduct a bank in New York. Now, Mr. Landover, you're not an old man. If you were, I'd be the first to suggest the easiest sort of work for you. You are under fifty and you're a strong, healthy man. You ride every morning in Central Park, you play golf winter and summer, and you're one of the men who made Muldoon famous.

"You are able to work as the rest of us are working. Your hands are in a much better condition than mine. If we were in New York I would take off my hat to you and admit that you are one of the greatest bankers in the world, and that you know your business. But we're not in New York. We're down here on a lonely island. You know how to build and conduct banks, I know how to build and conduct camps. We have no use for scientific bankers here, but we have considerable use for experienced camp builders. I have been put in charge of this work. I'm going to see it through. Up in the hills I got a full day's work out of my men, and there were worse men among them than you will ever be. There were gunmen, knife flingers, cutthroats, and bullies, but they had to work just the same. Just a minute, if you please. I'm not through. I think I appreciate your position, Mr. Landover.

"You regard me as a four-flusher, a tramp, maybe a thief or worse. I am but little more than half your age and I am a person of absolutely no importance. That's neither here nor there. I have been selected to run this job because Captain Trigger, with Mr. Mott and virtually every other man on this ship, believes that I know how to handle it. But even that's neither here nor there. What I'm coming to is this: As long as I am in charge of this job every man, women, and child has got to do something. Just at present there isn't much that the women and children can do, but there is work for every man who can stand on his feet. You needn't glare at me. I'm not afraid of you, Mr. Landover. You say you are going to stay on this ship. Well, I've come here to tell you that you are not going to do anything of the sort. The women and children are to remain on board until we've got houses built for them on shore, or until the time comes when there is work for them to do. If they choose to come ashore occasionally it will be to watch the men work and to cheer them up with their presence. But no man is to stay on this ship after we've got the real job going out there. Now you've heard my statement, sir. I am willing to listen for a few minutes to your side of the question. Don't all speak at once, and please be careful, there are ladies present."

While Percival did not take his eyes from Landover's face during his speech, he was aware that Miss Clinton and her aunt had turned abruptly away and were leaning against the rail a few yards distant, their backs to him. Olga Obosky and Careni-Amori were regarding him with shining, approving eyes, while Mrs. Block, gulping furiously, clasped her husband's arm and kept up a constant muttering. Something told him that Ruth Clinton and Mrs. Spofford had turned against him.

"I have nothing to say to you," said Landover, curtly. Turning on his heel, he joined the two ladies at the rail. He spoke a few words to them in a lowered tone, and then the three of them strode off without so much as a glance at the young man.

Percival flushed a dull red under his tan. His eyes followed them until they disappeared around a corner. Down in his heart he hoped that Ruth would not deny him a fleeting look of encouragement and approval.

Landover carried himself like a soldier. He was tall, well set-up, and almost offensively erect. He was a handsome man of perhaps 48. His clean shaven face was firm, aggressive, domineering. There was not a trace of gray in his dark hair. He typified strength, mentality, shrewdness, and that most essential quality in the standards of wealth and power—arrogance. In a word, he personified finance.

"Now, see here, Percival," began Nicklestick, in a most cavalier manner, greatly encouraged by the lofty conduct of the money king, "you know you can't do this sort of thing. We won't stand for it, not for a minute. We object to this high handed business. You got to realize that——"

"Object and be hanged!" snapped Percival. "The next thing you'll be calling yourselves conscientious objectors. Well, it's no use, Nicklestick. There's no such animal on board this Ark. I see a couple of boats returning from shore. You've got about fifteen minutes to shed that Stein & Bloch suit and hump into something that will never need pressing again—your working clothes. I'm doing you a kindness. That gang out there won't stand for slackers. If you're wise you'll take my word for it."

He was turning away when Nicklestick intercepted him.

"What do you think they would do, Mr. Percival?" he inquired in some agitation. "We are gentlemen. We got a right to decide for ourselves vat ve shall do. We can pay for——"

"You will find a lot of gentlemen out there who have already decided for themselves, and very cheerfully, too. You will not be lonely. If you desire any further information as to the class of laborers you will come in contact with, Mr. Nicklestick, I would suggest a careful study of the first cabin list, the second cabin list, and finally the third cabin list, if you can find such a thing. You will also run up against some excellent material from the United States navy, to say nothing of a fine lot of able seamen. They've adopted a common name. Do you know what they call each other?"

"No," said Nicklestick, wiping his brow. "Vat—vat do they call each other?"

"Men," said Percival, and walked away.

He was followed closely by Careni-Amori and Olga Obosky, and at some distance by the whispering, gesticulating men. The great soprano was profoundly agitated. Obosky, a pace or two behind her, was tense and silent. Her head was slightly bent. There was a strange, dog-like expression in her eyes as they regarded the back of Percival's head.

"But what will you do?" Careni-Amori was crying, as she clutched his arm. "He is a great man. He is a millionaire. He owns part of this steamship line, so he have inform me. You will not throw him into the water, yes?"

"As sure as you are a foot high, Madame Careni-Amori," said he, grimly.

"O, Mon Dieu! You hear him, Obosky? He means what he have say."

"Be careful, my friend," said Obosky, drawing alongside of Percival. "Do you not see how the wind blows?"

"What do you mean?"

"Have you count the cost of victory? You may lose more than you will gain."

Percival looked at her intently for a moment; then, in a flash, the meaning of her words was revealed to him.

"Even so, Madame Obosky," he returned, his jaw setting, "I am a good loser."

"The spoils do not always go to the victor," she warned him.

"I still have your luck piece," said he, smiling as he slapped his trousers leg.

"It has always brought me luck," she said, looking straight into his eyes. "It may continue to do so, who knows. Alas for you, my friend, you may yet have to turn to me for consolation. It is the ill wind that blows nobody good. Am I not shocking, Mr. Percival?"

They had lost Madame Careni-Amori, who was behind them, shrieking a command through a porthole to her maid.

He looked at her in amazement. "I don't know what to think of you, Madame Obosky." Then he grinned. "Good Lord! You—you can't be making me an offer of marriage?"

"Heaven forbid!" she cried. "I have had all I want of marriage, my friend. You will never catch me doing anything so foolish as that again. No, no! I do not desire to marry you, Mr. Percival. Nothing so dreadful as that! Suppose we would be married—what zen? Poof! Because I am an honest woman I would have to tell you some time zat I have had ze honor to be once the mistress of a crown prince, and then you would hold up your holy hands and cry out, 'My God, what kind of a woman is this I have marry?' and——O, but I would not tell you about zat crown prince until we have been married a year or two, so do not look so pleased! In a year you would be hating me so much zat you would rejoice to hear about the crown prince, and I would be loathing you so much zat I would probably have to kill you, because I do not believe in divorce any more than I believe in marriage. You see? Most women hate their husbands. They never hate their lovers. It is so difficult to get rid of the one, and so easy to keep the other; zat is the explanation. So! Now you may know zat love is the humblest thing in the world and passion the noblest, for love is for the weak while passion is for the strong. Love is easily deceived, passion never. Love endures, passion conquers. Love is blind, passion is sight itself. Love rules the world, but passion rules love. Love consents, passion demands. Love is law, passion is life. I could go on forever, but I see you do not like my discourse. Zat is because you are already in love, my friend. Poof! You will get over that!" She laughed.

Percival was white clear through. He was red blooded, but at the same time his heart was clean. Once more he found himself contrasting the honest eyed, pure hearted Ruth with this sensual scoffer. There was no denying the physical appeal of the lithe, sinuous Russian, there was no gainsaying the call of the blood. On the other hand, the American girl stood for everything his own mother exemplified in flesh and spirit.

As it is with all men, he was absolutely incapable of associating passion with the mother who bore him, or with sisters who marry and give them n'eces and nephews to adore. It was impossible, utterly impossible that they should have possessed the instincts of this woman beside him. But even as the thought raced through his mind he experienced the sudden, almost staggering realization that after all the chief, probably the only, difference between his women and Olga Obosky was that they were good.

"Do you want me to tell you what I think of you?" he inquired, his eyes hardening.

"Yes," she said, calmly. "But not now. When you have more time, my friend. I shall be very much interested to hear what you think of me. In the meantime, I am troubled for you. You are in love with her—O, yes, you are—and I am very much afraid zat you will lose h[illegible] if you are not careful. I am your friend. Be warned in time, Mr. Percival. She is sorry for him, Landover. You have humiliated him before all of us. He is the friend of her family. Go slow, my friend, or she will turn against you and you will lose her. You have still a good chance. She is more nearly in love with you than she suspects. A little good judgment on your part, my friend, and you will win. She will marry you, and when she have done so, zen you may with impunity toss Mr. Landover in the sea—but not now, my friend, not now."

"By Jove, you've got me guessing, Madame Obosky," he exclaimed, frankly puzzled. "I can't make you out at all."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Zat is because I am a thousand years old and very, O, so very wise, Mr. Percival," she returned, with a smile. "Au revoir!"

Percival went straight to Captain Trigger.

"See here, captain," he said at once, "I'm up against it with Landover. He refuses to take orders from me. I don't want to do anything drastic without consulting you. If you say I'm to let him off, that's the end of it so far as I'm concerned. Of course, I can't answer for the rest of the crowd. But if you say I am to go ahead along the line originally laid out, I'll do it."

Captain Trigger's eyes, red from loss of sleep, pinched with anxiety, rested for a few seconds on the three boats coming across the basin. Then he turned to the young man.

"Mr. Landover is one of the owners of this steamship line, Percival."

"So I understand, sir."

"He notified me this morning that he will see that I am dismissed from the service if I continue to support this silly, suicidal plan to build a camp on shore."

"Yes, sir. And you?"

"I promptly tendered my resignation as master of this vessel," answered the captain.

"You did?" cried Percival, dismayed.

"To take effect when I have tied her safely up to her pier in New York," said the old man, striking the rail with his fist.

"Great!" cried Percival.

"He has just come to me with the complaint that you have threatened to throw him overboard. Is that true, Percival?"

"Yes, sir, in a way. I mentioned as an alternative."

"Mr. Landover is no better than any of the rest of us. You will proceed to throw him overboard, Percival, if he refuses to do his share of the work."

Percival gulped, and then saluted.

"Orders, sir?"

"Orders!"

The young man started away, but the captain called him back.

"What are you going to do after you have had him thrown into the water?"

"Why, dammit all," exclaimed Percival, "what can I do but jump in and save his life? You don't suppose I'd let him drown, do you? And, God knows, nobody else would save it. They want to tar and feather him, as it is, or lynch him, or make him walk the plank."

BUSINESS OF BLUSHING

"You're sure these leggings look all right?" she demanded, anxiously.

"Of course they look all right! They look fine!"

"I wish we had some boots," with a smothered sigh.

"Well, they don't always wear boots. Lots of 'em in Macon City only wore putties. And putties are only a kind of leggings."

"They're so tight," complained the horsewoman. "My legs have got a lot fatter since——"

Thrusting out one of the mentioned members in a tentative kick, she was interrupted by the popping of an already overstrained button.

"See!" she finished, despondently. "I said they were too tight."

"You oughtn't to kick around that way," reproved Tess. "No wonder it popped off. Now I'll have to hunt for a safety pin——"

"I don't want a safety pin—I'd rather let it flop!"

The horsewoman continued to survey herself dubiously, took in the bright scarlet sweater which formed the top part of her costume. The girls had first sought a more tailored variety of coat, but pères Merriam and O'Neill were both, selfishly, very large men; Tess had brilliantly bethought the sweater—the English always wore scarlet for hunting, anyway. Missy then had warmly applauded the inspiration, but now her warmth was literal rather than figurative; it was a hot day and the sweater was knitted of heavy wool. She fingered her stock collar—one of Mrs. O'Neill's guest towels—and tried to adjust her derby more securely.

"Your father has an awfully big head," she commented.

"O, they always wear their hats 'way down over their ears." Then, a little vexed at this necessity for repeated reassurance, Tess broke out irritably:

"If you don't want to wear the get up, say so! I'll wear it! I only let you wear it first trying to be nice to you!"

Then Missy, who had been genuinely moved by Tess' decision that the first wearing of the costume should make up for her chum's week of punishment, pulled herself together.

"Of course, I want to wear it," she declared. "I think it's just fine of you to let me wear it first."

She spoke sincerely; yet within the hour she was plotting to return her friend's sacrifice with a sort of mean trick. Perhaps it was fit and just that the trick turned topsy-turvy on herself as it did. Yet the notion did not come to her in the guise of a trick on Tess. No; it came just as a daring, dashing, splendid feat in which she herself should triumphantly figure—she scarcely thought of Tess at all.

It came upon her, in all its dazzling possibilities, while she was cantering along the old road which runs back of Smith's woods. She and Tess had agreed it would be best, till they'd "broke in" Cherryvale to the novelty of breeches, to keep to unfrequented roads. But it was the inconspicuousness of the route, the lack of an admiring audience, which gave birth to Missy's startling idea. Back in the barn she'd felt self-conscious. But now she was getting used to her exposed legs, and doing really splendidly on Dr. O'Neill's saddle. Sitting there astride, swaying in gentle rhythm with Gypsy's swaying motion, she began to feel truly dashing, supremely swagger. She seemed lifted out of herself, no longer timid, commonplace, unathletic Missy Merriam, but exalted into a sort of free and easy Princess Royal of Swaggerdom. She began to wish some one might see her.

Then startling, compelling, tantalizing, came the idea. Why not ride openly back into Cherryvale, right up Main street, right by the postoffice? All those old loafers would see her who'd laughed the day she tumbled off of Ned. Well, they'd laugh the other way now. And Arthur Simpson, too. Maybe she'd even ride into Pieker's store! That certainly would surprise Arthur. True, it was Tess he'd "dared," but, of course, he never dreamed she, Missy, would ever take it up. He considered her unathletic—sort of ridiculous. Wouldn't it be great to "show" him? She visioned the amazement, the admiration, the respect which would shine in his eyes as, insouciantly and yet with dash, she deftly maneuvered Gypsy's reins and cantered right into the store!

Afterwards she admitted that a sort of madness must have seized her. Yet, as she raced back toward the town, gently swaying in unison with her mount, her pepper and salt legs pressing the pony's sides with authority, she felt complacently, exultantly sane.

And still so when, blithe and debonnair, she galloped up Main street, past piazzas she pleasurably sensed were not unpeopled or unimpressed; past the courthouse, whence a group of men were emerging and stopped dead to stare; past the postoffice, where a crowd awaiting the noon mail swelled the usual bunch of loafers; on to Pieker's, where, sure enough, Arthur stood in the door!

"Holy cats!" he ejaculated. "Where in the world did——"

"Dare me to ride in the store?" demanded Missy, flicking the air with her crop and speaking insouciantly. She was scarcely aware of the excited sounds from the postoffice, for as yet her madness was upon her.

"O, I don't think you could get her in—you'd better not try!"

Missy exulted—he looked as if actually afraid she might attempt it. As a matter of fact Arthur was afraid; he was afraid Missy Miriam had suddenly gone out of her head. There was a queer look in her eyes—she didn't look herself at all. He was afraid she might really do that crazy stunt; and he was afraid the boss might return from lunch any second, and catch her doing it and blame him! Yes, Arthur Simpson was afraid; and Missy's blood sang at the spectacle of happy go lucky Arthur reduced to manifest anxiety,

"Can't get her in?" she retorted, derisively. "Just watch me!"

And, patting Gypsy's glossy neck, she headed her mount directly toward the sidewalk and straight into Pieker's store.

Arthur had barely time to jump out of the way. "Holy cats!" he again invoked, fervently. Then: "Head her out—she's slobbering over that bucket of candy!"

True enough, Gypsy's inquisitive nose had led her to a bewildering profusion of the sweets she adored; not just meager little bits, doled out to her stingily bite by bite. And, as if these delectables had been set out for a special and royal feast, Gypsy tasted this corner and sampled that, in gourmandish abandon.

"For Pete's sake!" implored Arthur, feverishly tugging at the bridle. "Get her out! The old man's liable to get back any minute! He won't do a thing to me!"

Missy, then catching some of his perturbation, slapped with the reins, stroked Gypsy's neck, exhorted her with endearments, and then with threats. But Gypsy wouldn't budge; she was having, unexpectedly but ecstatically, the time of her career. Missy climbed down, urged and cajoled, joined Arthur in tugging at the bridle. Gypsy only planted her dainty forefeet and continued her repast in a manner not dainty at all. Missy began to feel a little desperate; that former fine frenzy, that divine madness, that magnificent tingle of aplomb and dash, was dwindling away. She was conscious of a crowd collecting in the doorway; there suddenly seemed to be millions of people in the store—rude, pushing, chortling phantoms, as in some dreadful nightmare. Hot, prickling waves began to wash over her. They were laughing at her. Spurred by the vulgar guffaws, she gave another frantic tug.

O, dear heaven! The upper air suddenly thickened with sounds of buzzing conflict—a family of mud wasps, roused by the excitement, were circling round and round! She saw them in terrified fascination—they were scattering, zizzing horribly, threateningly as they swooped this way and that! Heavens! That one brushed her hand! She tried to shrink back—then gave an anguished squeal.

What was that? But she knew what it was. In petrified panic she stood stock still, rooted. She was afraid to move lest it sting her more viciously. She could feel it exploring around—up near her hip now, now crawling downward, now for a seond lost in some voluminous fold. She found time to return thanks that her breeches had been cut with that smart bouffance. Then she cringed again as she felt it again. How had it got in there? The realization that she must have torn her pepper and salts, for a breath brought embarrassment acutely to the fore; then, as that tickling promenade over her anatomy was resumed, she froze under paramount fear.

"For Pete's sake!" shouted Arthur. "Don't just stand there!—can't you do something?"

But Missy could no nothing. Removing Gypsy was no longer the paramont issue. Ready to die of shame, but at the same time engripped by deadly terror, she stood, legs wide apart, for her life's sake unable to move. She had lost count of time, but was agonizedly aware of its passage; she seemed to stand there in that anguished stupor for centuries. In reality it was but a second before she heard Arthur's voice again.

"For heaven's sake!" he muttered, calamity's approach intensifying his abjurgations. "There's the old man!"

Apprehensively, abasedly, but with legs still stolidly apart, Missy looked up. Yes, there was Mr. Pieker, elbowing his way through the crowd. Then an icy trickle chilled her spine; following Mr. Pieker, carrying his noon mail, was Rev. MacGill.

"Here—what's this?" demanded Mr. Pieker.

Then she heard Arthur, that craven hearted, traitor souled being she had once called "friend," that she had even desired to impress—she heard him saying:

"I don't know, Mr. Pieker. She just came riding in——"

Mr. Pieker strode to the center of the stage and, by a simple expedient strangely unthought of before—by merely pulling away the bucket of candy—separated Gypsy from the candy.

Then he turned to Missy and eyed her disapprovingly.

"I think you'd better be taking the back cut home. If I was your mamma, I'd give you a good spanking and put you to bed."

Spanking! Oh, shades of insouciance and swagger! And with Rev. MacGill standing there hearing—and seeing! Tears rolled down over her blushes.

"Here, I'll help you get her out," said Rev. MacGill, kindly. Missy blessed him for his kindness, yet, just then, she felt she'd rather have been stung to death than to have had him there. But he was there, and he led Gypsy, quite tractable now the candy was gone and herself looking actually embarrassed, through the crowd and back to the street.

High moments have a way, sometimes, of resolving their prime and irreducible factors, all of a sudden, to disconcertingly simple terms. Here was Gypsy, whose stubbornness had begun it all, suddenly soft as silk; and there was the wasp, which had brought on the horrendous climax, suddenly and mysteriously vanished. Of course, Missy was glad the wasp was gone—otherwise she might have stood there, dying of shame, till she did die of shame—yet the sudden solution of her dilemma made her feel in another way absurd.

But there was little room for such a paltry emotion as absurdity. Rev. MacGill volunteered to deliver Gypsy to her stall—oh, he was wonderful, though she almost wished he'd have to leave town unexpectedly; she didn't see how she'd ever face him again—but she knew there was a reckoning waiting at home.

It was a painful and unforgettable scene. Mother had heard already; father had telephoned from the office. Missy supposed all Cherryvale was telephoning, but she deferred thoughts of her wider disgrace; at present mother was enough. Mother was fearfully angry—Missy knew she would never understand. She said harsher things than she'd ever said before. Making such a spectacle of herself—her own daughter, whom she'd tried to train to be a lady! This feature of the situation seemed to stir mother almost more violently than the flagrant disobedience.

"It's all that O'Neill girl," said Aunt Nettie. "Ever since she came here to live Missy's been up to just one craziness after another."

Mother looked out the window and sighed. Missy was suddenly conscious that she loved her mother very much; despite the fact that mother had just said harsh things, that she was going to punish her, that she never understood. A longing welled up in her to fling her arms round mother's neck and assure her that she never meant to be a "spectacle," that she had only——

But what was the use of trying to explain? Mother wouldn't understand, and she couldn't explain it in words, anyway—not even to herself. So she stood first on one foot and then on the other, and felt perfectly inadequate and miserable.

At last, wanting frightfully to say something that would ameliorate her conduct somewhat in mother's eyes, she said:

"I guess it was an awful thing to do, mother. And I'm awfully sorry. But it wouldn't have come out quite so bad—I could have managed Gypsy better, I think—if it hadn't been for that old wasp."

"Wasp?" questioned mother.

"Yes, there was a lot of mud wasps got to flying around, and one some way got inside of my—my breeches. And you know how scared to death I am of wasps. I know I could have managed Gypsy, but when I felt that wasp crawling around—" She broke off; tried again. "Don't think I couldn't manage her—but when I felt that——"

"Well, if the wasp was all that was the matter," queried mother, "why didn't you go after it?"

Missy didn't reply.

"Why did you just stand there and let it keep stinging you?"

Missy opened her lips, but quickly closed them again. She realized there was something inconsistent in her explanation. Mother had accused her of immodesty: riding astride and wearing those scandalous pepper and salts and showing her legs. If mother was right, if she was brazen somehow it didn't tie up to claim confusion because her——

Oh, legs!

She didn't try to explain. With hanging head she went meekly to her room. Mother had ruled she must stay there, in disgrace, till father came home and a proper punishment was decided upon.

It was not a short or glad afternoon.

At supper time father came up to see her. He was disapproving, of course, though she felt that his heart wasn't entirely unsympathetic, even though he told her Mr. Pieker had made him pay for the bucket of candy. Missy knew it must have gone hard with him to be put in the wrong by Mr. Pieker.

"Oh, father, I'm sorry—I really am!"

Father patted her hand. He was an angel.

"Did you bring it home" brightening at a thought.

"Bring what home?" asked father.

"Why, the candy."

"Of course not."

"I don't see why, if you had to pay for it. The bottom part wasn't hurt at all."

Father laughed then, actually laughed. She was glad to see the serious look removed from his face; but she still begrudged all that candy.

Nor was that the end of the part played by the candy. That night, as she was kneeling in her nightgown by the window, gazing out at the white moonlight and trying to summon the lovely thoughts the night's magic used to bring, the door opened softly and mother came tiptoeing in.

"You ought to be in bed, dear," she said. No, Missy reflected, she could never, never be really cross with mother. She climbed into bed and, with a certain degree of comfort, watched mother smooth up the sheet and fold the counterpane carefully over the foot rail.

"Mrs. O'Neill just phoned," mother said. "Tess is very sick. It seems she and Arthur got hold of that bucket of candy."

"Oh," said Missy.

That was all she said, all she felt capable of saying. The twisted thoughts, emotions, and revulsions which surge in us as we watch the inexplicable workings of fate are often difficult of expression. But, after mother had kissed her good-night and gone, she lay pondering for a long time. Life is curiously unfair. That Tess and Arthur should have got the candy for which she suffered, that the very hours she'd been shut up with shame and disgrace they were gorging themselves, seemed her climactic crown of sorrow.

Yes, life was queer. . .

Almost not worth while to try to be athletic—she didn't really like being athletic, anyway . . . she hoped they'd had the ordinary human decency to give Gypsy just a little bit . . . Gypsy was a darling . . . that wavy tail and those bright soft eyes and the white star . . . but you don't have to be really athletic to ride a pony—you don't have to wear breeches and do things like that . . . Arthur wasn't so much, anyway—he had freckles and red hair and there was nothing romantic about him . . . Sir Galahad would never have been so scared of Mr. Pieker—he wouldn't have shoved the blame off onto a maiden in distress . . . No, and she didn't think the King of Spain would, either . . . Or Rev. MacGill . . . There were lots of things just as good as being athletic . . . there were . . ! lots of things . . .

A moonbeam crept up the white sheet, to kiss the eyelids closed in sleep.

For the Delicate and Tender Facial Skin

KIRK'S JAP ROSE SOAP

Golden Transparent

MOST facial skin troubles—black-heads, pimples, etc.—come from not thoroughly washing the face and from leaving the undissolved impurities of cheap, adulterated soaps in the pores of the skin. When these pores become so clogged, trouble begins and beauty vanishes. Because, it is through these pores that the skin breathes, so to speak. And to retain a healthy, beautiful skin, these delicate pores must be kept clean of undissolved soap, as well as of dirt and dust.

JAP ROSE is absolutely soluble in any kind of water, even when cold. Moisten the cake, and every atom of the pure oils and chemically pure glycerine in this golden transparent soap—JAP ROSE—changes almost instantly, into clear, pearly bubbles of pureness, that cleanse thoroughly and hygienically every delicate pore of the skin. There's not a particle of sediment. A dash of water, and as if by magic, all is gone.

AS you value your health and good looks, do not use a soap on your face which contains any adulterants or impurities, and which does not wholly and almost instantly dissolve.

YOU can use freely and safely on the most delicate and tender skin, JAP ROSE soap, a scientific blend of the purest oils. Its dainty rose fragrance—its clear golden transparency—its purity and hygienic qualities, all combine to make it the safest and most satisfying toilet soap you ever used for the face and hands, the hair or the bath.

For a clear, healthy complexion Start Using JAP ROSE Today.

Roses in the cheeks, fluffiness in the hair, fragrant cleanliness everywhere—that's JAP ROSE

IT'S A GRAND · OLD · GAME

Playing Politics and Posing for the Camera Men—They've Always Done It and They Always Will.

A CONFAB AT MARION—Uncle Joe Cannon, Warren G. Harding, Gov. Lowden of Illinois, and former Senator George Sutherland of Utah, photographed in an interval of talking things over on the Republican nominee's justly celebrated front porch.
(Photograph from Edmonston.)

"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

SO THAT you may have your fall and winter suits from the very first chilly day, the Wooltex Tailor-mades are now ready for your selection.

If it's a Knockabout Suit you have in mind, you'll find a wide variety, swagger of line and fashioned of English Woolens, tweeds and Sportspuns.

Perhaps, though, you're all fitted out with sports clothes and want a simple, tailored suit for wear in town, at business or in club activity. If that's the case, you'll surely like the new City Club suits. There's not a thing to mar their almost mannish simplicity, and the fabrics are of the finest Peachblooms, Tricotines, and such.

But if, on the other hand, you've both of these suits and want one for luncheons, teas and the matinee, you've only to whisper "Vanity Suit" to the saleslady! She'll show you the most intriguing little suits—some are braided, some embroidered, while in still others the fabrics are so rich as to make trimming superfluous!

Though different in type, all Wooltex Tailor-mades have much in common! They all have the snug, boyish shoulder, the collar that lies flat to your neck, the well-cut sleeve in fact all of those touches which distinguish the hand-tailored suit from the ready-made! You really don't appreciate a Wooltex suit until after you've worn it a season! That's when you learn that the "well-dressed look" is not a transient feature, but a permanent part of every coat or suit which has the signature of the Wooltex Tailors!

THE TIME HAS COME, THE SEASON SAYS, TO TALK OF TAILORED THINGS!

You're always certain, too, that any Wooltex style you select is an assured one, and not a fad or whim of the moment. No style is passed by the Wooltex Style Studios until it is assured of several seasons' popularity.

It is this type of suit which spells economy, for a suit poorly designed or tailored is an expensive purchase no matter how little it costs!

The shop selling Wooltex Tailor-mades in your vicinity has a copy of "The Tailored Woman" fashion magazine for you. If you do not know which shop it is, write us, and if you prefer we will mail you a copy of the magazine without charge.

Wooltex Tailor-mades

Remember, no matter how much it "looks like" a Wooltex Tailor-made, it just can't be without that Wooltex signature shown above. Wooltex Tailor-mades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75 up to $125.

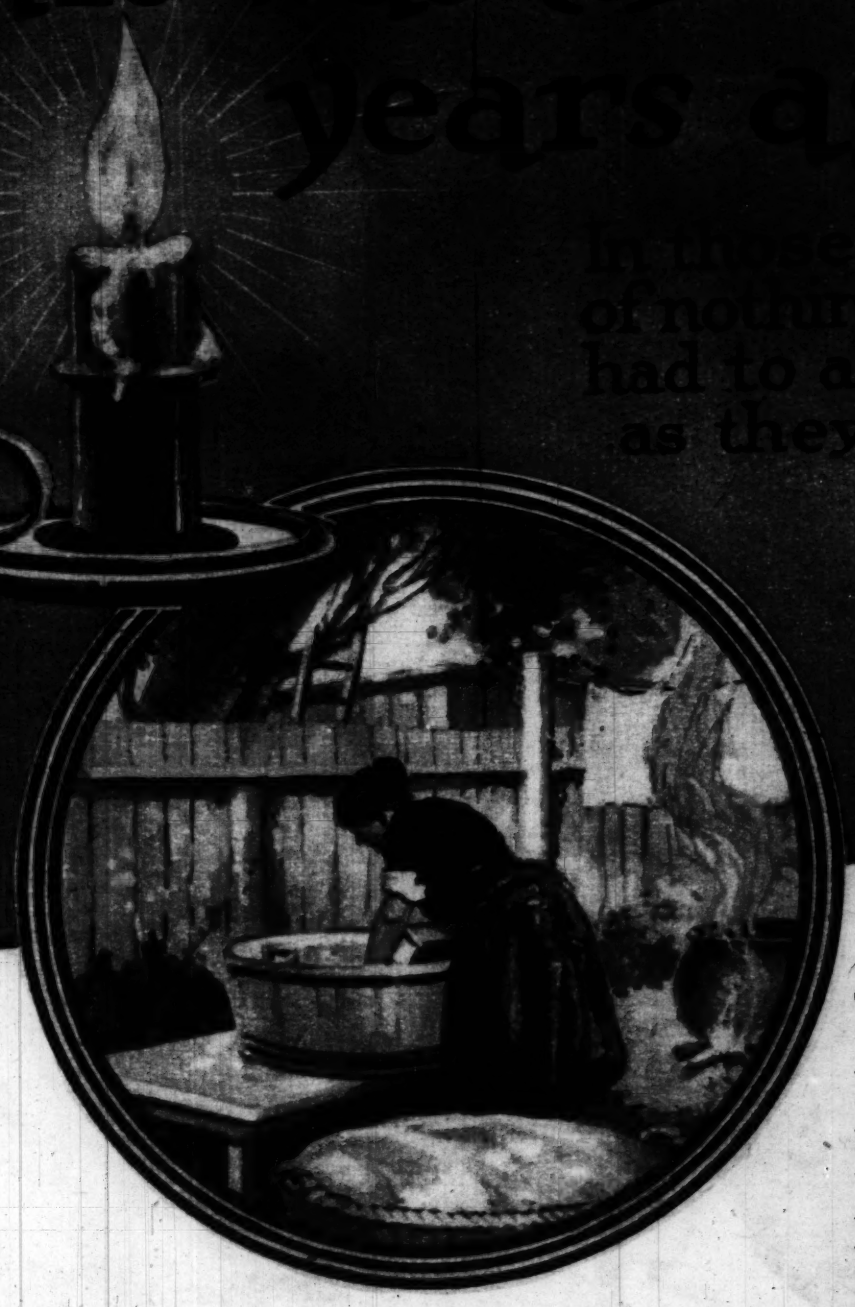
Times Have Changed—



THE modern woman finds she cannot do as her grandmother did—nor is she content even to attempt it. For instance, in the case of her home, she has learned to adopt modern housekeeping methods.

One of her biggest tasks, that of keeping the house and family supplied with clean clothes, is largely solved by the use of the electric clothes washer. The washes clothes really clean. Even the kiddies' clothes come out spotless after a few minutes in it, and they're the ones that usually take the hardest scrubbing.

Western Electric
CLOTHES WASHER

Made in Chicago—Sold Everywhere

The reason that this Western Electric Washer is so popular is because it washes on the right principle. The soiled clothes are placed in its wooden cylinder which revolves in the clean, sudsy water. The revolving and reversing of the cylinder swish the soap suds thru the clothes, cleaning, as you see, by the gentlest of actions—gentle, but nevertheless thorough. The same action prevents the clothes from wadding.

This clothes washer is even built so simple that wear is reduced to the minimum. It is rarely out of order—needs little care but oiling, and is easy to operate. It will pay for itself in a year and a half.

This Western Electric Clothes Washer is sold in Chicago and neighboring towns by reliable dealers, who will be glad to arrange for a demonstration. See it in Chicago at

THE "SAVIOR OF POLAND" AND ALLIED STAFF—Gen. Weygand of France may be "Marshal of Poland" as a return honor for the remarkable military tactics he invoked to drive the bolshevists from the gates of Warsaw. His victory changed the Reds' successful sweep through Poland into disaster. In this picture he is seen with the allied officers who advised him during the struggle. From left to right the men are (front row): Lord Abernon, British minister of Berlin; M. Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States; Gen. Weygand, chief of staff for Marshal Foch; Sir M. Hankey of England. In the next row are Sir H. Rumbold, British minister to Poland; P. Sapieha, minister of foreign affairs; Gen. Radcliffe, British war office representative; M. Panafaeu, French minister to Poland; at the extreme right, C. F. Preidalecki, chief of protocol. In the back row (in front of the pillar) is G. Pobocki, chief of staff, adjutant; to his left stands M. Vigrion, counselor of the French embassy.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

SOME WARSAW VOLUNTEERS—These boys are a few of the great number of boys, youths and women who made the major part of the Polish army which rushed from the gates of Warsaw to defend the city against the attacks of the bolshevists. The photograph was taken in Warsaw a few days before these boys left the training grounds to march upon the Reds.

(Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.)

"FOR POLAND'S SAKE!"—To this shout troops of volunteers crowded the streets of Warsaw when the Red army, sweeping unopposed through Poland, struck at its gates. Men, women and children filled the ranks. Armed with what weapons they could find or make, in uniform or not, they crowded in close file to the city's defense. In this picture of the volunteer army scarcely one soldier is more than 16 years of age. The boys in front have guns, those behind have none.

The Elegance of Furs From the House of Bishop

FURS come into the full expression of their inherent beauty only at the subtle touch of master craftsmen in such an organization as the House of Bishop. Furs from the four quarters of the globe are gathered here; wonderful, luxurious furs of unsurpassed loveliness, each one guaranteed by the Bishop label of quality.

Each year since 1860 the House of Bishop has added to its prestige until today its leadership is accepted throughout the Great Middle West. During the generations, Bishop furs have always been noted for absolute dependability and moderation of price. This year is no exception, and the assemblage of furs has never been excelled.

Prices are especially attractive. All of the skins were purchased a year ago—at last year's prices, far under those of today. This constant alertness to conditions prevailing in the world's fur markets is but one reason why Bishop furs are always genuine value.

Complete stocks of coats, wraps and scarfs in the widest range of skins are available at this time for your selection.

A long drawn out fight against fatigue

Is the human mechanism equal to the strains of modern life?

TWENTY per cent more flat feet among city men than among men from the country districts—

Thirty per cent more defective vision—

The death rate twenty-one per cent higher in the city than in the country—

These are facts taken from the report of the Surgeon General of the United States Army on the first million men who were drafted and from the vital statistics given in the most recent census reports.

These facts but reveal the dangers of modern city life which are recognized by medical authorities.

"The struggle of business in city life is a long drawn out fight against fatigue. You dare not rest for fear of being left behind. But gradually fatigue slows down your pace—your energy is gone," says Dr. William Brady.

The prevalance of fatigue today is causing grave concern among physicians everywhere. Fatigue is recognized as a dangerous enemy of health. "Undoubtedly," states Professor F. S. Lee, of Columbia University, "fatigue diminishes the resistance of the tissues to bacteria."

A certain amount of fatigue is necessary, but many people waste their precious energy.

One of the greatest sources of fatigue today is walking with hard heels on hard modern floors and pavements. Every step is a jar to the nervous system—a drain on your energy.

If you are a man of average activity you take 8,000 steps a day. With old-fashioned leather heels or ordinary "dead" rubber heels, you suffer 8,000 shocks—expose yourself to a serious source of fatigue.

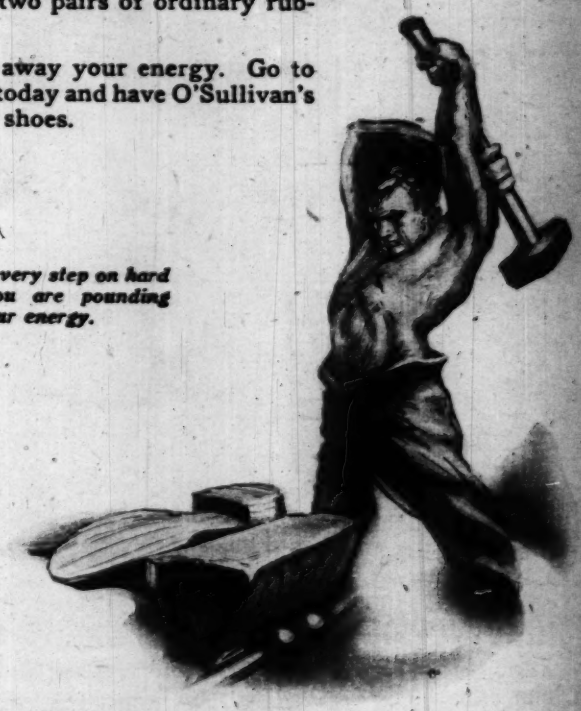
Eliminate this great source of fatigue

You can't change modern pavements back to the soft dirt paths of years ago, but you can change your heels. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the jolts and jars that tire you out.

To secure the resiliency, the springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are blended by a special formula. With this blend of live, springy rubber are "compounded" the best toughening agents known. The compound is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

This is why O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the jolts and jars of walking. The same process that makes O'Sullivan's Heels resilient gives them their great durability. O'Sullivan's Heels outlast three pairs of leather heels—they often outlast two pairs of ordinary rubber heels.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.



With every step on hard heels you are pounding away your energy.

O'Sullivan's Heels

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

SYLVIA BREAMER is the little Australian who has done so well in pictures in so brief a time.

She was born in Sydney and educated there. For five years she played in "legitimate" successes, both across the water and in this country. Her screen career started under the Triangle-Ince banner.

You will remember her as best in "Missing," "My Lady's Garter" and "Dawn." You will see her next in "Athalie."

Miss Breamer is five feet seven inches tall and has dark brown hair and eyes. And she's a good actress. —Mae Tinee.

MYRTLE STEDMAN, back on the screen after a long absence, voices her desire as follows:

"I don't care to be starred alone. But I would like always to be one star in an all star cast."

Wish more felt as she does!, —Mae Tinee.

MILTON SILLS, with his nice keen eyes and hair you'd like to run your hands through, is a Chicago boy. He was educated at Chicago university.

For eight years he was a leading man for Belasco, Brady, the Shuberts, etc. Then Goldwyn spotted him and he joined the ranks of the screen stars. You've seen him in oodles of pictures—"The Yellow Ticket," "The Fear Woman," "What Every Woman Learns," "The Savage Woman," "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" and—well, would you look at the women in his life!

This favorite is a big boy, six feet tall, 180 pounds in weight, light hair and gray eyes. And married—girruls! —Mae Tinee.

ROSEMARY THEBY inspired inquiries that kept the mails heavy several years ago. That was when she was with Lubin. For a time she rather dropped out of things for some reason or other. Now, however, you see her often, and she is again on the minds of the fans.

Miss Theby—whose biography you have—will be seen in the principal role of "Athalie," produced by Mayflower from the story by Robert W. Chambers.

Pretty girl—dark hair and hazel eyes. —Mae Tinee.

Little secrets back of many women's beauty

ON Fifth Avenue, on Michigan Boulevard—on all the fashionable streets of America you see amazing numbers of beautiful women.

How did they come to be so much lovelier than other people?

Few of them were born with extraordinary beauty. The secret of their greater loveliness lies in their understanding of a few simple rules.

Thousands of beautiful women have learned how to protect their skin against the cold that dries and chaps, the dust that flies into the pores and coarsens them; how to keep the skin free from a wretched glisten and make the powder stay on; how to keep the skin clear.

How to protect your skin from cold and dust

Cold weather whips the moisture out of your face, leaves it rough and red. You can prevent this by supplying the needed moisture. Your skin requires a special cream that meets this need, a cream that gives your skin the moisture it needs without leaving a trace of oil on the face. Pond's Vanishing Cream is made entirely without oil; the moment you apply it, it vanishes, never to reappear in an unpleasant shine. This delicate cream has an ingredient especially designed to soften the skin and offset the parching, roughening effects of cold and wind. Before going out always rub a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream into the face and hands. Now the cold cannot dry or chap your skin, the dust cannot injure the pores. In this way your skin will be satiny all the winter through.

By heeding another little secret you can keep the powder on two or three times as long as ever before. Women who understand how to bring out their hidden beauty, realize that powder could not be expected to stick to the dry skin and stay on. The best of powders needs a base to hold it and to keep it smooth.

Wind dries your skin, sunlight darkens it. You can protect it by applying, before going out, a cream without oil.

How to make the powder stay on

Here again you need a greaseless cream. Pond's Vanishing Cream is especially effective for this purpose. Before powdering rub a little Pond's Vanishing Cream into the skin. Then apply the powder. See how smoothly the powder goes on, how soft and natural it looks. Skin specialists say that such a powder base protects and benefits the skin.

You can be at your loveliest at a moment's notice, no matter how trying the day has been. Just rub a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream into the cheeks, under the eyes, around the mouth. Your face will lose its tense look, muscles around the eyes and mouth will feel rested. You will look younger, fresher.

How to keep your skin clear—the pores clean

The secret of keeping your skin looking clear and vigorous is the thorough cleansing of the pores regularly. For this your skin needs an entirely different cream—a cream with an oil base. Pond's Cold Cream was designed especially for this purpose. It contains just the amount of oil to work down into the pores where the dust has become deeply embedded. This oil dissolves the dusty particles that clog the pores, and leaves the skin clean. Before you go to bed, and whenever you have been out in the dust or wind, rub Pond's Cold Cream into the pores of the skin. Then wipe it off with a soft cloth—when you see the dirt that comes out you will realize how much cleaner your skin has become.

You can get a jar or tube of these two creams at any drug or department store. Every normal skin needs both creams. Use them regularly and you will soon discover how much lovelier you skin can be.

You can make the powder stay on twice as long by using a greaseless cream for a powder base

To keep your complexion clear don't neglect the nightly cleansing with a cream with an oil base

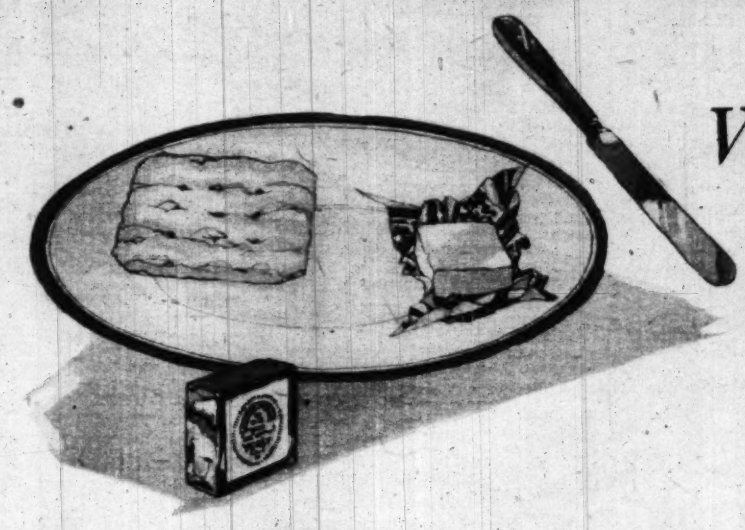
The new importance physicians are attaching to a familiar little cake of food



Why yeast is being prescribed

for "run-down" condition for pimples and boils
for constipation

IN many of the foods we eat, one vital element is lacking. This startling new discovery is interesting scientists today.

One element in food without which we cannot keep fit.

Are we getting enough of this single element in our everyday diets? Is the lack of this "vitamine" in our meals one serious cause of lowered vitality, rundown condition and all its attendant evils?

Suddenly this question gained a dramatic importance.

During the Russo-Japanese war soldiers fed on a steady diet of fish and polished rice were afflicted with a strange disease. Their diet lacked the necessary vitamine!

Immediately experiments in actual diets were started in leading scientific centers. It was found that in many of our diets we get an insufficient supply of this vitamine.

For "run-down" condition

Yeast is the richest source of the vitamine which protects us from that "run-down" condition in which we are so susceptible to infection.

If the food we take is poor in the vitamine which yeast supplies, the body's ability to produce energy from food slows down. No matter how nourishing our food may be otherwise, we lose appetite, we suffer from lowered vitality, with all its evils.

The almost incredible results obtained from scientific experiments with yeast in diets is described by one of our foremost nutrition experts:—'A scrawny, lethargic animal, rapidly dwindling in size, with unsleek coat and evident malnutrition, will completely change its appearance and responses in a few days at most on a diet unchanged except for a tiny bit of yeast."

For acute cases of "run-down" condition always consult your physician.

The richest known source of this vitamine is yeast—just the familiar little cake of Fleischmann's Yeast which we have always thought of as simply "good to raise bread."

It is possible to get enough of this vitamine in the ordinary fresh vegetables, but if through ignorance, or whim, or limited means, or remoteness from supplies, we do not get enough of it, we may be in danger. Then, in many of the manufactured foods we eat, this vitamine has been removed in the process of manufacture.

To supply this lack, and to build up in cases of "run-down" condition, Fleischmann's Yeast is being prescribed. Physicians and hospitals are also prescribing it for acne (pimples and blackheads), boils and constipation.

People ask: "Won't it, when eaten, have the effect it has in raising bread?" No. In the body it is assimilated just like any other food. It is highly digestible and entirely wholesome.

Only one precaution—Do not take yeast with candy, because taken in this way it may form gas. In fact, persons who are troubled with gas are advised first to dissolve the yeast in boiling water. This "kills" the yeast without affecting its efficacy.

Get Fleischmann's Yeast from your grocer. Place an order today—not more than two days' supply at a time, for it must be taken fresh. Eat it before or between meals—from one to three cakes a day. You will quickly learn to like its taste.

To learn more about the new importance of yeast in your diet, and in cases of "run-down" condition, constipation, pimples or boils, fill out the coupon below asking for the new booklet on this subject. It reports striking cases in which Fleischmann's Yeast has been prescribed with amazing success.

For constipation

There are three kinds of ordinary laxatives: coarse substances that may injure sensitive intestines; oils that simply lubricate; drugs that may form a habit. Yeast, being a food, by its very nature is better suited to the stomach and intestines than either drugs or oils. And it will not form a habit.

Investigations carried on at Jefferson Medical College, and at leading institutions in Philadelphia and New York, demonstrated its value. Even chronic cases, some of years' duration, have responded.

Take 1 to 3 cakes a day, before or between meals. For acute or extraordinary cases of constipation, of course, consult your physician.

For pimples, blackheads, boils

Pimples and boils are often the result of lowered vitality, or "run-down" condition. In many instances constipation is a contributory condition.

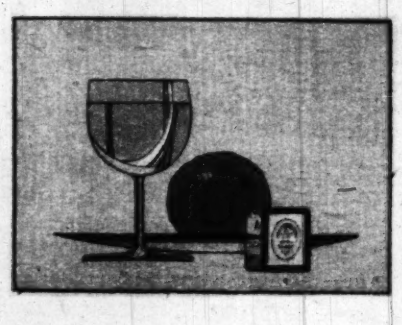
Naturally, yeast, which proved to be so successful in treating constipation and cases of lowered vitality, was immediately tested in cases of acne (pimples and blackheads) and boils.

In leading hospitals yeast was not only successful in treating the symptoms in question, but also improved the general physical condition. Usually cases of boils were either cured or greatly improved within two weeks.

Now physicians and hospitals are prescribing yeast in cases of "acne" and boils. From 1 to 3 cakes a day, before or between meals, is the usual prescription. In all cases of boils and in acute cases of pimples be sure to consult your doctor.

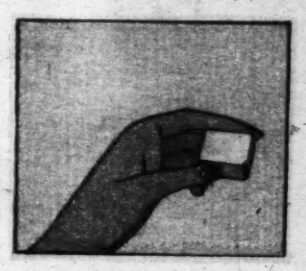
How to take yeast:

Some take it in fruit juices or in water



Some spread it on crackers or bread

Others like it plain



1 to 3 cakes a day—before or between meals

Beautify Your Hair with "DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

Your hands express your real self. Be sure you manicure them the right way

How you can have hands as well groomed as these

THE consciousness of unbecoming or unattractive clothes may hurt, but it cannot strike deep down as can the fear that you are judged unmistakably lacking in refinement.

Of all the indications of personal nicety the most significant, next to personal cleanliness, is well-kept nails. To many, ill-kept nails indicate actual vulgarity.

A few minutes of the right kind of care, once or twice a week, will keep your nails and cuticle always so exquisite that they will give you new poise.

The most important part of a manicure is the care of the cuticle. Cutting ruins it. But with the Cutex way of softening and removing surplus cuticle, you can always have a smooth, even rim at the base of your nails.

With a bit of cotton wrapped around an orange stick and dipped in Cutex, work around the base of the nails. Then wash the hands, pushing back the cuticle with a towel. For snowy white nail tips apply a little Cutex Nail White underneath the nail. Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish. If your cuticle has a tendency to dry or grow coarse, apply a bit of Cutex Cold Cream each night.

Give yourself a Cutex manicure regularly, and you can have nails and cuticle that you will be proud of. Start today to have lovely nails.

Cutex Cuticle Remover comes in 35 cent and 65 cent sizes. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35 cents. At all drug and department stores in the United States and Canada.

For Beautiful Hair

Take the Advice of Highest Medical Authorities

There have been many conflicting claims as to the proper treatment and care for the hair. There has been much confusion and ignorance. Now the confusion is ended. The way is known definitely—safely.

Every one, men, women and children, should have healthy hair. Nature provided it in the beginning. Proper treatment will preserve it through life.

The most eminent authorities have prescribed the way to prevent the loss of the hair's life and luxuriance.

Highest Authorities

The Council of the American Medical Association (the highest authority known) has recognized Resorcinol Monoacetate for the treatment of dandruff (seborrheal eczema) and baldness (alopecia-areata)—the common foes of beautiful hair. Resorcinol Monoacetate is the principal ingredient of "La Creole" Hair Tonic. Thus science approves this wonderful preparation. Abundant, vigorous hair is now easily attained.

Simple Directions

Two or three times a week apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic to the scalp. Moisten the hair and scalp thoroughly—massaging the scalp with a rotary motion of the finger tips. Scalp circulation is then stimulated, the hair roots supplied with needed nourishment, and dandruff is quickly eliminated. You will notice an immediate improvement in the loveliness of your hair.

Proper Shampooing

Absolute cleanliness is essential for beautiful, healthy hair. The scalp is constantly throwing off old skin and extraneous substances. If the pores and hair tubes are clogged with dirt and perspiration, a healthy condition of the hair is impossible. Regularly every ten days or two weeks shampoo the hair thoroughly with "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo.

Mademoiselle "La Creole"

Do not be confused by the word "Creole." The wonderful hair of the Creoles is a mark of their pure French-Spanish blood as well as of the care given it. "La Creole" preparations are their favorites.

"La Creole" Liquid Shampoo is made from an exclusive Menthol formula of purest cocoanut and cochin oils. You will instantly notice the delightful, cooling effect from its use. The hair becomes soft and lustrous—dries quickly—and the scalp and pores glow with clean health and vigor.

Always apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic after shampooing. Follow these rules faithfully and notice the improvement in the loveliness of your hair.

When purchasing "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo be sure to get "La Creole" Hair Tonic also, because the formula of each is designed to aid the other.

"La Creole" Hair Dressing

is a treatment for the gradual restoration of the Natural Dark color to hair that has grown gray, gray-streaked, or faded. It must not be confused with common dyes. Refinement approves its use.

If you cannot obtain these preparations at advertised prices—write us direct and we will see that you are supplied

Does Wonders for Skin Eruptions

New antiseptic, discovered in war. Makes short work of eczema, dandruff, itching skin, etc. A marvel for sore, bleeding, spongy gums.

War gave the world a new and wonderful antiseptic, discovered by American scientists. It conquered infection where all old standard antiseptics had failed, and healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time.

Never before was there anything so healing, so effective in destroying germs, and with so many uses.

This new antiseptic agent is now being used by over 50,000 physicians and dentists. For home use it is now available in tablet form, called Kloria.

Dissolve a few of these wonder-working tablets in water and instantly you have a large bottle of liquid antiseptic, at a cost of but a few cents.

Kloria doesn't irritate; is soothing, pleasant and absolutely safe because not poisonous. Yet it destroys germs on contact, and is far more germicidal than any poisonous antiseptic.

The way it wipes out eczema, barber's itch and other skin eruptions almost challenges belief. To end dandruff, simply wet the scalp a few times with Kloria. Stops scalp itching—or itching anywhere.

For tender, bleeding, shrinking gums it gives almost magic relief, usually ending all soreness and bleeding in one week. It also makes the most effective mouth-wash for preventing tooth-decay, gum infections and contagious diseases.

Applied to boils and sores, the pus infection ends, soreness and swelling leave. For wounds and cuts, it gives the quickest healing ever known. Destroys perspiration and other offensive body odors instantly. Wonderful for foot troubles.

All druggists. 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

Save your hair

IT is far better to save the hair on one's head than to save combings. The moral of this remark being—Use PÉTROLE HAHN. Once let dry indoor air diminish Nature's supply of the oil-food that nourishes the scalp and hair-roots, and your scalp becomes dry and scaly. You notice dandruff. The hair becomes lustreless and brittle, and your comb pulls it out.

PÉTROLE HAHN is the remedy. It safeguards and protects the hair, fertilizes and nourishes the scalp, because it contains a scientific proportion of natural oil-food (refined petroleum). It effectually eradicates dandruff and hair ills, and is popular among men, women and children alike. Use it buy a bottle to-day. You'll like it as a hair-dressing as well as a tonic.

Never a corn

on millions of feet nowadays

Do you know that millions of people who use Blue-jay keep entirely free from corns?

The corn pain stops. Soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

The method is scientific. It is gentle, easy, sure. Old-time harsh treatments are supplanted by it with everyone who knows it.

It is made by a world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects.

It is now applied to some 20 million corns a year. You can see that corn troubles are fast disappearing.

Then why pare corns and keep them? Why use methods which are out-of-date?

Try this new-day method. See what it does to one corn. You will never forget its quick and gentle action. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
PART SIX SEPTEMBER 19, 1920.

The NAVY SERGE IS AUTUMN'S FIRST CHOICE by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Time was when the wearer of a blue serge dress was described as a nice, sensible girl. She was the kind who correlated with broad toed, flat heeled shoes and with duty. And watchful mammas were always trying to shoo their sons in her direction away from flighty minxes in silks and satins.

Now how changed all this is! If there is anything more flighty and less sensible than the blue serge frock we shall have to look in the pages of the Cannibal islands' fashion journals to find it. We have trimmed it with every gewgaw, including isinglass, and combined it with every known material.

This fall the blue serge—and this includes tricotine and poiret twill—is occupying more attention than ever before. Jenny, the great Paris dressmaker, has, in fact, become a sort of blue serge specialist and has sent us all sorts of insurgents. Nor have the other foreign creators been far behind her.

If we listen to these French designers we shall just make a sack and then sort of tease it into a sacque. The straight line is the thing, and often—as is the case with all sorts of dresses—there isn't even a belt. The low waist is indicated by some sort of embroidery or other trimming.

With this you may have one of four leading combinations—namely, the high collar and long sleeves, the high collar and short sleeves, the low neck line and long sleeves, and the low neck line and short sleeves. Take your choice.

Right here let it be said, however, the high collar is as yet merely born—not really worn. And the crystal bowl gazers of fashion admit that over here in America it may be spring before we really adopt the thing.

Ah, well, vise—particularly throat vise—is a creature of such frightful mien as to be hated needs but to be seen, but, seen too oft, familiar with its face, we first endure, then pity, then embrace. So by midwinter, who knows, an uncovered throat may be as rare a sight as a covered ankle.

The waist line, as we have sung so often these last few weeks, is extremely long. The fact of it is that the Moyenage is the leading silhouette in the fall. But, speaking of silhouettes, the very newest thing is the princess. Like most other princesses, however, this one has lost most of its former domains and privileges. You'd hardly know it, in fact, for the same tight fitting garment which we of advantageous figgers used to inhabit.

The bodice of the princess frock of this season is made, it is true, in one with the skirt, but instead of being an express it is a local. It stops at a very low waist line to wrinkle. These crushed folds of material across the front of the dress are, indeed, the newest wrinkle.

Thanks to the crushed draperies across the front, the sides, and the back of these gowns are rather tight fitting. Another detail is the skirt made somewhat longer than in other types of dresses. This is generally given a decided flare by the insertion of circular or plaited folds at the sides. No, not a thing of beauty—this modified princess—but certainly a thing of chic.

And particularly chic is it when possessing the new leg o' mutton sleeve. This is exceedingly tight from wrist to elbow, where it begins to swell into a puff, and the puff is set into a large armhole. The fact of it is that the wide armhole is a feature of many of the imported models.

If you want to be absolutely safe you may trim your blue serge with red. Jenny is particularly fond of this combination, as is indicated by one model which poses a puff of red duvetyn on one hip of a simple little serge frock. And, by the way, black and red is another combination favored by Paris in all types of frocks.

The gown second from the right follows this color trail, for its blue tricotine background is embroidered in narrow red braid. Otherwise it presents several features worthy of attention. One of these consists of the cavernous pockets, which are the chief agency employed by many a serge frock of the fall to break the straight line and to define the long waist. Another is the V-shaped neck. This kind of neckline, almost discarded for the last few seasons, has been worn lately by some of the most fashionable women.

Yet you can't always throw any red herring across the path of that invincible combination of blue and black. At the right, for example, we have a chemise frock of navy serge trimmed with an all over design of chain stitch embroidery. This is one of those frocks that disdain the services of a girdle or belt. The long waistline is indicated here only by the jet ornaments which finish the sash. This sash is remarkable chiefly for performing none of the functions of a sash. In doing so, however, it contrives to strike an original note in trimming, and joins with a collar that is high in the back to provide just the right amount of black satin to the navy serge.

Another navy and black creation is located second from the left of the page. This shows that the tunic has by no means abdicated in favor of the perfectly plain little slip of a dress. The fact of it is that there will always be women sensible enough to prefer pretty lines to a chic line. And there is no doubt that many a figure which appears absolutely insignificant in these bolster slips of chemise frocks gains a certain distinction from the tunic.

In the dance frocks designed for the fall and winter we're certainly as much in tunic as ever. Many of the most charming creations from abroad show a net overskirt measuring five yards about the bottom floating out over a narrow satin underskirt. For evening there is certainly nothing lovelier that a young girl can wear than the blooming skirts and quaint bodices of the Empress Eugenie, and some of the designers have been wise enough to recognize the truth.

This navy serge skirt is trimmed with narrow black silk braid, and the tunic skirt reveals a narrow black satin underskirt. By way of sleeves this frock has elected the three-quarter length bell shape. The bell shape is not always thus abbreviated, however. Long sleeves widening at the cuff are found on all types of autumn wear—on suits, dresses, and coats—and certainly there is nothing more becoming than this mode.

Another type of sleeve is located in the chemise gown of brown duvetyn at the left. This frock is trimmed with stitching in orange color, and an orange vestee joins with cuffs, girdle, and hem to achieve that still favored combination of brown and orange. Silver buttons give the final accent of gayety to this frock, which otherwise illustrates that no line can be too simple for our autumn wearing.

A word here about brown. It is still raging in both millinery and gowns. All tints seem to be acceptable, and in velvet and duvetyn it is at its best.

In the same breath we may mention rust color. This is particularly liked in trimming, and right here we may mention that Jenny is fond of adding a touch of rust to her treasures of blue serge. Thus, one of her models finishes a corsage very much embroidered in rust color and white with a long scarf of rust colored crepe that trails at one side. Then, to finish her credo, "I believe in rust," she makes the lower section of the sleeves of transparent rust colored mousseline de soie.

Scarf effects, by the way, are extremely smart on the navy serge frock, and, though they are seen in various tints, either rust or copper colored ones are favored.

THAT a sash may evade all its customary responsibilities and still be largely responsible for the charm of a dress is proved by the navy serge at the right. The sash is of black satin, repeated in the collar and sleeve bands, and the embroidery is a chain stitch of black silk. Next, a blue tricotine embroidered in red braid shows the return of the V-shaped neck, the prevalence of cavernous pockets, and the popularity of this collar combination. This is followed by a navy tricotine embroidered in black silk braid and combined with satin. Last, a brown duvetyn, with touches of orange trimming, is set off with silver buttons.

The Young Girl's Complexion

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

The department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

"YOU women are divided into two classes," said Mr. Cynic, "half of you fighting the ravages of time on your faces with massage and skin foods, and the other half ravaging youthful faces with rouge and whitewash and unhygienic living."

It is of the latter half I write today.

Is there anything that inspires the grownup to a revival of the old fashioned switch as does the sight of a young miss in her early 'teens plying the cosmetic arts of the worldly wise and the age worn? Don't you want to take her across your knee and spank her good and properly for ruining, with bright red patches and lip sticks and a marshmallow powder scheme, the loveliest beauty asset known?

When her skin shows signs of losing its clear, satinlike texture because of unhygienic influence you feel like taking her in your arms and telling her in kindliest words where she errs in diet and other things, because you know that young heads cannot be expected to carry great wisdom around in them. For that very reason you do not want to have them appear wise beyond their years with a blatant color scheme which sits most unbecomingly on the face of youth.

To Reform Little Sinners.

It is the brazen effrontery the unnatural high color gives them that provokes you to thoughts of the switch in active operation.

In reality, it is the kindly word and the tender admonitions these little half ladies and half women need. They are too young to realize that the other half of the world of women are envious of youth because of the glory of the clear, clean, exquisite skin of youth. The older woman in her wisdom would reveal in the natural glory of it were her skin suddenly transformed into what it was when she was 16. And naturally she would wear it! The glow of health upon it would be its only bloom.

All that seems possible to reform these unconscious little sinners is to try to make them realize they have the beauty asset that the other half of their world is trying to acquire, but never will—for, like youth itself, the lovely skin of youth never returns.

So, I will leave it to you older women, mothers and big sisters of the flapper, to preach the gospel of reform by kindliness, if possible, by the switch, if not.

And I will proceed to the hygienic rules for the preservation of the love-ly charm.

Simple Rules of Hygiene.

The clear, fine, white skin of velvety texture by every right belongs to the young girl. And, providing she leaves cosmetics alone and pays attention to a few simple rules of hygiene, she will have it.

Some girls go through the period of development without any complexion ills; others, will have a broken out and sometimes oily skin. Oftentimes parents will leave it to time and nature to clear up the trouble, without advising the young girls about their need and fresh air and bathing needs.

It must be remembered that during the years of development the tiny glands of the skin are enlarged and very active, so that bathing daily is necessary. And washing the face with a good soap and water, rinsing in warm water and then cold, is the face cleansing system urged. Leave the cleansing creams and the skin foods and the facial massages for mother and big sister, who, by reason of their years, are justified in their use.

Be Regular in Habits.

Then the next thing is to be warned against constipation trouble, the cause of so many, many poor complexions on young girls. If you allow cast off material of the stomach and intestines to remain in the bowels you will surely have a muddy and pimpled skin. The bowels must be emptied regularly every day. If not, the material putrefies, forms gases and acids, which are reabsorbed into your system and taken up by the blood, resulting in a face that is anything but clear and clean appearing.

Train yourself to regularity in your habits of toilet. Drink plenty of water. It keeps the organs flushed and in good working condition. Drink it when you arise in the morning, before retiring, and between meals.

Choose fruit, stewed or ripe, for breakfast. No meat in the morning. Cereals with cream you will need during these young days. Plain, old fashioned oatmeal is good for you. Syrups and butter and sugar you may use. And if you have flushed your stomach and intestines with water and fruit, you may eat candy and cakes in reasonable amount. Of course, many young girls eat too much candy and other sweets and eat them at the wrong time. When eaten between meals or early in the morning, with a consequent loss of appetite at regular meals, it is distinctly bad for the complexion.

Eat Nourishing Food.

As Dr. Howard says: "It is the loss of this nourishing food and the natural result of having nothing in the intestines which will wash these food traces out, that does all the harm. It is living unnaturally to be in such a condition, and any unnatural way of living will bring about unhealth, which will be shown by a poor and nasty looking complexion."

Practical and Fancy Needlework BY CLOTILDE

Questions on problems confronting the home sewer will be answered in this column, if mail is addressed and dressed envelope is inclosed. Address Clotilde, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

DESIGN FOR PETTICOAT.

WOMEN who make their own lingerie may be interested in an attractive design for a petticoat. It is possible to make one's own lingerie for much less than it can be bought in the shops, and the work is so pleasant to do it can never be considered a hardship or bore.

A piece of cambric or longcloth of a moderate weight is best for the body of a petticoat, and it should be carefully cut and fitted. The seams should be felled down by hand after the first stitching, and the top of the skirt finished with a narrow facing instead of a band.

The ruffle was made in shaped sections, sewed together. There are five of each. Of course the ruffle material should be a sheer cambric. The softness of it will prevent its taking up too much room under one's dress. One section is made of alternate strips of lace insertion and straight strips made of the material; and the other section is straight in the center, gored on both edges, and has a butterfly or any preferred medallion set in the exact middle. A lace edge of one section is sewed to the gored edge of the butterfly section, and so on, until all are joined together.

The five pieces in which the butterflies are to be set measure, when finished, 5¾ inches at the top and 14 inches around the curved lower edge. These pieces are on the straight of the goods down the middle, and are gored out equally on both sides. The measure down the middle is 11½ inches. The straight section consists of three lengths of Valenciennes or other pretty insertion measuring 1¼ inches in width, and the two straight pieces of the material measuring 1⅛ inches in width. Of course all these strips and the gored sections will have to be cut a little wider to allow for the narrow machine hem that is used on both sides of the straight strips and on both sides of the gored sections.

These straight sections measure 1¼ inches down through the middle, and the lower edge after the lace and strips have been sewed together is curved the same as the gored sections.

After all the sections have been sewed together a narrow hem is put in around the bottom and a two inch matching lace sewed around the bottom of the ruffle.

The edge of the petticoat to which this shaped ruffle is sewed should be made to measure about 1 inch less than the top of the ruffle. Find the middle front of the petticoat at the bottom, and pin the middle of one of the gored sections to it—having the seam come on the right side. Pin the ruffle in place all around, then baste and stitch in a quarter inch seam. Turn the seam up towards the skirt, and baste over it lace insertion that is used for ribbon beading. Any desired width may be used, and it is pretty to run the ribbon through and tie in a soft bow a little to the left of the front.

Sateen makes a fine petticoat to wear under thin dresses. It is, of course, plain from top to bottom, cut usually in five gores, and carefully fitted. Then a shaped facing is basted on the wrong side at the bottom, and stitched down like a hem at the top. The right line for the bottom of the skirt should be marked before this facing is basted in place. Then scallops are marked and embroidered all around the bottom—working through the facing as well.

A spool that basting thread comes on, or a half dollar piece makes a good sized scallop for this purpose. After marking for the bottom of the scallop all around, mark for the top by setting the marker up an eighth of an inch or a little more, right in the center of the scallop, letting the marker touch the end of each scallop.

This girl had never worked before—

Miss Randolph had been graduated from high school with a good record. Circumstances at home made it necessary that she go to work.

But she didn't know what to do. She didn't know a thing about business and she couldn't afford to spend six months or a year studying shorthand.

She worried about it for some time—trying in vain to reach a decision. Then, one Sunday, she saw one of the advertisements on The Illinois School of Filing and decided to send for the 34-page free book—"Filing as a profession for women."

The book was a revelation to Miss Randolph. She had never even imagined that filing was such an important branch of business—or that it could be studied.

So she took the course and studied the principles that underlie all filing systems — learning through actual practice. Today this little girl who had never worked before, is already getting $17.50 a week, plus a BONUS—and she has just started.

Delighted! Well, I should say she is.

Miss Randolph likes the work because it is pleasant and interesting and because it throws her in contact with the important executives of the business.

Who knows! Unless Miss Randolph had read that book and taken the course in filing she might be just one of a hundred girls in an office! Who knows but that it will open up a similar future for you, too!

Drop in tomorrow to see Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the principal of the Illinois School of Filing. She will be glad to tell you about the course. Write today for the free book on filing.

PATTERNS by CLOTILDE

9752—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 44 inch material and ⅞ yard of binding.

9756—Woman's dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch or 3⅝ yards of 44 inch material, with 1¼ yards of 22 inch contrasting.

9755—Girl's dress. Sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅝ yard of lining.

How to Use the Patterns

AN especially becoming design for slender figures, is No. 9752. The pattern is not difficult to use, and the directions given for cutting and putting together are explicit.

The skirt is the usual two piece gathered pattern, and can be put together and finished around the bottom before attaching the tunic. Of course, no one cuts out a dress without first laying each piece carefully on the material, with reference to the right grain for each piece. Where the cloth has no up and down, one piece will often fit nicely into another, and in that way save quite a little.

A one strip or wash placket will be best for the back of the skirt, having the seam to the wrong side, and then turning back the opposite edge of the strip and carefully hemming it down over the stitched seam.

The arrangement of the sash and tunic are quite unusual and will be just what many will want for one of the new fall dresses.

The tunic should be hemmed across the bottom and attached to the left side of the skirt according to the notches.

The waist buttons down the back, and the sash ends are sewed to the under arm seams. It would be a good idea to tie the sash ends in a pretty bow and arrange so that the bow can be fastened in place with snaps, instead of tying and untying each time. Put the waist on, and arrange the sash as it should go—then, after tying the bow, it will be an easy matter to see just where to cut one end so as to allow the bow to remain tied.

Taffeta in one of the lovely new shades shown for fall wear will make up attractively, and no trimming will be needed other than the sash and tunic. Of course, the collar used for the square neck will be dressy looking—made of something white and sheer. If you are tired of organdy, why not use a fine French voile and do some eyelet work on it?

No. 9755 will make a pretty school dress for a young girl—and challis, serge, or tricotine will any of them be suitable materials. There is an underwaist, fastening in the back, to which the skirt is sewed. It would be pretty to have buttons and buttonholes the entire length of the waist and skirt, on the left side of the front—really working the buttonholes. Or else there could be made the simulated buttonholes, using a fine silk cord, or making them of silk or satin. With a bit of embroidery on the collar and cuffs, there would be no need for further trimming. Be sure to keep the blouse loosely belted, and instead of making the belt, why not buy one of the pretty new ones, of patent leather?

No. 9756 is a smart design for a morning or afternoon home dress. And it will make up equally well in wash or other materials. The pockets are a great comfort to most of us, even if nothing more than a handkerchief or keys are carried in them.

The skirt is in two pieces, and is slightly gored at the top, and measures 1¾ yards at the bottom for size 38.

As the waist buttons down the front, the skirt can be slashed down the center front and finished for a placket; or, if you prefer, the left side seam can be left open and finished for a placket. In that event a belt length would have to be prepared, measuring the waist length, plus the number of inches from the middle front to the point where the side seam comes. Added to this length will have to be a piece to set the left front of the waist in—for the waist will fasten down the middle, and the left front of the skirt will fasten over the left front [each in its own band, and the two will be held together by two or three snaps.

The under sides of the pockets really form part of the skirt. The upper pocket section should be laid [right side to the right side of the skirt] on the skirt and stitched in a seam around the upper edge. Then the seam should be carefully clipped at short intervals all around and the pocket piece turned to the wrong side. Baste and press this seam well, so it lies flat and smooth; then lay the other pocket section in place on the stitched section, and overcast and stitch the pocket together.

The pocket opening could be finished with feather stitching, French knots, or a line of embroidery. The same design should be used on the upper side of the sleeves at the hand and on the collar points.

Too Young for You.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a widower 53 years old and know a lady 21 years younger. I love her and asked her to become my wife. She promised me that she would. Now she says she doesn't want to leave a stepsister because she has been so good to her. I have given her my word of honor that she could bring her sister with her. Do you think she is treating me right? "J. B."

Why don't you try to get one woman near your own age instead of two less than half of it? How do you expect you could make a girl of 21 happy? You must be in your dotage to consider it seriously.

Cannot Print It.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a fellow in our office. Once in awhile he kisses me. The girls do not think it right to let him kiss me in office hours and any time he wants to. What do you think? ANXIOUS."

What do I think? I think I will drop a note to your employer telling him how you are using his time. You better send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I will tell you what I really think. This, being a nice family newspaper, I cannot print it.

He's a Jealous Youth.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a boy, and he said he wanted me for his steady girl. I told him all right. The other night I was down at the beach and he wasn't there, but came later and saw me with some of my boy friends and got mad. Do you think he cares for me? How can I find out if he loves me? B. L."

I think that would prove an interest hardly formal on his part. So, you better be careful not to offend him any more. He's what you might call a jealous youth. N'est ce pas?

"If this living room were mine"

—this remark is often heard when one brings guests into a room like this. One feels rather proud of it. Life is well worth living in a place so comfortable and harmonious. The fine overstuffed davenport invites you to lounge a while, the big chair looks as if a real man owned it. The player piano and phonograph promise many hours of pleasant entertainment. But after all one does not need this fine big room and all its beautiful furnishings to make one happy. It is sufficient that whatever you buy should be of the best, whether the room you are furnishing be large and luxurious or small and cozy.

During the September Furniture Sale you can secure such furniture here at very reasonable prices and pay for it while you are using it, if you wish.

Overstuffed davenport	$495	Windsor rocker	22.50
Overstuffed easy chair		Floor lamp and shade	32.50
Overstuffed rocker		Player piano	$395.00
Large table	49.75	Brunswick phonograph	250.00

FOR AND BY BUSINESS GIRLS

UNWORTHY OF TRUST.

SOMETIMES a girl's position makes it easy for her to take an unfair advantage of her employer in such a way that she can salve her conscience by pretending to convince herself it is all right.

For instance, I know a girl who has what she calls a "soft snap" of a position. She is the only girl in a small office. Her employer usually spends the first hours of the day in the downtown office, but the greater part of every afternoon finds him at his manufacturing plant, which is in another part of town.

Although, as a rule, Marie finishes up the work her employer gives her before he leaves for the plant each day, she is expected to put in her time at the office for the remainder of the afternoon answering telephone calls and attending to the people who come in, taking orders, and giving out the proper information on shipments and back orders, etc. Occasionally she stays and does precisely that; but whenever she can inveigle the bookkeeper into taking care of these duties for her she slips out of the office for a pleasant afternoon of some sort as soon as she is sure that her employer is well out of the way.

This deception is not likely to go on indefinitely. If she's found out, and her employer checks up on her time, it is unthinkable that he would countenance it.

Not every girl who is inspired to a recklessness of this sort by a too-easy job has the luck—good or otherwise, whichever you like—to go on as long as Marie, disposing of time which ought to be spent in the service of her employer for her own pleasure and convenience.

Long before I knew Marie a friend told me about a girl who came to work in the same office with her, and who lost her position for taking afternoons off without the knowledge or consent of her employer. My friend had been the only girl in this office for years. When the work became a little too heavy for one to handle easily the head of the firm suggested getting an assistant for her. One of the men employed in the office recommended a girl, and she was given the job.

The two girls got along nicely together until the new girl learned that when the head of the firm made his monthly trips to the home office in another city, staying away three or four days each time, there was apparently no one directly in charge of the office.

Then, counting on the people in the office not to give her away, she started taking one and sometimes two afternoons off each month.

She reckoned, however, without one of the men in the office. It happened on one of her afternoons off, coincident with her employer's trip, that an important and lengthy contract had to be made up, copied, and mailed that afternoon. It meant with only one girl in the office that the regular afternoon mail and daily report to the home office had to be postponed until the next day.

This was a serious lapse, and one of the men—not the one who had recommended her for the position—took upon himself the responsibility of informing the head of the firm, on his return, of the reason.

She wasn't given a chance either to explain or redeem herself, and I think the man was undoubtedly justified in his action, because a girl who cannot be trusted a moment after her employer's back is turned deserves no consideration from any one.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

It Wasn't Auntie.

I served as a sailor during the war, and when in London I decided to visit my father's sister, whom I had never seen. I wrote to her telling her when I was coming. When I reached the house I knocked, and an elderly woman came to the door. Supposing her to be my aunt, I immediately kissed her. You can imagine my surprise when she laughed, and said: "Your aunt will be here in a moment. I am the housekeeper."

Open, Aboveboard, and Explicit.

My daughter received six boxes of stationery for her birthday, and then a dear old woman friend of mine brought in the seventh box. I knew that she must have had to deny herself something to give it, and I was deeply touched.

In order to appear duly appreciative, I said: "Stationery! Just what she needs, and no one has given her any."

Just as I finished my young son walked in and, seeing the newly arrived gift, exclaimed: "Gee whiz! Another box of stationery! That makes the seventh."

An error in delivery means another weary ride downtown, and if you ask for credit, well! you are simply a long way from home. Your local dealer is the man you want to see; he's the fellow who is there when a lift means the world to you. We have eight big stores and there is one of them near you—drop in, look us over and you will never risk your life in the loop again.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

OUTIFUL DAUGHTER DEMURS.

It was my dear old aunt who told the story—a story that defied tradition—the love story of her life. I noted the whimsical tone she used as she went on with her narrative, expressed for the sake of those poor benighted creatures of gossip who kept corner grocery stores in the early eighties, just as though the stores didn't feed on gossip in the last twenty or thirty years as well.

"Father and mother lived on a farm and farm life at that time, as you know, wasn't as attractive a life as it is now," she began. "I was expected to do my share of the work as well as my sisters and brothers. Our future lives were planned for us, much like that of the Turkish girl or the Indian squaw. Our parents and our neighbors were matchmakers when we were but children.

"So I grew up expecting to marry a very practical but radical master of the soil. He was our nearest neighbor, and the match between our parents had been effected a long time ago He was a very good man—that prospective partner of mine—and doubtless he would be a big landowner soon. As a child I was sufficiently attracted towards the idea; more, I'm afraid, than towards the man. Consequently I gave him a good deal of encouragement.

"He courted me steadily for two years, and really loved me. That part of his composition was genuine—even though the idea of courtship belonged to his father and mother. So because I was a dutiful daughter and believed everything my parents did for me was the best, I became engaged to him.

"The thought of having to love him enough to want to marry him never entered my head. I surmised that part of it would follow as a natural course. It took the arrival of a visiting student of law into the family to cause me to change my mind. I knew then what a fatal mistake I would have made had I followed the wishes of my parents.

"I was in sudden misery. I knew not which way to turn. Knowing as I did the severity of the judgment which would be passed on me were I to renounce the engagement and consent to marry the law student (it had been a mutual case of love at first sight), I could do nothing but appeal to my fiancé's sense of honor and generosity of heart.

"About this time I fell off a hay left and broke my right arm. An inexperienced surgeon set it wrong and six weeks after the accident I suffered the tortures of having it set again. Two weeks after that I accidentally broke the left. I was indeed helpless, to say the least. But my misery was complete when I caught scattered snatches of gossip pertaining to my destiny.

"Farm folk were sure it was the punishment of God, and nothing would help me unless I married the man to whom I'd been engaged for two years Meanwhile my lover relieved part of the pressure brought to bear upon me by returning to school in the city. But his letters came regularly and frequently. My parents, softened partially towards me because of my persistent round of miseries, gradually discarded the idea of my ever being happy with neighbor farmer. I bless them to this day for relenting.

"I heard soon after that my former fiancé had left the locality, and I've never heard of him since. The law student's last visit to our farm was accompanied by a marriage certificate." C. L.

My Funniest Childhood Adventure

What was the most amusing thing you did as a youngster? You must have been up to some tricks. We'd like to hear about it. Address Funniest Childhood Adventures, Chicago Tribune. Don't set this contest mixed with Bright Sayings. It's deeds we want to hear about. The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published.

Devoured the Feast.

My brother and I liked to play circus in our barn. Every boy and girl in the neighborhood got an invitation from us, but the fee was five pins, and they were always instructed to bring refreshments, which were served to actors and guests after the performance.

We had a large swing, suspended from a plank in the barn. My chum, a little fat girl, and I were the chief performers. Our stunt was to climb onto the plank from behind draperies (usually old quilts), and slide down each side of the rope swing at the same time. Then, as real circus girls always do, we would bow to the audience. Usually we would get a bouquet of wild flowers from some admirer.

When we were planning one of these wonderful shows my brother decided that it wasn't a "sure enough" circus without elephants. So he got a quilt, and put me and my chum under it, telling us to walk around and try to make sounds like an elephant. When we got off stage we were to continue the noise, which we did. But they forgot they had left the refreshments for the feast out there.

For a time all went well. We whooped up like real elephants; then the sounds died away. When the manager (my brother) came to find out the reason why, he found the two elephants devouring the good things to eat. The guests rushed out and there was pandemonium, and it ended our circus for all time. B. F.

Out Fell the Stamps.

It is my duty to buy all of the stamps for our office. One day upon my return from the postoffice I sat down in the rest room for a moment, and put the stamps in my hat, which I held in my lap. That evening when I was preparing to go home, the wife of the boss came in and stood talking to me. When I went to put my hat on, out fell the stamps. She stared, but I was too overcome to offer any excuse. N. C.

SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CHOOSE "La Camille"

1. They lace in front. That is the sensible and convenient way to lace.
2. Style. That intangible something which we know as style. They have it in abundance.
3. Fit. LA CAMILLE corsets come in a wide range of models and they fit with marvelous precision.
4. Ventilo Back. This feature prevents pressure on the spine and allows ventilation, which means longer life to the corset.
5. Ventilo Front Shield permits greater range of adjustment and prevents the laces from scoring the flesh.
6. Lox-It Clasp. This perfect corset fastener does not tilt, gap or come unfastened accidentally.
7. Price. While these corsets have all the above points of merit to recommend them they do not cost any more than ordinary corsets.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

SILHOUETTE OF THE DAY.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.]—This is the time in the fashion developements of the fall season when I should like to make a generalization—except that if I do exactly the opposite facts will come up to confront me. I should like to say that tailored coats will be long, but if I do the boy who illustrates for me will march in with an extremely short coat, as the one outstanding feature he has remembered from an exhibit.

The better part of valor, therefore, is for the moment to devote oneself to theories, and tthere is one which I am not afraid to make. We are going, before we are through with the particular movement under way, to revert to Puritanism in styles.

Of course, the French are putting up a gallant fight against it; some of the skirts are defiantly shorter than they have ever been before. Some backs still are brazonly uncovered. But I think if I were getting a new wardrobe to cover the next two years, I should make it moderately conservative.

It is going to be the style from now on for a period to be covered up; the semi-nude fashion has passed. A man said a year ago that when he went home to America those long skirts made him blush with embarassment. If what I hear about America is true, he is presently going to blush for their brevity.

At any rate, the costuming of the day must look easy and unaffected and flowing. It must be an elegant background above which the lady rises unaware of it. Someone on looking, with a great deal of earnestness, at a model the other day at Jenny's said: "Well, it looks easy to get out of."

That is the keynote of the day. Things should not be "fixey." They must look as if they slipped off easily and as if one got into them with just as much ease. Always to have to be pulling at your clothes is not a mark of elegance; any gesture that calls attention to them, I think, is in a measure in bad taste. That is the reason that I could never entirely sanction the ruling against which I protested last winter that we should hold our coats in place. It is a mark, I think, of not being quite at ease in one's apparel.

As to the matter of colors for the season, I hope I am not speaking the final word. The year, from the standpoint of style, is so young that we have not yet found ourselves. Never in years, however, at any season have I seen such crudity in shades. Poison greens and cherry—that color which I always considered marked the middle western farmer girl's costuming when she was "dressed up," and a great deal of red. Brick dust and henna, with brown, is the scheme which is the most artistic and the most prevailing.

As for the silhouette, it is American. Keep your long lines, make your skirt a little more ample than a pillow slip, and drop your panniers. The lady in black velvet, ruffled with monkey fur, displays the silhouette of the day. You will note that it takes no cognizance of the waistline, and the skirt bulges a little in its descent. It has long, tight sleeves and a high collar. Thus dressed you will be ready to go on the street for many a day to come.

Molyneux made this creation. It is topped with a hat of black plush. Its only ornamentation is a string of pearls which run from either side loosely under the chin. The mannikin is wearing pearl bracelets over the velvet sleeve on the right wrist.

The second model is also from Molyneux, and shows the silhouette popular for dance frocks in the early season. The wide pannier is as dead as a door nail, and now for both afternoon and evening the skirt is either straight or slightly bulging, like an apron, or else it has cascades down the sides of the material or lace or ruffles. Skirts will gradually get fuller from this hour, I have no hesitation in predicting. The dress of the model is of marquise blue satin, brocaded in silk. The frills round the skirt are of silver and gauze lace. Under them is visible charming, quaint little ribbon piping, punctuated in flowers of pastel greens and blues. The same silver forms a "modestie" under the bodice and loops the arms. The manhikin wore a huge mink coat over this dress when she entered the showroom.

Velvet is the popular fabric of the day. The third dress is in this material, and trimmed in that garniture which America never liked any too well, although the French think it so chic. The dress is trimmed in long whiskers of monkey fur. The bodice is loose with no sleeve designation. A cape-like piece folds over them, and fastens to the tight basque. The collar is of monkey fur, as is the belt and the edging of the cape. Slits are made in the middle of the side draperies and along the shoulder, and in these openings monkey fur is planted.

The fourth model shows one of the silhouettes of tailored suits for the season. It is of black duvetyn. The neckpiece and the lacings on the skirt of the coat are of marten. The hat is of the same fur.

1. Model of black velvet, showing long, straight silhouette of the day.
2. Blue marquise and silver lace, showing silhouette of dance frocks.
3. Velvet dress trimmed with monkey fur.
4. New model of tailored suit with lacings, collar, and hat of marten.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each child's saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Mildred was tugging away at her stocking, which apparently would not come off. Just then Aunt Leila came by and Mildred stuck her foot out, asking to have the stocking removed. It came off quickly and easily, much to Mildred's surprise. "O, well," she remarked, "I could have done that, too, if I could get around in front of myself." J. J. L.

Gertrude had heard her brother speak of parking his car. And he often parked his cap when he threw it on the table. One day Gertrude fell downstairs and bruised both her knees. When she went to bed she said: "I aren't able to park my knees so as to make my legs cumfy." N. A. R.

I had been in the habit of putting the children to bed promptly at 8 p. m. One evening they were more full of play than usual, and begged to be permitted to stay up longer than the usual time. I told them I'd think it over, which I did, and gave them an extra half hour. At 8:30 I announced: "Bedtime," whereupon Virginia spoke up and said, "Oh, do tink it over again, muvver." M. L. B.

Buddy had been taught to say grace at the table before meals. One Sunday noon he was having dinner at a friend's home. No grace was said here, and in the quiet interval when the guests were unfolding their napkins, Buddy looked at the host and said: "Say, don't you fellas ever pray?" R. R. U.

William was playing store back of his mother's cottage at this resort. As I was passing towards the dining room he asked if "I would buy something." I replied, "What have you to sell?" "Shells at a penny apiece." "I will take two." He handed me the shells when, looking in my coin purse, I found I had no pennies, so handed him a nickel, saying, "Have you any change?" Pocketing the nickel, he replied, "I don't give any change." I. G.

Janis went with her mother to attend a fashionable church wedding. She seemed much impressed by the procession and listened intently while the wedding march was being played. But during the long book ceremony she grew restless. Suddenly in the midst of the solemnest part of the service she burst out: "Mother, let's go home. I don't like this show." E. G.

As Verona is the only girl in a large family she is, naturally, rather spoiled. One day when the child was particularly naughty her aunt, who was visiting them, threatened to lock her in the closet. "If you puts me in that closet you'll be the most s'prised aunt in town," declared Verona effectively. J. M. V.

James was seated on the front porch one day at noon. The carpenters, who were repairing his home, were eating their lunch. An uncle of James stopped to ask the little chap to go for a ride. With a sigh came the answer: "O, I can't today. The carpenters are making our house over and I have to see that they do their work right." P. H. G.

"Aunty," fretted Rosalind, "kitty just fell off the fence again and hurt herself; I'm afraid she'll kill herself some of these days!"

"O, no, she won't," soothed aunty, "a cat has nine lives!"

Somewhat consoled, yet being too young to realize how many lives nine covered, she caught pussy protectingly in her arms and said: "Be more careful of yourself after this kitty, 'cause I'm sure this is 'bout next to your last life!" F. J.

Pearl in high glee approached her aunty and excitedly exclaimed; "O, aunty," what do you fink happened last night? My doggie hatched three twin puppies?" F. J.

Dick was having a hard time with his lessons, and his mother asked what the trouble was. He replied: "I was all right last year, but that vacation just unlearned me." J. W.

Donald always wants to be first in everything. A few minutes ago he passed the door calling: "Morrow mornin' paper." M. E. D.

"Yes, Clothes are always smart over 'Stylish Stout' Corsets"

Paris style bulletins declare for the natural waistline; for the straight silhouette in morning, afternoon and evening clothes!

"Stylish Stout" Corsets have been designed to provide just this foundation — they enable stout and near-stout women to wear the fashionable sort of clothes they hitherto have considered impossible.

These Corsets are the result of years spent in perfecting a new principle. They actually reduce the figure three to five inches; and give an appearance of twenty pounds lighter weight.

"Stylish Stout" Brassieres embody the same new principle as the Corsets and are the logical accompaniments to them. Ask for them at your local store.

FISHERMAN SUPERSTITIONS

by DORIS BLAKE

AFTER a half day's fishing with no luck, the last thing you thought of blaming your luck on was the fact that you changed your bait, but Old Man Superstition says you might have caught a twenty-five pounder if you hadn't driven away your luck by changing your bait.

After being out all day with nothing more to show for the hours spent than the rod and tackle and a querulous disposition, undoubtedly you never suspected the reason was that you started out depending on getting the bait after you got there, but ill luck is what fisherman lore promises will follow such unpreparedness.

Some of the other "bites" in fishing lore are:

When fishworms appear on top of the ground it is a sign that fish are ready to bite.

If a minnow dies on the hook, the first one using it may as well go home as it is a sign he will have no more luck that day.

During the day of fishing proceedings it is bad luck to have some one stop and ask you if you had a good catch.

Fishermen consider three, five, and seven lucky numbers, and they won't stop on an even number.

It is lucky for a fisherman to get his feet wet.

It is unlucky for a fisherman to tread on his line.

It is unlucky for a fisherman to meet anyone with red hair.

It is unlucky to have a stranger the first to greet one on his fishing journey.

Talking about rabbits while going on a fishing trip will bring bad luck.

If, while fishing, you hook a water snake, look out for false friends.

Fisherman in anger froth,
When the wind is in the north,
For fish bite the best
When the wind is in the west.

The fisherman who meets a lone crow will have no luck.

If you quarrel with a member of your family before you start out, you'll have good luck.

To keep up your good luck burn the teeth of the largest fish you catch.

If you catch a live fish in your hand and hold it, you will get money.

When the new moon is seen while fishing the crew of the boat will look at the first coin they take from their pockets and if the majority show heads they will have good luck.

It is lucky for a bird to fly across the fisherman's lines.

Let nimble tern and screaming gull
Fly round and round and our net is full.

Don't count the fish you caught or you will catch no more that day.

If the first fish caught manages to get back into the water, it will carry your luck away with it.

Fish bite best when the moon is on the wane.

If a person casts his line and drags out a branch of a tree the next fish caught will be a big one.

When fish jump up after flies, expect rain.

Don't spit in the water in front of you; it drives away the fish.

It is bad luck for a fish to leap from the water into the boat.

If an angler does not spit on his bait and say:

Fish, fish, fish, come bite my hook;
You'll be captain and I'll be cook,

he is not apt to be very successful.

It is bad luck to string the first fish you catch.

If you can't land your first bite, you won't be satisfied with your luck that day.

Sit with your feet crossed when fishing.

To hook a fish in the side is a sign of good luck.

Never swear when fishing or the fish will run away.

Never sell your fish before you catch them.

Stolen fishing tackle is lucky.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

Recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current food materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

SOME JEWISH RECIPES.

All the high holidays of the year of every name and nation have, I believe, been celebrated in part by feastings. Rosh Ha shah, the Jewish New Year, and Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, the high holidays centuries before the gentile world celebrations were added, and there were feasts for then Kippur then as now.

There is too little interest, perhaps, in food and food laws of the days when the health department was a religious institution, since the nation was guided from the sacred tabernacle, which proceeded all law. We know now that "kosher" stands for a high standard, centuries old, which it now includes all the scientific ideas of modern meat inspection—" and just a little more."

The term of Jewish unleavened bread, what we called rye crisp, was a few years ago quite universally sold, but is a little harder to find now. Any one of health cults used it. The name is a work, during the wartime conservation period, with bread crumbs left from Jewish practices, I believe.

The recipe was once given to a recipe for a sponge cake made of rye bread crumbs. The unleavened bread is rolled into a fine meal or flour, and used by the Jewish people for pancakes, dumplings, pie crust, etc. They break it up in small pieces, dip it in beaten egg, treat it like French toast, and serve it hot with sugar, cinnamon and grated lemon rind.

There is a short English supplement to a Jewish cook book I have just purchased which takes up first the subject of "koshering." It quotes first a passage from Leviticus, xvii., 10: "And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood; I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people. For the life of the flesh is in the blood."

The Jewish Regulations.

According to this book, the way to obey this rule is: "When purchasing meat, care must be taken to see that the veins of blood, forbidden fat, and other prohibited sinew have been removed. The following are the Jewish directions for koshering meat and poultry: 'The meat is put into a vessel specially reserved for the purpose. It is then entirely covered with cold water, and left in it for half an hour before removing the meat from the water every clot of blood must be cleaned off. It should then be put upon a salting board [a wooden board perforated with holes], placed in a slant position, so that the water may run off.

'Powdered salt is then sprinkled plentifully over every part of the meat. The meat must remain in salt for one hour. It is then removed, held over a large pan, and well rinsed with cold water three times, so that all the salt is washed off. Then it is placed in a clean cloth and thoroughly dried.

'The heart and the lungs must be cleansed before being soaked, so that the blood may flow out. The liver must be prepared apart from other meat. It must be cut open, washed in cold water, fried over the fire on a gridiron, and, whilst frying, it must be salted. When fried the blood must be washed from it.

'The head and skin of an animal may be koshered with the hair and feathers thereto. The head must, however, be cut open, the brain removed and koshered separately. The gall of the claws and hoofs must be removed before the feet are koshered.

'Poultry is koshered in the same manner as meat, taking care that previous to the soaking in water the whole of the inside be completely removed.'"

Kosher Ancient Word.

It is claimed that "kosher" is one of the oldest words in the world. In a newspaper article on koshering, printed last year, in which it was claimed that 30 per cent of the beef killed at one of the packing houses was according to the ancient Hebrew custom, it said of the word: "It was on the butcher shops of Egypt countless centuries ago, on the restaurants through the reigns of Greek and Roman. It moved west with the Goth and Visigoth, and followed Gaul and Saxon into the north."

Jocosely the reporter wrote: "Moses, some centuries ago, decided he did not like the way the careless butchers had of finishing off cattle. So he sent his own friends out to superintend and do the killing." Their successors are still going out. Today the rabbis and schacters stand exactly as they did in the killing plants of Canaan, and fulfill the order of Moses that animals killed for food shall be bled—and inspected after they are killed.

Perhaps a Jewish menu of today will not, on the face of it, look Hebraical, but Miss Blanche M. Joseph has written one for me with the recipes which she says will be appropriate for the holidays for which they like to provide a luxurious dinner. Miss Joseph is a dietitian, the social service chairman in the American Dietetic association, a social service worker in dietetics, and altogether well informed in Jewish life. Her menu reads:

Noodle soup.
Boiled trout, lemon sauce. Boiled potatoes.
Roast duck with liver and bread dressing.
Asparagus.
Combination salad.
Noodle pudding.

Miss Joseph suggests that the salad be tomato stuffed with celery and olives. She says that I need not hesitate to use the recipes as they are, because she has used them many times over. That for the soup she omits, because she says I know a noodle soup recipe, and perhaps most people do. Here are recipes she supplies:

Boiled Trout with Lemon Sauce.

Five pound trout, one quart water, one cup of white vinegar, one cup of sugar, three yolks of eggs, one tablespoon of corn starch, a soup bunch, two carrots cut in small cubes, two medium sized onions, one lemon sliced very thin.

Cut fish into slices, season, allow to stand for one hour. Cook water, sugar, and vegetables together for one-half hour. Add fish to this and cook till tender. Remove fish and strain stock.

Beat three egg yolks till light, add tablespoon of corn starch and the strained fish stock, cook in double boiler until thick, and pour over the fish. Garnish with lemon, parsley, and cooked carrots.

[Note: I think it quite possible that Miss Joseph meant to have added the lemon, sliced thin, to the sauce.]

Baked Duck.

Prepare the duck, and when ready prepare for it the following dressing: One-half loaf of bread, the liver of the fowl chopped very fine, salt, pepper, a speck of ginger, one-half onion, two eggs, parsley, and seasoning salt. Dry bread in fat or shortening, brown onions, add seasonings, then eggs and parsley, and mix thoroughly.

Noodle Shallet or Pudding.

Either buy one and a half pounds of noodles or use two eggs and make. Boil the noodles in salted water and drain. To make puddings take four eggs (separate), one-half pound of sugar, rind and juice of one lemon, one-fourth cup chopped almonds, one-fourth cup of raisins, one-half cup of melted butter or any kind of shortening.

Beat the yolks of the eggs with the sugar until light. Add lemon rind and juice, almonds and raisins, and melted butter, and then the stiffly beaten egg whites. Put in a buttered baking dish (a spring form pan is best) and bake three-fourths of an hour in a moderate oven.

Have You Chosen Your Autumn Hat?

The most satisfactory selection is possible only where the showing of hats is sufficiently large to provide just the color, the shape and the fabric best suited to every distinct type of individual.

And such a collection of hats is that which we are showing at $10. Lyons and Panne velvet, trimmed with a touch of metallic ribbon or odd little ornaments. The shapes range from the small soft little hat to the large shape with turn down brim. All the fall colors are represented. $10

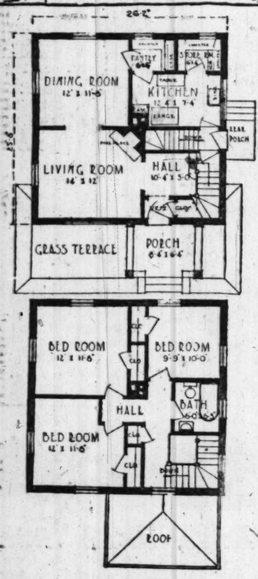
THE "THRIFT HOUSE."

EVERYONE likes to stand well in the eyes of his friends. There are many ways in which we can cut a dash, and make them say: "Well, Mrs. Jones certainly amounts to something." We can wear expensive furs, take our friends riding in a handsome, up-to-the-minute car, take them to theater parties and suppers afterward at our pet restaurant, where we probably know the head waiter. One is always popular and much looked up to when spending his hard earned cash in this way; but haven't you felt just a little envious and maybe a little more respect for the people who have contrived to build themselves a home?

Many of them have no bigger income than we have, and we know that they must have scraped and planned and denied themselves many little things we have not stinted to buy for ourselves. Maybe the fur set that Mary decided she didn't want is represented somewhere in more substantial form in their little home, and the cost of a few theater parties and some of John's extra special cigars went into solid, substantial bricks and mortar that will shelter and protect John and Mary when they are old, and their children and children's children after them. Isn't it worth it? I think so.

I don't recommend trying to put up too big a house and laying too big a burden on oneself, but there is a house which will fit the salary of almost every man, no matter how small that salary is. We must not forget, however, that "it's not only the first cost, but the upkeep" that counts. Now that the price of a brick house and a wood house are almost identical, there is all the more reason why we should build of the better material, which never has to be painted, on which fire insurance rates are lower, which never has to be patched and repaired, and which lasts twice as long as the more common construction. Real thrift consists just as much in getting the best value for our money as in actually saving it.

The house illustrated this week might well be called the "thrift house," because, while it is ample in size for an average family, it has been studied thoroughly for economy. The outside walls have no breaks in them, and the roof [in which much money is often spent for intricate corners and framing] is in this case very inexpensive. All the flues, too, are in one chimney, again saving money.



And even though it is simple, the exterior is charming. The walls are specified to be laid with solid common brick masonry with all the natural markings of the brick exposed and the white mortar joints bringing out all the beauty of the texture of the brick. With pure white window sash and outside blinds painted olive green this is a house which anyone would be proud to show their friends. It would look equally well on a city or suburban lot, or in the country. It is 26 feet 2 inches wide, and 25 feet 8 inches deep.

Entering the house, we find ourselves in a small but ample sized entrance hall, which looks much more spacious because of the wide cased opening into the living room. A coat closet is arranged conveniently near the front door. Both living and dining rooms are well proportioned rooms, each lighted from two sides, as are also the bedrooms above, so that this side of the house could be placed fairly close to one side of the lot and not suffer from want of light.

The living room is 14x12 feet and the dining room 12 feet by 11 feet 8 inches. The working drawings show a mantel in the living room of interesting design. The pantry is placed so that it shuts out the odors of cooking from the rest of the house, and affords very welcome privacy where a maid is either kept regularly or occasionally to help with the meals.

A feature of the kitchen which will appeal to most women is the large store room opening from it, avoiding many a wearisome trip to the cellar. Many modern kitchens have the fault that they are entirely too compact, with far too little shelf room and space to put things. This kitchen I think is a happy combination. It is compact, and yet there is enough closet room and shelving in the store room and pantry to satisfy anyone. The kitchen is 12 feet 4 inches by 7 feet 4 inches. The cellar stairs and rear porch are only a step away, and the front door can be answered without making a journey through the living and dining rooms.

Upstairs are three bedrooms, the smallest of which is as large as many principal bedrooms in the city flats. The larger bedrooms are each 12 feet by 11 feet 8 inches and the smaller one 10 feet by 9 feet 9 inches. Every room has two windows, giving cross ventilation, and each has an extra large closet. There is another good sized closet in the hall for linen. The bathroom is convenient to all the rooms.

Answers to Queries.

A. S.: It is the fashion to keep to very light central tints throughout in the selection of your colors. Vary the colors if you like, but keep them all to one key: that is, if you decide on gray, let whatever blue you use be a light gray blue, and so on. Or, if you decide on light tan, see that all of the other colors that you use are tinted with tan. If you do this your rooms will be harmonious.

R. R.: Yes, the oval rag rugs are being used in bedrooms. They go particularly well in conjunction with brown mahogany furniture. You might use a color scheme of light gray and corn color in one room and light gray and turquoises in the other.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

MR. GEST, the Big Show king, has returned to New York, his sword aloft in emblem of victorious receipts for "Aphrodite" at the Auditorium. It seems that we are numerous in our attendance upon that unmaidenly spectacle, dissected thither by a laudable passion for investigating antiquity in its unctuous. Or by an equally salubrious desire to enjoy the esthetic pleasures offered by harmonious color and graceful movement. It has been suggested by cynical editors that salacity rather than art has been the impelling motive of "Aprodite," and that the magnet is the expected opportunity to run the dotted line from a lascivious eye to a hospitable destination.

That suspicion appears to be, as the English actor said of the American press—"unworthay, unworthay!" Still, this desk experiences a slight discomfiture over the many, too many, letters which reach it, asking for completer details of the dress of the shy young woman who impersonates the statue of Jove's most popular daughter. The lady's abashed identification of her tailors involves only the names of Messrs. Mennen and Colgate, one is told; and with that imprudent information reluctantly vouchsafed, the correspondence must be closed.

Mr. Gest is a Berserker among the impressarios. He and his larger emprises such as "Aphrodite," strive shirtless to entertain, and, changing his figure, that they win is indicated by the multitudes whose eager eyes he dilates with his pictorial atropines. Like the good, gray poet (shifting again) "of physiology he sings, from top to toe." He has the Russian's ardent impulse for picture and the dance, and he is happiest when he ponders his own extravagant hippodromes. It is, possibly, ungracious for one who finds considerable entertainment in the observation of "Aphrodite" to utter even a tiny note of expostulation. That hectic and expansive masquerade of the night-life of mythical Alexandria, with its large crimes and revels, its big dances and little lusts, is too big a scene for small fault-finding.

Yet if they would exile about a dozen of the bad actors in the play (and it could be done without interfering with the recital of the fable) it would ease some unimportant anguish among the more callous of its attendance. These actors are not so bad as they are merely blank. They make still emptier the noisy vacuum of their rôles, which mean little to the tale and nothing to the spectacle. "Aphrodite" would be a happier place were they to be erased. The receipts at the Auditorium last week were a trifle more than $60,000, which compares enthusiastically with the prosperity of the show in Paris and New York, the other capitals where it has been exhibited. This does not include the sales of thousands and thousands of copies of the ballad, "Alexandria," an exotic ditty which suggests that old Egypt, too, had its tin-pan alley, its Joe Howards, and its Irving Berlins.

WE shall have two new places to go tonight, when Mr. Ditrichstein will begin to entertain at the Studebaker in "The Purple Mask" and Miss Virginia Pearson and Sheldon Lewis will appear at the Princess in "The Hole in the Wall." Mr. Ditrichstein is promised in some suave dare-devilry occurring at the time Napoleon was the First Consul, and Paris was a picturesque headquarters of mystery and intrigue. Mr. Ditrichstein is to be a debonnair outlaw of Bourbon predilections who essays hazardous expeditions for his King and a pretty woman, succeeding in them, though at the risk of his life. The play was changed from the French by Mattheson Lang, who acted in it in London; and its Chicago performance will have the services of Miss Haynes, Alfred Brown, Orlando Daly, and other players of more or less note.

Miss Pearson and Mr. Lewis, who are adepts in the film shows, will be employed this evening in a play containing spiritualism, abductions, theft, false imprisonment, romance, revenge, a happy ending, and other savory ingredients of the drama. Miss Pearson will impersonate Jean Oliver, a pretty lady, who, wrongfully put in jail by her sweetheart's wicked parent, appeals to the wild justice of revenge—a course which leads her among the green lights of the seances. Mr. Lewis, it may be, acts a detective, and other rôles will be played by John Daly Murphy, George Lund, Forrest Orr, Miss Cordelia McDonald, and Miss Ella Rock.

London commentators are beginning to see the end of American domination of the English stage, and are vastly cheered thereby. The British playwright, they point out, is beginning to come back into his own. The recent failures in London of "East is West," "Why Marry?" and "Tea for Three," all successes in America, has anything but depressed the English writers. "The public," says one critic, "has no prejudice either for or against American plays. If it likes a play, it does not care much which country it comes from. That is a very simple attitude, and ought to lead to an equally simple attitude on the part of producers. The time when they could accept blindly American play after American play, and be sure of a public, has gone by; merit (of some kind) is now the test once again, and American and English playwrights are once more competing on absolutely level terms."

A. H. Woods will take charge of the Playhouse Oct. 11, and will present as the initial attraction a comedy called "The Great Illusion," by Avery Hopwood and Sacha Guitry. Miss Hazel Dawn, Walter Jones, and Kenneth Douglas will be in the cast. The Playhouse is to be redecorated for the event in white and gold.

Miss Dorothy Jardon, the singer, has renounced a salary of $2,500 per week with "Broadway Brevities" after learning that she was expected to appear in the Winter Garden, a theater where smoking is permitted. "One whiff of smoke," declares Miss Jardon, "would so irritate my vocal chords that the beautiful voice God has so generously given to me would be no more. I can't stand even a cigaret. It seems a crime to sacrifice all that money, but my voice, I think, is even more precious."

John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" will come to the Blackstone next week. Mr. Dixon's similar play, after being highly complimented by the New York press, failed to attract audiences of profitable size, and will find itself among the missing at the end of this week.

Fashionable New York is the scene of Louis K. Anspacker's new play, "Stepping Stones," to be produced next month under Henry Miller's direction, with Miss Laura Hope Crews, Miss Kathleen MacDonald, Pedro de Cordoba, A. E. Anson, and Miss Merle Maddern in the characters.

Young Mr. Osterman, the entertaining son of J. J. Rosenthal of Woods theater, continues a spectacular progress along the rosy paths of vaudeville. A delegation of 200 admirers from Toledo and thereabouts made an excursion to Cleveland last week to hear his songs and stories.

Miss Lola Fisher, returning from England, announces that while in London she arranged with a leading manager there to appear in Miss Clare Kummer's "Good Gracious, Annabelle," as soon as a suitable theater can be obtained.

Among the plays in New York that are ready to go disappointed on their way are "Genius and the Crowd" and "The Cave Girl." The former is Mr. Cohan's endeavor to appoint Georges Renevant a star, and the other is a recent effort of Guy Bolton, in which Miss Grace Valentine appears.

The New York Times this morning says that the threatened overwhelming invasion of the legitimate producing field by the movie folk appears to be a bugaboo which is shrinking. As a matter of fact, the Famous Players corporation has not backed a new play this season, and the impression among the knowing is that they have finished with that sort of thing—temporarily at least. The reason, it is said, is a simple one—their producing experiments were entirely too expensive. The film sortie, it will be remembered, was the cause of much sensational speculation when it was at its height.

Miss Zoe Akins, author of Miss Barrymore's "Declassé," has written a burlesque on the artistic temperament, in which Miss Jobyna Howland will make fun of the prima donnas. "Declassé" is due at Powers' Oct. 4, succeeding the highly popular Byron-Hedman affiliation and "Transplanting Jean."

Richard Carle, without saying anything about it, has gone and opened another show. This one is a musical comedy called "Some Colonel," and it was lately revealed in Springfield, Mass. Mr. Carle is seen as an apartment house janitor who suddenly, for strictly dramatic reasons, finds himself obliged to pose as a colonel.

One of the interesting nuggets of news in the Shuberts' midweek budget was the fact that Robert Warwick is about to desert the screen—at least to divide his attentions between screen and stage. He will be seen in a comedy by Horace Annesley Vachell and Walter Hackett named "The Dauntless Three," of which nothing has hitherto been heard. The Shuberts also promise revivals of "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Belle of New York," the latter of which was the foundation of the house's fortunes.

Ed Wynn and the "Carnival" have prospered so well at the Illinois that their season has been extended until Oct. 4, when George White's new "Scandals" will arrive for a long visit.

"Apple Blossoms" will leave the Colonial theater for other ports after a fortnight's further performance.

It may or it may not have been announced before that Miss Madge Kennedy is making her way back from the films and that she is to be presented as a star by Henry W. Savage in "Cornered," by Dodson Mitchell.

BUDDIES AT THE WOODS
ALL THE WORLD LOVES a romance. Likewise all the world loves the sort of music which clings so persistently to one's memory that it is inevitable that it will be whistled and hummed by everybody who hears it. These are perhaps the two best reasons why the Selwyn fascinating "BUDDIES" is making such an enormous success in America's second largest city. With DONALD BRIAN, PEGGY WOOD and RALPH MORGAN as the stars, an evening with "BUDDIES" will round up a perfect day. "BUD" Mats., Wed. & Sat., 50c to $1.50. PAYING DIVIDENDS
This Season Dreamland's Patronage Has Been UNBELIEVABLY BIG
It has always been the policy of the management to give the public that money can buy. Dreamland's business is run on percentage, the largest part of the PROFITS is given back to the public in the form of SOMETHING EXTRA. SOMETHING YOU DON'T GET ANYWHERE ELSE.
The first dividend of this kind was paid at the opening. A "Barrel" of money was spread and a "WARMED AIR" plant installed which makes DREAMLAND THE BEST VENTILATED BALLROOM IN THIS COUNTRY. Also THE MOST ORIGINAL AND BEAUTIFUL DECORATIONS WERE ADDED IN THE FORM OF AN INDOOR FOREST, and a CHORUS OF WILD BIRDS, SUCH AS NEVER WAS THOUGHT OF BEFORE.
Your Second Dividend Is Ready. Come And Collect
THIS TIME IT IS IN MUSIC
Having the best orchestra and with the reputation of being money spenders we always have the first opportunity to get artists. They are always knocking at Harmon's door. THREE WONDERFUL VIOLINISTS HAVE BEEN ADDED TO HIS GALAXY OF STARS.

By Mae Tinée.

DO the picture fans know their own minds? The recent strike of the musicians has made this question a poignant one, for since the day of the "nickel shows" a large per cent of moviegoers have protested volubly against music with the films. The cry has been: "When we go to a motion picture theater we go to see the picture. We don't wish to be annoyed by a lot of jangle and din. We want to enjoy our picture in peace."

When the musicians struck there was loud rejoicing on the part of those who felt that at last they had secured their hearts' desire. "The picture's the thing," they exulted. "Now we can enjoy ourselves without being annoyed."

However, the stubborn exhibitor insisted that the picture should not remain unaccompanied. He introduced vaudeville acts—the best he could procure—to take the place of the music that was stilled.

Then the stage hands struck, and vaudeville was no more a feature on the bill. It would seem that the persnickity fan should be happy, but—for some strange reason the automobiles that had once crowded the streets near popular neighborhood theaters became conspicuous by their absence. No longer did long lines of patrons force the beautiful cashiers to work fast and use their heads. Long tiers of empty seats greeted the eye of the theater manager as he wandered disconsolately about trying to achieve a pleased smile and failing miserably.

"The picture's the thing" so many of his patrons had complained. You should worry about the musicians' strike! We're glad they're gone."

Perhaps. But what the exhibitor wishes to know now is, if the motion picture fans do not like music, why, now that the music is back is he swamped with business when, a brief week or so ago he was a lonely figure by a deserted box office.

The picture's the thing.
Is it?

Little Miss Tobin Hailed as Maude Adams the Second

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In 1810, in this tidewater village of New York, Cornelius Vanderbilt had built up his Staten island ferry business until he frequently was carrying eight and ten passengers a trip. John Jacob Astor, starting modestly in the real estate business, was thinking seriously of acquiring acreage as far out as Gramercy pond, and was fond of predicting that one day the pond would be filled in and there would be a city park there, surrounded by beautiful residences. Peter Delmonico was then making a start as a caterer by peddling sandwiches in a wicker basket.

Into this atmosphere of "Little Old New York" Rida Johnson Young has introduced a conventional comedy drama story concerning an Irish girl who is induced to impersonate her brother and pretend to be a boy in order to save a family fortune. And because her managers have had the good sense to select for the rôle little Genevieve Tobin, now playing her second leading rôle on Broadway, Mrs. Young's play has scored one of the definite successes of the early season.

Miss Tobin, who has been a child actress these many years, playing through her early teens with her sister, Vivian, in a vaudeville sketch called "The Age of Reason," is just now in danger of being handicapped by the reviewers' praise of her as "another Maude Adams." But it is a comparison difficult to avoid—seeing that she is more like the young Maude Adams who builded a great popular success upon her early appearances with John Drew than any of her stage sisters.

Her rôle in "Little Old New York" is not an easy one to play. In the boy's garb she is naturally awkward, and only the freest dramatic license makes the character in the least convincing. After her stage father dies, and she falls in love with her cousin guardian, she goes on pretending to be a boy until she sees that only by giving herself up to the authorities as a rogue, thus permitting the money to revert to the rightful heir, can she save him from ruin. Then she confesses, puts on skirts, and is properly wooed as a pretty maiden.

Music and the Musicians

In Which We Discourse at Considerable Length on the Young Idea.

By Ruth Miller.

EXULTANT messengers from the pedagogical fraternity inform us eagerly that never before in Chicago's history of music teaching has the enrollment of embryo artists been so large. They dilate with many an ecstatic adjective on the fact that these toddlers in the magic musical trail of Orpheus are with us again by the flock, the swarm, and the proverbial shoals; tall ones and short ones and the middle sized; henna blondes and bobbed brunettes; earnest, venerable virgins consecrated to the esthetic cult, sophisticated world weary flappers, and just gifted, lovable human things; pallid youths of genius whose cuff sleeves are too short, and shrewd, wacky young men with a commercial bent, who in turn will beguile the innocent and unwary into the tortuous, stony trail of art.

And they are greeted joyously, for it is the beginning of the season, and even the cynical instructor is convinced of the inherent genius of his class.

When the orchestra season begins you may find them, if you have sufficient interest in these future builders of your country's art, packed in the gallery entrance of Orchestra hall exactly one hour and twenty minutes before the doors open. The air will have that warm, moist heaviness that comes from crowded human beings, and an unexpected movement on the part of your neighbor may relieve you of an eye or tooth, but the happy crew around you worries not one pfennig iota about such mundane things. Instead they discuss mightily the modern music makers, the fiddler's technic, the promiscuous use of augmented triads in composure, Galli Curci's intonation, or nie eat salted peanuts and play "Buzz."

At the first intimation on the part of the puny autocrat in uniform of the opening of the doors they crowd miraculously even tighter. At last, released, strong of wind, limb, and effervescent enthusiasm, these energetic musical disciples will essay to run up the million or more flights to the topmost heaven of Orchestra hall, leaving a flutter of torn tickets behind them.

Later as they settle themselves complacently we recognize the good old musical types that repeat themselves year in and year out.

Side by side we find the neurotic student who can't attend a concert when it drizzles a bit and the silent, shabby youth who trudges miles through any weather and goes without his dinner in the bargain to attend an opera.

Over there to the right of us is the absolute pitch fiend, who is vouchsafed the ability to call every little note by its given name as it tickles his tympanum. Later we know that he will get into action—for never by merciful intent or careless oversight does he conceal or bury his unique talent. So presently we may hear him informing his awed associates that the artist just played such and such a note too low; now the composition modulated into the key of F; or the soloist should have taken a "c" instead of an "a" in that last run. Generally he is permitted to indulge in this gentle, harmless flow of light musical persiflage to his heart's content, but occasionally some jealous contemporary filled with dark, dark thoughts, rises up absent-mindedly and administers choloroform.

Perhaps, sitting next to him will be a little bundle of musical sensitiveness, with blazing, eager eyes and taut nerves, who a decade hence will be holding just such another audience tensely quiet with the fine spun magic gold of her voice.

Over here on our left is the musical I Won't Worker, who belittles everything the artist does and addresses the surrounding atmosphere to the tune of: "How does he get away with it? I could do better than that with both hands tied."

Then there is the charming lackadaisical maiden who hails from Cows Neck, Wyo., who tells you amiably that she was so utterly weary of the continual social whirl in that metropolis—the card parties, the dances, and then more parties—that she turned to the rest cure of doing something worth while with her life. Or else she is being practically forced to marry a man, O, ever so much older and with a most disgusting amount of money, and so she fled to the protection of a career.

And last, but not to be ignored, is the note enthusiast. Here is a stern, pedantic individual who always lugs along a copy of the composition being played and assiduously and pointedly follows every note, flourishing aloof a chastening pencil when by accident or design the artist plays something that does not jibe with the printed page.

And they are not always diligent students, these hawk-eyed examples of the musical caviler. Sometimes they are from an entirely different walk in life. Perhaps the most perfect example of this vigilant species was the father of a certain famous violinist, whose intense worship of his son's great success made him at once the most ludicrous and delightful of characters in the musical world.

By a stroke of evil fortune this devoted parent fell in among a company who had just heard another noted fiddler and could talk of nothing but this artist's masterly interpretation, his exquisite tone, superb technic, and glowing rhythmic sense. Extravagant commendation, fervid praise, and eulogistic exclamations flew and beat about the ears of the suffering, jealous little old man until his face became the mottled purple of the apoplectic.

He squirmed and glared at the tactless offenders, sniffed and scowled, and generally registered acute mental distress. At last he managed to penetrate the haze of rapturous comment, and got the attention of the enthusiasts. Whereupon he leaned forward and took them into his confidence.

"Yes, yes," he said earnestly, "Kreisler is a great violinist, a master—such an artist—but this afternoon," he paused impressively before the bombshell, "he missed one note!"

But here we must leave them, this lovable crowd who clamor for the privilege of breaking their necks on the cruel, bitter climb to the artistic heights, and scorn with a vast contempt the easy, comfortable success that comes from merely jumping over an occasional obstructive musical broomstick.

For we dare not intrude into their precious working hours. We must not disturb that scowling youth who is up to his ears in ruined note paper and a set of variations on the whole tone scale. And we flee before the enduring, patient, and belabored piano of that earnest young woman who has her greedy eye on Fanny Bloomfield Zeisler's diadem.

So, filled with a vast, happy complacence at their glowing musical promise and their goodly number, we slip away unnoticed and leave them to their dreams—dreams that are born of flaming genius, ignorance, arrogance, spontaneous enthusiasms, and good rich talent, but, for all that, glorious, gossamer illusions that here and there among the musically chosen will fructify into solid success and artistic accomplishment.

Ruth Miller
BY HERSELF

A pen portrait of The Tribune's new music critic, from "Who's Who, and Why," in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

AT the resourceful age of 12, having been brought up for the most part under the stern supervision of a sweet old fashioned grandmother who had firm ideas about a woman's proper place, I gave every promise of becoming that charming type of womanly woman so prevalent and popular in the soporific primer fiction. Which means that I could do all manner of sleight of hand tricks with biscuit dough, had only to speak firmly to a piece of steak to have it quiver into tender, luscious, epicurean submission, and I knew just enough about music for that evanescent art to constitute in my life a miscalled accomplishment. But isn't it queer how so many brilliant promises sputter round awhile and then fizzle out? It's downright tragic. There is no use in dwelling upon the harrowing details of my particular blighted life, but suffice it to say that nowadays I go about anxiously, eagerly, and basely eavesdropping in the hope that I may hear some one call me feminine, but, though they call me many things, they never call me that.

RUTH MILLER.

Some time ago I got to thinking it over, and decided that perhaps it wasn't too late to mend my ways; that with diligent application I still might be able to make the class of the delightful feminine who can do all the domestic things with both hands tied—swim, skate, play a superb game of tennis and golf, and all the rest of it. But it proved to be a bit of fatuous, futile dreaming. When I tried to learn to swim I injured my ears temporarily so that I was deaf for two months. When I took to skating—well, if I ever want a nice, lively way of committing suicide, I'll know what to do. So it went through the whole list of accomplishments. The only thing I can do with any degree of skill is to walk, and I flatter myself that in pedestrianism I can give a brilliant performance. But I suppose some day I'll stub my toe, fall down, and break my neck, and put an end to even that harmless amusement.

The greater part of the time that I have not spent in brooding over my failure to qualify as the heroine of a best seller has been devoted to the musical profession. At one time or another I have dipped into music in all its phases. I have played—specifically, the violin; and I have taught—an eleven hour teaching day doing much to complete the wreck of what might have been, if it hadn't been for the blight that I mentioned before, an almost amiable disposition. I have even composed. At least I called it that, but some guardian angel kept me from flaunting my efforts abroad until one day a real composer who has his things published and played by the great symphony orchestras came into my studio and accidentally picked up an uncompleted sonata of mine for violin and piano. Not realizing that I was the perpetrator—at least I gave him the benefit of the doubt—he looked it over and proceeded to make some very free remarks about it. I said nothing at the time, but afterward, being a sensitive, shrinking soul, I took the fragment of that sonata out and buried it. So another immortal composition was lost to the world.

Any odd moments I have had to spare in my life have been devoted to writing, from the time when, at the erudite age of 8, house-bound with tonsilitis, I read "Little Women," decided that writing must be no trick at all and proceeded to write my first complete novel.

As a music student it pains me to admit that I was highly unoriginal. I did all the things that American music students have always done, even to the European study, which in my case consisted of spending 1912-13 in Berlin. If there is a remote possibility that any one might be interested in the details of that career, he may find them scattered here and there through my articles. But they have no place here. For the first time in my life I have been invited to discuss myself and been assured that people will not run the other way at my iteration of the personal pronoun which has always been my favorite verbal flower, and I am not going to pass up such a glowing opportunity in order to indulge in anything so prosaic as a résumé of my musical activities past or present.

At the present time of writing, after considerable cogitation, I can think of only two violent aversions: One is onions and the other is being accused of being a singer. The latter is an aversion principally because it reminds me painfully of one of my most conspicuous shortcomings. I do not sing. It is true that sometimes I do open my mouth and yelp a bit, but I do not sing. Ask any of my friends.

Aside from these two antipathies all the things that it has been my fortune to encounter in this life so far I have always found I could endure with considerable philosophy, even extracting a few grains of pleasure out of most of them.

In fact, though certain of my friends tell me that this is a smugly optimistic attitude that I should bend every effort to overcome, I have found on the whole that this world is a quite interesting place and the people in it, with the exception of course of the ones who don't agree with me, are extremely intelligent, charitable, and delightful beings.

MUSIC NOTES.

Enrico Caruso who is addicted to the seductive cigaret at any and all times, from between meals to between arias, and refuses to permit any one else to smoke around him for fear of possible injury to his voice, opens the season with a concert at Medinah Temple Sunday afternoon, Oct. 3 at 3:30. Tickets for this concert will be on sale at Kimball hall tomorrow at 9 a. m. Too, F. Wight Neumann announces that this will be Mr. Caruso's only appearance in Chicago this season.

Mrs. F. S. Coolidge's annual prize of $1,000 for a piece of chamber music will be awarded in 1921 to a trio for piano, violin, and violoncello. The submitted piece must be unpublished and unplayed in public. Particulars may be had from Hugo Kortschak at South Mountain, Pittsfield, Mass.

Aquaplaning Is Favorite Sport of Youth in East

By Mme. X.

DO YOU aquaplane? It is the choicest sport of the eastern seashore. The aquaplanist, clad in a bathing suit, stands erect on a narrow board holding on tight to a pair of guiding ropes, while a swift, darting motor boat tows the outfit at a rapid rate through the water. Big whiskers of foam stream out from either side of the rushing, swerving board. To hold on and maintain an upright position one must have the balance of the ancient Roman charioteer in the races they used to run in the old Colosseum.

It is fascinating to watch those young and slender forms silhouetted against the eager blue of the sea, arms taut, body, now erect, now bent almost U shape, hair blown back in the strong breeze generated by the flight through space. The sculptor of the discus thrower would be again inspired could he see the intimitably graceful poses of the average aquaplanist.

Anything that is swift and dangerous attracts the youth of the day. Hasn't it always been so? The only difference between this and other times is that science has invented and developed swifter and more dangerous things than the world ever knew before. In this way the balance of life and death is fairly maintained. Although medical science and modern sanitation have added security to existence in realms of the most advanced civilization, airplanes and automobiles claim their annual toll of death and mutilation, so that not yet can the mothers of the race say: "At last our sons and daughters are safe."

Memories of Sunny Hours.

It is the moment of the between seasons when the thoughtful are apt to pause and take stock; that is, to reckon what the summer has added to life and health and happiness, to memories and the knowledge which only comes by experience. It is the steam, the vitality which we gather in the gentle, blossoming months of the year which carries us through the winter's work. You can't imagine a twelvemonth without summer, though one without winter is much advertised by Californians.

One of the summer's high spots for the writer was touched at Marion, Mass. There, in a comfortable, oldish looking house on the edge of one of Buzzard bay's quietest inlets, live the numerous and lively Casserly family. Mr. and Mrs. John Casserly spent a winter, a few years ago, in Chicago on Bellevue place. Mrs. Casserly is a member of the well known Cudahy family here, being a sister of Joseph and Edward Cudahy, which is one more proof of the contention I often make that almost all the really interesting things and interesting people can usually be traced to, or, by some link or other, be connected with Chicago.

When the Casserlys were living here they had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Nikola Sokoloff, the former a most interesting and gifted young Russian musician. He is now the leader of the Cleveland symphony orchestra, which he helped found and which is a most flourishing institution. He and three of his orchestra are spending the summer at Marion, Mass.

Deep in the Woods.

Mrs. Casserly is not only an ardent lover of music, but is herself a fine pianist. When Sokoloff and his string quartet fill the groves of Marion with music, as they do from early morn to late moonset, she often accompanies them on the piano. Their temple of music is Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis' studio, set deep in the woods at the remote end of her mother's (Mrs. John Clark) place, next door to the Casserly grounds. The path to it is roofed over with high shrubs and low and fragrant pines and carpeted with thick moss. If you go there at night soft, moist leaves brush your cheek, while large gray moths hover about you and your lantern.

The studio is a lofty, barnlike place smelling of damp woods and ferns and immensely removed from any other spot in the world. Mrs. Casserly has furnished it with a grand piano, a big screen of glowing crimson as a background, a few wicker chairs (old enough to be extremely comfortable), and innumerable wax candles—as many as the most devout Italian chapel ever thought necessary to express piety.

There these delightful artists discourse sweetest music night after night and hour after hour. A few elite—a very few indeed—are allowed to come out of the shadows of the dewy grove and sit in the luminous outskirts of the room. Occasionally they applaud, but usually they receive the extremely artistic performances with that deep silence of utter satisfaction which is a finer tribute than any amount of noise. Sometimes the performers give some gay and rollicking piece which makes them and their audience laugh. To the real music lover it is the apotheosis of music, the place, the hour, the setting of thick trees all combining to make the perfect whole.

Troublous Times Over There.

Mrs. Wirt Dexter, a former Chicagoan of note, was frequently one of the audience. She and her daughter, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, have a large and attractive house at Marion on a point of land which sticks out into Buzzard's bay. The latter is abroad this summer, having taken a prominent part in the international suffrage convention at Geneva.

She is the only traveler in Europe whose personal experiences reflect to any degree the reported troublous times on the continent. She bought, some time ago, that exquisite place on Lake Como which every visitor there will remember, the Villa Balbaniello. For many years it has been a show place.

Laboring under the impression that peace was established, Mrs. McCormick thought that she would inspect her new possession, and so set forth for Italy, unmindful of or ignoring tales of Italian unrest. She returned to Switzerland in less than a week, having found food in northern Italy scarce and hard to get, while the natives in the district about her villa were at no pains to conceal their dislike of and antipathy to English speaking people.

It is hard to imagine those once friendly folk so changed that even our good American dollars can't win a smile from them. Shall we ever see again the Italy of our happiest memories? If not, I am sorry for those poor mortals born too late to know its old charm.

Land of Charming Inns.

Cape Cod is, or should be, famous for its delightful little inns, which are scattered all through its villages and along it winding highways. There's nothing just like them in any other neighborhood or summer country. This is probably because it's quite the thing for people of education and knowledge of the world to make a living running these sublimated roadhouses.

Perhaps the most famous one is the inn kept by the son and daughter-in-law of a famous American architect. No, I'm not going to tell where it is, because they have more people than they can handle now, and with that characteristic of New England of which we have spoken before, they do not wish to increase either their return or business.

The house is a little one built 150 years or so ago, and wit hall the quaint devices of that time; a cupboard bed, shutters that push into the walls, a huge crane in the ample fireplace to hold the pot, ancient ovens in the chimney, narrow, steep stairs leading up to tiny, low ceilinged bedrooms above. The wall papers and furnishings are of the same period as the house.

Tea is served in the garden on fine days, a garden of sloping lawns and enthusiastic flower beds. The place slopes down to one of these blue gems of lakes which make the cape seem like a moth eaten cloth laid over a bowl of bluing. Daily the smart folk of that part of the world gather there for luncheon, tea or dinner, for which the aristocratic proprietors make one "pay by the nose," as the French would say. But the community which gathers on the cape is on pleasure bent, and not hampered, as was John Gilpin, by a frugal mind.

London to Paris by Air.

Some of our Chicago friends are exploring new fields for excitement and sensation. Mrs. William Monroe received from her husband a cable a week or so ago announcing that he had flown from London to Paris, the term, flying, being a literal one. And now the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown of Lake Forest and Chicago are receiving postal cards from the Browns written at an altitude of 10,000 feet as they traveled by airplane from the British capital to the French one.

It is possible that in our lifetime the man in the street will smile and think our wondering comments on aviation as it is today quaint and even foolish, much as we should feel at the description of a motor trip between Chicago and Evanston of twenty years ago.

There are many who remember when the Arthur Farwells, the first to own and run an automobile in Lake Forest, were obliged by the village council to send a man ahead of them on a bicycle to ring a bell whenever they rode abroad in their large, lumbering car so as to enable the inhabitants to seek safety in their homes if they so desired. Some of their neighbors and friends did not hesitate to call them up on the telephone to tell them that they considered them, the Farwells, a menace to the lives and limbs of the residents of the town.

To fly to Paris has always been supposed to be the heart's desire of the normal American woman. Now she can see what it's like, as there is a daily airplane service with hours as precise as any railroad service. It is hard to understand why we as a people lag behind the rest of the world in developing this mode of travel. One would think that a daily passenger service between New York and Philadelphia or Boston would be feasible and popular.

In the Saddle.

The paper chases that were so popular last autumn are once more to the fore on the north shore. Yesterday inaugurated the season with Mrs. Austin Niblack leading the hunt instead of the usual leader, Joseph Ryerson, who is away on a fishing trip. One has to be a pretty good rider to follow these chases, as those who lay the trail vie with each other to make as stiff a route as possible "over brush, over brier, through flood, through fire," so that there's many a spill on the average chase.

Among the most enthusiastic riders are Mr. and Mrs. Prentise Coonley, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Minotto, Miss Mildred Fitzhugh, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, Mrs. Edward Hasler, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Miss Elizabeth Farwell, Dudley Rutter, William P. Nelson, Joseph Cudahy, Laurence Armour, Capt. Wurtsbaugh of the Naval station, and his daughter Miss Wurtsbaugh, Col. Johnston of Fort Sheridan, Byron Harvey, and last but by no means least Miss Janet Chase.

For some weeks there has been a Sunday afternoon riding club, under the leadership of Joseph Ryerson, who has sent out a fine set of rules for the use of the equestrians, directions as to opening and shutting gates, and what byways were suited for riders. He has also constructed interesting jumps for the expert and taken great pains to make riding along the north shore an interesting sport.

In time the enthusiasts hope to revive the hunts which a decade ago filled the autumn landscape with life, color, and music [to the hunter there's no sweeter music than the baying of hounds and the call of the hunter's horn.]

Starting next week, when Miss Caroline De Windt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heyliger A. De Windt, will be introduced to society, the debutantes will hold the center of the social stage until the Christmas holidays, when the sub-debs, home from school, will come in for their share of entertaining. Miss De Windt, who was graduated from Farmington last June, will make her debut at a reception Saturday afternoon at Ingleside, the De Windt residence in Winnetka. The spacious lawns that stretch from Sheridan road to the lake make an ideal setting for an outdoor affair, which the reception will be if the weather permits. After the reception there will be a dinner for about fifty young people, followed by dancing on the broad piazzas.

Miss Isabel Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins of 199 Lake Shore drive, who finished last year at Miss Williams' French school in New York, will wait and make her bow on Dec. 18 at a reception at the Blackstone. In the evening there will be a dinner for the debutantes and their escorts, followed by dancing.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

ing.—Yesterday, in Pittsfield, Mass., Miss Eleanor West, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. West of Chicago, was married to Perry Melville Shepard, also of Chicago.

The bride, through her mother, belongs to one of Chicago's oldest and most distinguished families, the Odgen family. Her greatuncle, William Butler Ogden, was the city's first mayor. Her grandparents, the Mahlon D. Ogdens, were prominent citizens all during their lives in Chicago and their house, which stood where now the Newberry library presides over the green square known as Washington park, was noted for its hospitality.

She herself did excellent work in the Y. M. C. A. in France during the last year of the war, and achieved the inevitable distinction of being blown up by a bomb the Boches had planted in a highroad and forgotten to remove after the armistice. Fortunately she escaped with minor injuries, though the shock was a nasty one. Mr. Shepard also did war work abroad, though theirs is not a war romance, as they had known each other before that.

Carpenter-Boyden Wedding.

Another marriage interesting to the lover of everything which connects the Chicago of today with the quite different city of yesterday, is that of Miss Mary Delafield Carpenter [better known as "Polly Carpenter"] to William Cooper Boyden, next Saturday, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, at the family's summer home at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Through her mother the bride is related to the well known Sturges family, her grandfather having been the late George Sturges, a prominent banker here in his time, while her father is a member of the equally well known Carpenter family which has flourished here for several generations. His brothers are Benjamin, Judge G. A., and John Carpenter.

Give us time, and Chicago will produce a set of ancestors as notable as anything her older sisters in the east have done.

The Most Sensational Floor and Table Lamp Sale Chicago Has Ever Seen Continues All Next Week

Hundreds of new floor lamps, table lamps, shades, etc., from the quarter million dollar stock of dealers' cancelled orders, have just been placed on our floors to fill in the vacant spots made during the tremendous selling of the week past.

Fourth Floor—North.

When troubles come, they come in bunches and this is conspicuously true in the floor and table lamp industry today. Not enough that the freight embargoes prevented the manufacturers from making shipments, which caused dealers from all over the country to cancel orders, the banks have refused to advance money to carry these stocks—Manufacturers are forced to turn this merchandise into cash in order to finance their business.

We have co-operated with one of the largest factories in the business and they have run their entire stock of cancellations on our Fourth Floor for quick sale.

Here Are a Few of the Bargains That Will Make Things Hum:

School Teachers—and Others

Vacation ends, school opens, we all settle back to work.

Do you realize how much your energy, your efficiency, depend on correct footwear? Aching feet dull your faculties, waste nerve force that you need for your work.

Cantilever Shoes are comfortable and good-looking, a combination that makes them the shoes for work or play. If you are much on your feet, their easy support will save your strength.

Modern doctors and other authorities have investigated the subject of footwear and recommend a shoe that has ample toe-room, a natural inner sole line, a flexible shank.

Cantilever shoes fulfill these requirements.

Major H. H. Burdett, physical trainer in army camps and colleges, states that "fallen arches are caused mainly by ill-constructed, stiff and unpliable boots; fallen arches do not occur if the feet can function freely and properly."

The flexible shank of Cantilever Shoes allows such freedom to the muscles that they grow strong from exercise.

Because the tongue is padded, you may, without binding the instep, pull the laces snug and make the shoe hug the arch firmly and restfully.

A graceful boot in black kid, brown kid, brown calf or white canvas.

Try a pair this week. Widths from AAAAA to EE. Write for booklet.

THE FAIR

The Dream That Came True

Year in year out she had toiled with increasing weariness—a slave to the broom, the wash-board, the iron and the ever recurring stack of dishes to be washed. Some days in summer the iceman failed to come and the food spoiled. In winter often times there was not sufficient hot water. She never enjoyed real leisure—sheer exhaustion capped most of her days. But she dreamed of a time when things should be otherwise, and now, with her work touched by the wand of that fairy god-mother, Science, her dream has come true.

No. 1—The Chillo Electric Refrigerating plant saves her food

Producing a dry cold, with no moisture. This dry cold air keeps sweet and does not carry odors. No bother with ice, and she has a refrigerating plant good all the year 'round.

No. 2—The Blakeslee Dishwasher washes her dishes

All she has to do is to scrape the dishes, place them in wire racks and baskets, put in the soap and add hot water, and the heat of the steam thoroughly sterilizes and dries the dishes.

No. 3—The Hoover does her sweeping

Detaching by the thorough sweeping all surface dirt and dislodging by its gentle beating all the destructive embedded grit, and by its suction-cleaning drawing out the loosened dirt.

No. 4—The Ruud Water Heater heats water for her

For the laundry and dishwashing, for the bathroom, abundant hot water is instantly available—clear, fresh water, never stagnant or germ laden, as often is the case with the range boilers.

No. 5—The Simplex Ironer does her ironing

Irons everything except the fancy shirt waists and more elaborate dresses. Now she doesn't have to stand for hours—just an hour of pleasant work finishes her ironing.

No. 6—The 1900 Cataract Washer does her laundry work

Back and forth the washer oscillates, sending the hot suds over, under and through the clothes, removing every trace of dirt and leaving every thread intact.

The Fair has selected these particular household aids as the special makes which are superior in every respect, and takes pleasure in demonstrating for you the many points which contribute to this same superiority.

A small payment down puts any of these in your home.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Churches Plan to Give Pastors Salary Increase

By Charles H. Gabriel Jr.

THAT more than one-half the clergymen of the United States receive salaries less than the minimum subsistence of the ordinary workman's family is the conclusion reached in a report on a survey made by the Methodist centenary movement recently and given out last week. The report shows that less than 1 per cent of American ministers were required to pay any income tax last year.

The report, made under the direction of Dr. Joseph B. Hingeley, Chicago corresponding secretary of the board of conference claimants, reveals that in sixteen denominations 4,829 ministers received less than $500 a year; 14,— others received between $500 and $1,000, and 12,873 drew salaries between $1,000 and $1,500.

Averages of salary lists compiled for seven denominations are as follows:

Episcopalian	$1,342
Presbyterian [North]	1,177
United Presbyterians	1,096
Reformed Church [Dutch]	1,170
Methodist Episcopal [North]	1,176
Congregational	1,042
Baptist [Northern]	950

Plans for salary increases have been undertaken by several denominations. The Congregationalists have started a movement to pay ministers more; the United Presbyterians require $1,800 for an ordained minister and family; the northern Methodists have recommended salary increases, and the Disciples of Christ have worked out a percentage increase on various salaries now received.

Pension plans are being vigorously pursued to provide for the old age of the poorly paid ministers. The number of such pastors who may become eligible for pensions in seventeen reporting denominations is 73,703. Of the 13,545 beneficiaries reported from 60 per cent of the Protestant churches, 577 now receive $500 a year, 7,924 less than $200 a year, and 4,119 have $100 a year from the church to live on.

Some communities and districts have taken independent steps to remedy the situation; notably, Nebraska Presbyterians, who have added to their pastors' yearly salaries an average of $400. This general raise has resulted in Nebraska ministers receiving an average salary of $2,600 without a manse and $1,700 with a manse. There are 179 Presbyterian ministers in the Nebraska synod, overseeing 213 churches.

THE REV. JOSEPH B. HINGELEY

The Rev. Joseph B. Hingeley, corresponding secretary of the board of conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church, has just completed a survey of the Protestant clergy of the United States in an effort to further his ambition to provide more substantially for the old age of preachers. He has been an ardent worker for more pay for pastors for many years and has attracted nation-wide attention by his advocacy.

"Most ministers pay more to preach than the laymen pay to hear him," Dr. Hingeley maintains. "The churchgoer pays no more for hearing the gospel than did his father and his grandfather. It brings tears to one's eyes to hear old, white-haired veterans in His service have actually to beg for the $200 or $300 they are allowed per year from the churches. It is shameful, and not justice or right."

The federal council of churches has issued a recommendation to Protestant pastors throughout the United States to preach a temperance sermon today. The day has been set aside as World Temperance Sunday, as a prelude to the fifteenth international congress against alcoholism, which opens in Washington, D. C., Tuesday morning, continuing until Sept. 26.

This year's congress is the first to be convened since that held in Milan, Italy, in 1913, and is a postponed meeting from 1915. The congress will be the first to be held in a country where prohibition is law-enforced. Special studies will be made of the effect of prohibition in the United States and the relation of the war to alcoholism.

Since the meeting is under the official auspices of the government, invitations have been issued to every country maintaining diplomatic relations, and to date thirty-one have notified of their acceptance. One probable result of the conference will be the establishment of a world student anti-alcohol organization.

So great has been the emigration of United States citizens to Canada that the Baptist Union of Western Canada has asked the American Baptist churches to notify it of the removal of members of their congregations to Canada, the avowed purpose being to "conserve the Baptist strength."

The average minister is beginning to find more men attending his services, according to statistics on church membership made public last week. Latest figures indicate that nearly one-half the average congregation is made up of men and boys—41 per cent, to be exact.

Of the total population of the United States, practically 42,000,000 persons are church members, an increase of 6,860,000 in the last ten years. There are 227,000 churches, an increase of 15,000.

As to denomination, Roman Catholics number 15,721,815 (15 per cent are infants and children), the greatest reported total, while the Universalists have 59,000 members and the Unitarians 82,000.

A unique service will be held in the All Saints' Episcopal church, Ravenswood, this morning when a mortgage on the property, in force for several years, will be burned on the pulpit by the pastor, the Rev. Richard Rowley. A special service of praise and thanksgiving will be held to celebrate the payment of the loan.

The Bethlehem Lutheran church, 10310 Avenue H, South Chicago, dedicates its new $80,000 church today. Three services will be held; the pastor, the Rev. Adolph Thieme, performing the official ceremonies. The former church, on the same site, was totally destroyed by fire in 1918. The congregation is 48 years old and numbers 1,000 members.

THE GREATEST VALUES IN CHICAGO

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

LINES BY AN ALUMNUS OF THE CHICAGO LYING-IN HOSPITAL.

(With Apologies to Thomas Hood.)

I remember, I remember, the house where I was born,
And how they used to powder me so early every morn,
They put us all in baskets and they lined us up in rows,
And how they'd ever sort us out is something no one knows;
And brand new fathers pranced around—how soon I learned to sight 'em—
And gurgled "Ipkis, Ickie," and I had no teeth to bite 'em.

I remember, I remember, how they'd poke me in the chest,
And lathered me and pinned me 'till I never got a rest,
And then a guy with whiskers, who they said was Doc De Lee,
Would look as if he didn't think so very much of me;
And Doctor Horner'd say: "That's mine, just listen to him squall,"
And then he'd swell all up with pride—as if he'd done it all.

I remember, I remember, when first I saw my dad,
I wonder if he re'lized what a funny face he had,
I started in a-laughing, but I sorter lost my vim,
When mother said she kinda thought I looked a lot like him;
I remember mother told him she had ether when so ill,
And he said he hoped they had some left—he'd like some with the bill.

O yes, I well remember the house where I was born,
Each time an auto rattled by the driver honked the horn,
And then one day they took me out all bundled up in clothes,
Until you couldn't see a thing except my little nose;
And all the nurses kissed me and I thought 'twas such a bore—
Alas! How young and foolish—they don't kiss me any more.

The New Monterey Hotel Apartments CHICAGO

40% Rent Saving Approved

Chicago's First "Own-Your-Own" Hotel Apartment Wins Favor With High Class Tenants

THE response to our announcement of last Sunday that co-owners of the New Monterey Hotel Apartments would save 40% of their annual rent was instant and gratifying. Many interested visitors called at the building last Sunday and made application for these beautifully furnished two and three room apartments in Chicago's newest and finest hotel-apartment, in the North Side's most exclusive and fashionable district. Executives of railways, financial and industrial institutions are among those who made selections of units in this building. You, too, may benefit by our plan—may own outright your apartment in this fine building—may cut your rent nearly one-half—may have desirable, worth-while neighbors. But you must act QUICK. Inspect the Monterey today—note the elaborate furnishings—the fine construction and elegant finish of these apartments. Then make your selection and enter your application. Do this today without fail.

Read these facts about this new plan—

The Monterey is located at the northwest corner of Clarendon Avenue and Junior Terrace, close to good transportation and within walking distance of the Wilson Avenue business district and only one block from the lake.

Our proposition is simple, and can be handled as easily as the purchase of a residence. Selling price of each unit is based solely upon a reasonable return on the investment. All titles to the property and to individual apartments will be guaranteed by the Chicago Title & Trust Co. You take title after making but three very reasonable annual payments, at a saving of over 40% over the annual rental of your apartment, for the same period.

Tenants may sublet or sell only to those approved by syndicate committee in charge of operations.

The Monterey is an "ideal" for a building of this type—contains but 59 two and three room apartments, affording the same efficiency as any four and five room apartments.

Every conceivable convenience and built-in feature has been provided in the most careful and up-to-date manner. The construction, decorations and furnishings all are in the hands of experts who have spared neither time nor expense to make this a home of character, luxury and convenience. The Monterey offers all the comforts and conveniences of a completely equipped home—minus the worries and care of the servant and other problems. The service will be the same as in any first class club or hotel. Our entire project is one which must be thoroughly investigated before it can be fully appreciated.

Building will be completed and ready for occupancy Oct. 1, 1920. Applications for apartments in the Monterey will be received and passed on the same as in any first class club, but can only finally be accepted by the committee composed of syndicate participants. Call at building or at our office and secure complete data on new and simple idea. Applications will be handled in the order of their receipt and acceptance. Promptness is the best guarantee of your being one of the fortunate co-owners of this building. ACT NOW.

The LONG HORN Triumphs Over All

HUNDREDS of years before the first phonograph was built the advantage of the long horn in the production of tone quality was recognized by makers of musical instruments.

The long horn amplifies the sound waves and purifies and mellows the tone. Thus, long horn instruments produce the most pleasing music.

The long horn is a real achievement in phonograph construction. All mechanical vibration and all record noises are eliminated through the long travel of sound waves. The result is a refined tone which possesses all the beauty of the original productions.

An Exclusive Feature

The long horn is a patented feature of the Puritan. No other phonograph has it. Thus, by all means, hear the Puritan before choosing your phonograph. The Puritan is completely built in the Puritan factories and every part is guaranteed. Puritan Records are also entirely a Puritan product.

Go to one of the Puritan stores for a demonstration. See what an improvement in tone results from the long horn in playing Puritan and all other makes of records.

Dealers: The Puritan proposition is unusually attractive. Write for it.

The Franklin Sedan averages 12,500 miles per set of tires and 20 miles per gallon of gasoline. Carries no water to freeze or boil. Has weather-proof starting devices.

Some are justly laughed at for keeping their money foolishly; others for spending it idly. He is the least wise that lays it out in a purchase of repentance.
—Benj. Franklin.

Look Ahead To This When You Select Your Sedan

Franklin Revels In Winter Weather

BUYING a car these days ought to be a matter of careful calculation. Wise men are past the point where they pick a car for its appeal to their sporting instincts, just to have a fling.

Such men are turning more and more to the Franklin—especially to the Sedan. Because, of all sedans, the Franklin gives in better measure what you are looking for—uninterrupted, care-free service.

Look ahead to the picture shown above. Two or three months from now the car you buy today will either be a worry or a comfort under such circumstances.

Which Kind of "Convenience" is Yours?

Either you will have to put a blanket over it, run the motor every hour, look carefully after your alcohol radiator mixture and otherwise pet your supposed convenience—or you can let it stand there as long as you want to, over night if it is more comfortable, sure that it will start reliably and not be harmed.

We don't need to tell you which is the picture of service you will get from the Franklin. You know it is air-cooled, can not freeze or boil, and runs reliably in St. Paul at 20° below zero and in California deserts at 110° in the shade.

Just why you should select any other car—especially in a Sedan model, which is bought for year round service—it is difficult to figure out.

Ever Try Franklin Comfort?

The Franklin Sedan is not only weather-proof, it is the most comfortable car you ever rode in. It will take the average country road at 35 or 40 miles an hour with less fuss about it than you believe possible for any car.

It has a very large proportion of its weight above the springs and rides all the time like the average car does when filled with passengers. This is a principle of Franklin engineering not found in any other automobile.

Then, too, the Franklin is remarkably free from tire trouble. It is equipped with oversize cord tires—extra large for the weight of the car.

This helps in easy riding, reduces liability to punctures and gives Franklin owners an average of 12,500 miles on tires. This is not a "claim." It is the experience of Franklin owners reported to the factory for the last 12 months.

Economy Is Fashionable

Franklin gasoline economy still astonishes the world. Franklin owners are practically the only ones who believe it. But you will have a hard time finding a Franklin owner who gets less than 20 miles to the gallon even with a Sedan. Careful drivers are doing better than 25 miles with the Franklin.

This again is not what we want you to believe on our say so. It is the average secured by Franklin owners which they have reported to the factory. It amounts to quite a comfortable saving in a year. Every penny increase in the price of gasoline pays the Franklin owner interest on a good size Liberty Bond.

Give your car a gasoline test. Know for a fact what you are getting. Then come down and try the easy riding and handling of the economical Franklin.

Franklin Leadership a Fact

You will discover that all these special hot devices which other car makers talk so much about have been on the Franklin for many years. Also that there are several good features in the Franklin that other car makers have not got around to yet.

If you have had your fling with your first car, you know what an automobile is mostly good for—comfort and convenience. All the trips you can take in a year do not compare in importance with the daily comfort and convenience of a reliable care-free car. So why not own the car that gives you the most of what you really want at the lowest cost per mile and per year? That car is the Franklin—most comfortable on trips and most reliable in year 'round service.

WISCONSIN REAPS BUMPER HARVEST FROM GOOD ROADS PLANTING

Highway Expenses Remitted in Real Economic Budget

Work on Natural Roads Feature of Great System

BY J. L. JENKINS.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's good roads save its 290,000 motor vehicle owners 1 cent a mile in operation costs each year. The state's economic taximeter ticks off a total saving of more than $10,000,000 annually, according to conservative estimates. In ten years the actual saving will more than pay for the building of its entire highway trunk system, while the millions in revenue scattered over the state by happy tourists, slashing reductions in transportation costs, and advanced methods in every phase of commerce continue to roll in to swell the communal good roads "velvet."

It's easy nowadays for the veteran road masters of Badgerdom to talk highway improvement. Their proof is so conveniently distributed over some 56,000 square miles of territory. To demonstrate the truth of highway improvement theories that are still in the discussion stage at other points in the middle west, they simply pick a county at random, produce remarkably low figures to show how easy and cheap it is to make perfect roads with gravel, grader, and systematic maintenance patrol, and then subtract the cost from the actual increased revenue due entirely to road building. The difference in each instance makes a neat balance in money, good will, and happiness.

A brief survey of the highway situation shows: 77,000 miles of road in the state; 7,500 miles in the improved state trunk system, all perfectly marked by the state numbering plan; 5,000 miles in the improved county trunk system, marked locally and due for complete identification under a new county lettering system; 8,500 miles of fair to good natural roads in the prospective state system to be improved by state aid.

It also shows hundreds of bustling, contented towns and villages, fully awakened and abreast of the times as the result of splendid roads; thousands of farms brought into direct touch with the good things of life and transformed from weather bound desolations to paying business enterprises, by busy high roads, motor trucks, and modern machinery; a state highway organization entirely divorced from politics and years ahead of its neighbors in efficiency and existing results.

Long ago, Wisconsin determined to drag herself from the mud ahead of other states in the west and northwest. Her engineers dreamed hard surfaced roads. They still do, but the dream does not deter them from the practical business of immediate improvement.

They began by establishing a nonpolitical highway commission operated on a modern, business basis and by starting highway revenue into the treasury through three channels, federal, state, and county. State roads are now maintained through funds coming from motor vehicle fees. All federal aid funds, added to by equal amounts from state and counties, are expended for construction work on the system. One-half of the state aid money, with its accompanying multiples of county and local money, is expended on the system.

A total of $2,000,000 is now annually available for maintenance of the state trunk system and $6,000,000 for its construction.

County trunk systems, as important in their way as state roads, are maintained by the counties out of a portion of the license fees returned to them and by additional sums derived from taxation.

"We are still far from the complete reconstruction and adequate surfacing planned for the state trunk system," admitted A. R. Hirst, state highway engineer, an acknowledged leader among good roads authorities in the west, "but we are out of the mud, and safe for motor transportation anywhere. Until the hard surfacing is complete, a matter of several years to come under the present financing system, all federal aid expenditures and state and county allowances, including bond issue proceeds, are going to improve places in the trunk system not heretofore adequately improved.

"We are relocating lines, cutting down grades, eliminating bad railroad crossings, and wiping out every bad stretch on the state roads where at times travel is halted. Our gravel and stone roads and our natural dirt roads are bearing the traffic well while waiting for hard surfaces because of the constant work done on them by patrolmen who are individually responsible for their stretch of from ten to twenty miles. Our program calls for the completion of about ninety miles of new concrete this year. Some of it will have to hang over to next year because of bad building conditions.

"We have already made it possible, however, for our people and our visitors to travel with reasonable comfort and convenience between any two points in Wisconsin from May 1 until winter brings heavy snows. There are still bad places on Wisconsin roads, but there are no impassable places on any state or county trunk lines."

The World's Worst Road

You're been over it. Unburden yourself by addressing "World's Worst Road," The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Give the exact location of the stretch you struck. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published.

Welcome Home!

THE world's worst road? That's easy. You don't have to leave the limits of our own city of Chicago to find the worst spring breaking, nerve racking, temper destroying excuse for an automobile highway in the world today. I firmly believe that, exclusive of prohibition, it is the most prolific cause of the breaking of the third commandment in Chicago.

The road to which I refer is that stretch of One Hundred and Nineteenth street between Western avenue and Longwood drive, which all motorists entering Chicago from the east and south have been compelled to use as a detour while Western avenue was being repaired. Western avenue has been closed for three months, practically all summer.

I have just completed a 1,000 mile tour of the east, and I did not find during the entire trip one stretch of road, detour, or main highway which could even be compared for downright roughness to One Hundred and Nineteenth street. If you don't believe me, try it.

R. L. W.

Dixie Delights.

On Aug. 4 I started from Chicago with a party of four to try to make Mobile, Ala., and was assured the roads were all passable and good via Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Meridan, and New Orleans.

We only got to Macon, Miss., where my car broke down and the rest of the party went on by rail, leaving me to get the car repaired and drive it back alone, which I did via Birmingham, Decatur, Huntsville, Shelbyville and Nashville.

I read with interest of D. E. B.'s trip and, believe me, he was in luck. If he really wants some of the "World's Worst Roads" and lots of them, he should have tried the so-called Jackson highway route via New Orleans straight north to Nashville.

He ought to try Mr. Detour from Vernon, Ala., to Columbus, Miss.

We got off the right road three times because there were no signs to guide us, and had to go back "four" miles each time to get on the right road.

But this piece of bad road was only a small part of the bad roads via this route. If D. E. B. wants some more bad roads let him try to go from Russellville to Hackleburg, Ala., in rainy weather; also Scottsville to Glasgow, Ky., and Franklin to Columbia, Tenn. Needless to say, I'm off the "Way Down in the Sunny South" in a car for life.

Fineness Proved by Service

A year ago, when the National Sextet was first offered for public approval, we rated it the finest car that had ever left the National shops.

Today, with the Sextet entering upon its second year of service, we have a most substantial gauge of its excellence—the unfailingly efficient performance the car has given to thousands of owners.

The Sextet, in twelve months of service, has exceeded even our expectations. It has stood up under punishment as no other National ever has. It has shown sustained speeds that surpass the best efforts of former Nationals, champions of the road and speedway though they were.

The National Sextet is still a new car, new in its advanced design, new in the grace and road-hugging lowness of its custom-styled body.

But it is, as well, a car of established merit. It has proved equal to any task you may ask of it.

Chicago Highway Leads Country in Traffic Tonnage

One Graphic Illustration of Uncle Sam's Motor Age

If would require eighty-six freight cars three days to transport the materials and supplies carried over the Chicago-Hammond-Gary highway by motor trucks in one day. At least fifty additional freight cars would be needed to transport new passenger automobiles being driven over this highway from the factories.

These figures represent an average day and were complied by the travel and transport bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company after its twenty-four hour traffic census taken at a station on the highway near the Indiana state line.

The census shows this road to be one of the most intensely traveled highways in the country. The observers, who have just completed similar checks on exceptional "heavy duty" highways near Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and other centers, say the passenger car traffic was twice as heavy as over any previously checked inter-city highway.

There were 1,079 trucks of all classes recorded by the observers, of which 40 per cent, or 437, were empty. This empty truck percentage is slightly higher than that shown at other centers and is caused by an exceptional number of privately owned trucks rather than public haulage trucks which benefit by the return loads factor. The empty trucks represented a carrying capacity of 1,316 tons, and if loaded would release railroad freight cars for other duty at the rate of 15,300 cars per year.

The Goodrich figures point out an average of three passenger automobiles and one motor truck per minute passed the observing station. During the peak hour eight passenger cars per minute was the average.

The survey graphically illustrates the rôle of the motor vehicle in relieving railroad terminal congestion and the growing use of the motor truck in short haul traffic.

Highway transportation engineers say motor haulage is in its infancy and in estimating growth declare that the roadway between Chicago and Gary is strong and wide enough to bear five times its present traffic before the congestion point is reached. When this state is reached this one bit of highway will release 150,000 freight cars annually.

Tribune Tours

XVII.—FALL ROUTE TO NEW YORK

AN alluring thousand mile stretch away east and south to Gotham. Hundreds of tourists are turning that way, and additional hundreds will join the great fall pilgrimage as autumn comes on and the homing vacationers come down with the first migrating birds from the north.

It happens that the one and only eastern option from Chicago worth traveling now is also by far the most interesting both from scenic and historic points of view. It drops down from Chicago, following the Adeway to Goodland, Ind., and the better roads through Attica, Crawfordsville, and Lebanon to Indianapolis where it heads into the famous old national road, and turns directly east to traverse the heart of Uncle Sam's oldest and finest civilization, with hard surfaced and well marked highways all the way.

From Indianapolis the red, white, and blue markers of the national road lead due east over country pavements and level land to Dayton, picking up asphalt and macadam roads, somewhat worn in places, to Columbus through Springfield. Pavements take the tourist on through rich farming country to Zanesville before striking the hills to Wheeling, W. Va. Macadam leads on through the higher hills to Uniontown, Pa., where the old road has found the finest scenery in the east to border its paved right of way through the Allegheny mountains to Cumberland and Hagerstown.

At Hagerstown, N. Y., travelers leave the national road to follow the main pike over the Blue Ridge mountains into Gettysburg by way of Waynesboro and Fairfield. The Lincoln highway is used from Gettysburg all the way into New York.

If you're going to Baltimore, keep on the national road to your destination from Hagerstown. The Washington-Harrisburg route, black and white markings, lead to Washington, D. C., from Hagerstown. To reach Atlantic City, leave the Lincoln highway at Philadelphia and use the White Horse trail to the southeast.

Chicago Scout Blazing Trail to California

CHARLES P. ROOT, veteran road driver and lately director of the Elgin road race, pointed the nose of his pathfinder westward last week determined to blaze a new trail over the best modern roads between Chicago and Los Angeles.

His log will be returned to the Chicago Motor club together with all touring data and lists of hotels and garages and will be used by the club's road marking crew, which will trail the scout car marking the entire 2,800 miles of the route.

The tentative transcontinental trail, which follows several of the main trails at various points on the trip, is expected to lead through: Aurora, Sandwich, Somonauk, Ottawa, La Salle, Peru, Princeton, Geneseo, Moline, and Rock Island, Ill.; Davenport, Iowa City, Marengo, Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, Ia.; Omaha, Lincoln, Hastings, and McCook, Neb.; Sterling, Fort Morgan, Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Trinidad, and Los Animas, Colo.; Santa Fé, Albuquerque, Socorro, and Magdalena, N. M.; Springerville, Flagstaff, Williams, Ashfork, and Kingman, Ariz.; Needles, Barstow, San Barnardino, Pasadena, and Los Angeles, Cal.

In these times, between tacks and tax, the poor tire is sure to go stuck no matter what happens.—American Motorist.

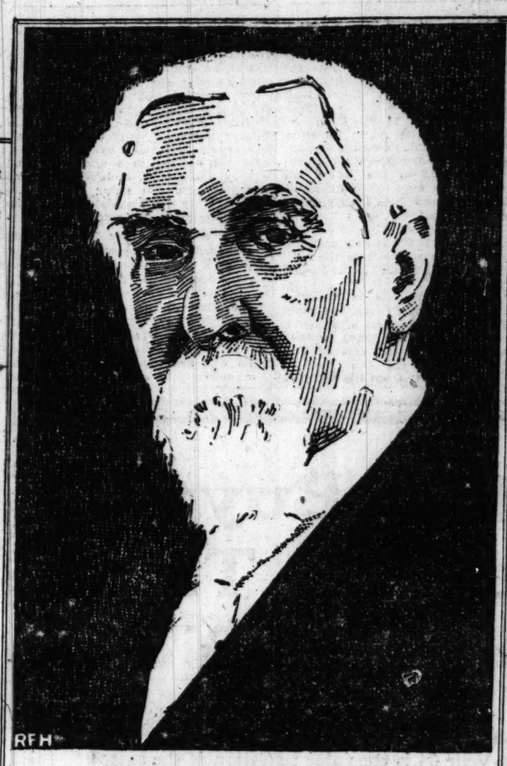
Henry M. Leland's own Story of the new Leland-built Lincoln Car



Henry M. Leland
President Lincoln Motor Co.

AFTER the armistice was signed and the Lincoln Motor Co. was completing its contracts with the government for the production of Liberty Aircraft Motors, we called a conference of our engineering force. The principal members of this force are the same men who have been among the leaders in the development of Leland-built cars during the past twenty years.

We have always been strong advocates of the conference idea. Nothing of vital importance, particularly to car owners, is left to the judgment of one man, no matter how competent he may be.

"Boys" I said—I still call them boys because most of them were not much more than that when they first came with us some 20 years or more ago. "Boys, you have been telling us of your ideas and we are ready for you to go ahead with them.

"You know our ideas as to quality, ruggedness and stability. You have an opportunity now such as you have never had before, to make a thoroughly roadable car, a car that will not only go anywhere but that will go there with ease to the driver and with comfort to the passengers; a car with which it will not be so necessary to pick out only the good roads, a car that will enable people to travel unfrequented highways and to go places they have not been able comfortably to go heretofore.

"Do the job as you have always been accustomed to doing, only do it better. After the experimental cars are finished, we want to figure on at least a year to prove them out, so as to leave no shortcoming for the car owner to discover."

In about six months they had designed several different types and had actually constructed two different types. They were both truly wonderful cars, but we adopted the better of the two. Four engines were built; three of them were installed in chasses and the fourth was assigned for testing on the dynamometer. That was about a year ago.

Then followed the refining process and ferreting out deficiencies. The cars have been subjected to the most severe and the most practical punishment we could prescribe and have successfully withstood endurance tests equal to about five year's service in the hands of the average user.

I believe motorists will agree that the ideal car should possess primarily, six important virtues—good appearance, trustworthiness, long-life, power, economy and comfort. The order of their importance is largely a matter of individual opinion.

Appearance and Stability

In appearance, the cars are substantial, well-proportioned and graceful. There is nothing extreme or overdone in any of the eight body types—just thoroughly dignified; they are cars such as the best citizens, persons of good judgment and refined taste will be proud to own. Their beauty is a type dictated, not by passing fancy, but by a desire for permanent attractiveness. The cars are replete with those many little conveniences which contribute so much to real pleasure and enjoyment.

Those who are familiar with the accomplishments of our engineers and designers—men who have supervised the building of more than 100,000 quality motor cars—know the unusual reputation of those cars for trustworthiness, stability and long life.

These engineers and designers are still working upon the same principles, but with the added advantages of greater resources than ever before, greater precision in manufacture and more suitable metal alloys than heretofore employed.

This in itself would make it reasonable to expect that the new car will possess elements of marked stability—elements which in themselves mean true economy over a period of years. And there is the added assurance that comes from the long proving-out period through which the car has been evolved.

The Engine

Our new engine, which embodies a number of unique and distinctive features, but which cannot well be treated in detail here, I regard as the most efficient piece of motor car mechanism I have ever seen. Its piston displacement is 357.8 cubic inches. Its power seems almost limitless; I can hardly conceive of any call to which this engine will not respond.

The wheelbase is 130″ except of the Limousine and Town Cars of which it is 136″. The tires are 33″ x 5″ cords.

Comfort and Performance

In this day of fine cars, it is not easy to imagine a more enchanting way of abridging distance, but let me cite my own experience:—

Our engineers and experimental drivers had been telling us what an unusual car they had; but frankly, I was a little inclined to discount their enthusiasm.

However, I had occasion to go to Defiance, Ohio, some 125 miles from Detroit—according to the Blue Book. I thought here would be a good opportunity to see for myself just what the car was. There were five of us. The top was up.

We were on a fine stretch with no other vehicles or cross-roads in sight, bowling along serenely at about 40 miles per hour—so I judged.

I am constitutionally opposed to speeding, but my interest and curiosity, I suppose it was, got the better of me.

"Step on it and let's see what she can do," I said to Harry, the driver.

"She's doing her best now," he answered.

Doing her best at 40! I was keenly disappointed. My hopes were fast fading when Fred who sat beside the driver called back;—

"Why she's hitting 76 Mr. Leland" and laughingly, "You know this isn't an airplane with a Lincoln Liberty motor."

Perhaps I should have known better had I observed how swiftly the scenery was passing.

My hopes rose. There that car was running just as sweetly and with as little fuss and vibration and with as little apparent effort at 76 as it did at 30—and there was none you could notice at 30.

Periodic vibration, which is something that engineers have tried for years to overcome, was at last absolutely unapparent to me, at any speed. There seemed to be an unusual harmonizing of the various functions. And the car was so steady; it seemed to hold the road as if it were in a groove.

I might add in passing that this elimination of the vibration period was not an accidental accomplishment. On the contrary, it was achieved only after much research, experimentation and money outlay.

Elimination of engine vibration, practically to the zero point, is without question a great stride toward prolonging the life not only of the engine itself but of the entire car.

As I said before, I am opposed to speeding, but when a car is made to possess the many other essentials to a real performer—power, acceleration, facile control, etc., speed is a natural consequence. You might call it a by-product, the use of which is entirely at the option of the driver.

A little further on the trip, we came to another stretch; it was pretty rough; several miles of what you might call de-macadamized road. It was a stretch that ordinarily you would not want to take faster than at about 15 miles per hour; but at 41 we were not uncomfortable. The sensation was more like sailing in a yacht as compared to a canoe on a choppy surface.

There was a most agreeable absence of sidesway and violent bouncing—no tendency to throw the passengers up and about.

From a standstill, the car seemed to get away with the grace and ease, but with the swiftness of a thrush, rather than with the flutter of a partridge.

I believe I have ridden in or on almost every kind of conveyance, from the ox-cart to the airplane, but even with all my fond hopes and anticipations, never did I expect to ride in anything which comes so near to what I imagine would be the sensation of flying through space without mechanical means.

The prices are based upon the highest class of materials and workmanship, and upon scientific and economical manufacturing methods, made possible by tremendous preparation in labor-saving machinery, tools and devices—plus knowing how to use them.

While these involve a vast initial expenditure of time and capital, they lend themselves to minimum production cost in large volume. There will be a legitimate margin of profit—no more. There will be nothing added just because we anticipate that motordom will recognize a superior car, nor because we anticipate that the car will afford a degree of satisfaction and comfort heretofore unknown.

I have tried not to be over-enthusiastic, but the car really is such an innovation that it is not easy to exercise restraint, and I feel confident that your own observations of the car and its performance will abundantly confirm my own impressions.

MOTORDOM

Remove the Play to Stop Bucking at Slow Speeds

Many Small Adjustments Needed to Insure Smoothness

BY HIGH SPEED.

DURING the last few weeks the writer has received a great number of inquiries in which owners complain that the car bucks or jerks at low speeds. This condition is not only uncomfortable for the passengers but it is detrimental to the car. The ordinary garage mechanic—I mean the "gyp" sort—usually cannot make a proper diagnosis, and he cures the trouble only after he has taken the car half apart. If your car bucks, and you cannot determine the cause after reading this article, have a competent service man drive the car.

A car in perfect mechanical condition throughout will throttle down to five or four or even three miles an hour and pull evenly, but if there be misfiring and immediately the whole car starts to jerk. The misfiring so reduces the power of the engine and produces such lapse in the power impulses that the car must naturally run with a jerky motion. This applies to all cars, whether new or old. When-ever the engine cannot develop enough power to pull its load it falters just as a horse will tighten and then permit slack in the traces. You would do the same thing if you were dragging a heavy load. A carbonized engine cannot develop full power with a given throttle setting. Poor ignition, poor carburetion, improper valve timing, or any abnormal engine condition is likely to reduce the power and make the engine falter. It might even stall.

Set apart from the engine there are other causes of this common trouble, but the commonest is due to too much play between the driving pinion and the large bevel gear or ring gear in the axle. It may, however, be due to excessive play anywhere in the driving system from the clutch to the rear wheels.

When the engine is under load and pulling, all the parts that move are tight. This includes engine parts—clutch, transmission, axle. They tighten like the traces tighten when a horse starts to pull and continues to pull. So long as this pulling continues there will be no noise, because the parts are tight against each other. If they were not they could not pull. In a car that bucks due to excessive play in the driving system the same effect practically may be had by slowing down and suddenly accelerating. This may be done by closing the throttle suddenly at twenty miles an hour and then suddenly opening it again.

At low speeds, however, it does not require a great amount of extra play to cause a knock and the objectionable bucking. A clutch that has a worn plate and weak springs will slap against the flywheel and give the bucking effect. A worn clutch shaft or worn clutch bearing would cause it.

In the transmission the main shaft must not move back and forth, for if it does it will cause a knock, though it may not cause bucking, due to the fact tha the movement is not transmitted to the other parts.

Universal joints with worn sliding members or worn bushings on the spiders will cause bucking. If the sliding shaft is not worn play elsewhere in the joint may be taken up and not no-good except as an occasional knock.

In the case of wire wheels it often happens that the wheel driving members become worn, giving the same effect as though there were play in the differential. If a wire wheel is not tight in place it will slap sideways and this knocking often is mistaken for a bucking rear end.

BRAKES FORE AND AFT—They're one of the interesting features on the terrific little Ballot that has won Ralph De Palma his intense popularity this season. The brilliant Italian pilot takes no more chances than necessary, and those who have survived rides with speed kings will appreciate these safety and comfort appliances on one of the greatest racing cars ever built. These front wheel brakes and shock absorbers were responsible, in large part, for his victory on the Elgin road course.

American Cars Close Doors of British Plants

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—There is a tremendous slump in the British automobile trade due to American competition. Two days ago the Sopwith Engineering works, airplane makers during the war and since making automobiles and motorcycles, closed, throwing 800 employés out of work.

Today the J. A. Prestwich concern of London, the largest British makers of motor engines, closed, disemploying over 1,000.

British motors are protected by a 35 per cent tariff, but this evidently is not enough. English roads are full of American automobiles, which are purchasable at about two-thirds the price of similar British cars.

MY FUNNIEST MOTORING EXPERIENCE

Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

A la Carte.

After a trip from Gary to Michigan City over the roughest road I have ever seen, I felt the need of a good dinner.

I didn't see any place to eat, and so called out to a newsboy who stood near on the curbing, "Hey, there, do you know where I can get some good food?"

"Sure," he said, "follow me."

So saying, he hopped on to his bicycle and we followed. Where? To a hot dog wagon! F. A.

Sudden Change in Weather.

I was out riding with a girl one evening, and when I mentioned the fact that I was cold she put her fur around my neck.

Going back into the city my engine stalled on the boulevard and I got out to crank it.

Immediately I heard peals of laughter on all sides of me.

Using my collar as a substitute for a thermometer, I swear that it grew 50 degrees warmer in a few seconds, for I discovered that I still had the fur on. I. N.

Never Stuck.

My neighbor boasted proudly that his car was superior to any in the country. According to him, it was always in good working order and never got stuck.

One day in early spring we passed him stuck in a mud hole not far from town.

We could not resist the temptation to call out and say, "Hey, there, are you stuck?"

Still he would not own up to it and answered: "Nope, just having a little trouble getting enough power to get out of here." L. E. D.

A Kick.

One gallon of gasoline contains enough power to move fifteen tons of freight one mile.

A Dreadnaught.

An English manufacturing company announces that it is preparing to put on the market an automobile that can be retailed for $250.

Scarcely any wood will be used in the construction of the car, the principal material being a new substance which is described as "a kind of concrete, light, but strong and durable, produced from waste materials, such as slag, clinkers, and sawdust, and covered with a metal solution."

The process of manufacture is another innovation in England. All parts, including wheels and chassis, will be stamped out, each complete in one piece, and then fitted together.

When it comes to a motor car, possessors of misinformation dispense it liberally.—American Motorist.

AVIATION

Airplane Upkeep Within Means of Moderate Purse

Operating Cost Estimated at Ten Cents a Mile

BY MORROW KRUM.

DOES the cost make flying prohibitive to the man of moderate means?

With the chance of accident reduced so low that even those of the weakest hearts are beginning to send longing glances toward the cockpits of airplanes many a man—and woman, too—has pondered a bit over the above question.

Prior to the war flying was only for millionaire sporting men and daredevils who displayed extreme disregard for life at the county fairs.

The conflict brought out new ships, new motors, and new flyers. Now the American public has become so familiar with airplanes that a pilot must loop fifteen times, do seven wing overs, and a 1,500 foot falling leaf before he will draw more than a casual glance from the ground.

Yet every man who feels a slight thrill when he sets his foot down on the gas pedal of his motor has a secret yen to handle the joy stick of an airplane. The big spaces, the roar of the motor, the altitudes, the sensation given by the speed, the rushing wind, the sudden drops, and the complete control of one's destiny makes the red blooded man long to zoom a ship off the ground and make a little tour of the heavens.

Then, too, the business man, the man who holds minutes as precious as dollars, is doing some thinking about this young industry. Speed and safety are absolutely necessary to this man, yet he gives some little attention to expense.

The answer to the question is "No." Flying is within the reach of the man who can afford a twelve cylindered motor car. It is perhaps a luxury to the man who flies for fun, but no more of a luxury than his motor car.

Today prices of airplanes range from $2,500 to $40,000. A Curtiss motored standard J-1 ship can be purchased for $2,500. A Curtiss JN with the old faithful OX5 motor, the ship our army used for flying instruction, sells for $4,000. A Laird "Swallow" may be had for $6,500. The Curtiss Oriole brings $8,000. John Larsen asks $40,000 for his all metal monoplanes, and the Curtiss Eagle is sold for the same price.

The buy for the man of medium wealth is the ship selling in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Take my army "Buffalo" or "St. Louis" Curtiss, more commonly known as the "Jenny." This ship can carry a useful load of 490 pounds, has a maximum speed of 75 miles an hour, lands at 45 miles an hour, and can climb 2,000 feet in ten minutes.

The power that twists the propeller on this ship is stirred up in a Curtiss OX5 motor, a V type eight cylindered aviation motor that has won a reputation for reliability rivaled only by the four cylindered automobile motor that made Detroit famous.

The OX5 motor consumes nine gallons of gas an hour. Figuring gas (high test) at 40 cents a gallon, you learn that it costs $3.60 an hour to supply this motor with petrol. The oil in that hour would cost about 40 cents. Add $1.30 for insurance and $1 for overhead, and you have a total cost of $6.30 an hour.

In that hour your ship will have traveled about sixty miles.

So you learn that, after you have allowed for minor crashes, your plane's operation will have cost you a little more than 10 cents a mile.

If you carry no insurance, and a jinx follows your flying, two or three crashes will set you to singing: "It's not the original cost—it's the upkeep." A new propeller costs about $60, and a new landing gear will set you back $200. However, careful flying by a good pilot will eliminate all such expenses.

The average airplane motor must be overhauled every seventy-five hours' flying time. Its life runs with the ship—approximately three years, if properly cared for.

Now, there are the figures. Do you think flying is too expensive for the man whose pocketbook is of moderate thickness?

"Flying Kaydettes."

Fourteen army officers as representatives of American republics will attend the American air service schools at March field, Cal., and Carlstrom field, Fla., for the courses commencing about Oct. 1. These students have accepted the invitation of the adjutant general of the United States army. The acceptance by the following has been received:

Venezuela	2	Bolivia	2
Ecuador	2	Paraguay	1

New Army Ship

The U. S. army entry in the Gordon Bennett international airplane race. This biplane, which will be flown by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, was designed by A. V. Verville, aeronautical engineer of McCook field, Dayton, O., and is powered with the Packard 600 h. p. twelve cylinder engine. This ship is not only a race ship, but can be used for battle work, and is a practical, all around one seater, the air service officials say.

Junker Monoplane Being Overhauled by Mail Service

THE burning to death of two mail aviators in a postoffice department airplane was the second catastrophe in the operation of the new Junker all metal planes, imported from Germany.

The department purchased five of the Junker planes from John M. Larsen, for whom they had been constructed by the Junker company in Germany. The plane in which the two aviators were burned to death was wholly destroyed, and the experts have been unable to determine the cause of the accident. Another Junker plane was destroyed with attendant fatalities, under somewhat similar circumstances, leaving no clew to the origin of the trouble. A third Junker was disabled temporarily by the breaking of the gasoline supply pipe, but the aviator landed without injury.

Postoffice department officials assert that they have not lost faith in the Junker planes, but were overhauling the remaining three in an effort to determine whether faulty construction was responsible for the accidents. In the opinion of one of the officials, the cause is the comparatively slow speed of the motor, which causes too great a vibration of the gas tank and feeding system.

It was stated that no additional Junkers would be purchased pending further trial of these planes. The mail is being carried chiefly by De Haviland 4s and Curtiss R-4s.

New Route.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—Airplane mail service will be established next month between Seattle, Wash., and Victoria, B. C., Postmaster General Burleson announces.

RESERVE CORPS MEN MAY FLY AT CHANUTE

ARRANGEMENTS are being made by the Aviation Club of Chicago and Maj. W. C. McChord, head of the 6th corps area, so that members of the club who are in the air service reserve corps and who have been R. M. A.'s can go to Chanute field in October and have three days of flying.

"I haven't completed arrangements yet," said Maj. McChord yesterday, "but I feel that this plan can be put over. All ex-service pilots who are still in the reserve corps have identification books. These books will earn the men a ride if they are presented at a flying field.

"I understand that there are ten ships at Rantoul ready to fly, and I believe the commandant will welcome a party of Chicago men for three days of flying. Sixteen men of the Aviation club have signed up to go, and I think we will give them a real party.

"We must do all we can to keep our aviators familiar with a ship, you know."

Further plans will be announced later, the major said.

17 Flying Cadets Are Graduated by Diggins School

Two Women Win Pilots' Wings at Ashburn

SEVENTEEN students have been graduated from the Ralph C. Diggins flying school at Ashburn field this summer. These "flying kaydets" have flown their "pilot's tests," have been officially indorsed by James S. Stevens, representing the Aero Club of Illinois, and have been issued pilots' licenses.

Two women are among the graduates. One is Miss Volara Nelson of Lena, Ill. She received her acrobatic instruction from Diggins, purchased a new Avro from the instructor, and flew the ship to her own home town. Since then she has been busy filling exhibition engagements. Miss Jessie Bradley not only learned to fly at Ashburn field, but designed a practical flying suit for feminine pilots.

"She's as proud of the suit as she is of her ability to fly," said Diggins.

One of the graduates of the Diggins school is Woo Wing Fon, a gentleman from China. Another is Procopio Laurel, a native of the Philippine islands. James Curran, an instructor at the field, asserts that these two boys took to flying like a duck takes to water.

Avro ships with the La Rhone rotary motor are used by the Diggins school for instruction purposes. All students are required to solo in "Canuks" and Standards before they take their "R. M. A." tests. The tests consist of flying three "eights" around pylons 1,200 feet apart and making three "dead stick" landings within 150 feet of a mark.

The tests are witnessed by Mr. Stevens, who sends the pilot's recommendations to Washington.

Romance.

A. G. McMahon of Davenport, Ia., who won the croix de guerre as an aviator in France, flew his own plane from Davenport to the Checkerboard field, Chicago, last Saturday in one hour and thirty minutes. His hurried visit was caused by the desire to see Miss Lois Viets of Augusta, Kas., who he heard was to be in Chicago on Sunday. The two of them spent most of Sunday hovering 3,000 to 4,000 feet above the city of Chicago.

PEOPLE PAY MORE FOR A USED HUPMOBILE

Right here, in Chicago and vicinity, you must have noticed that when a man sells his Hupmobile he always gets a good price for it.

As a rule, he gets more, in proportion to first cost and the car's mileage, than many others command.

This might strike you as unusual—but it really isn't unusual.

People know that the quality of the Hupmobile is uncommonly good; that it is almost impossible to wear it out, and that it is exceptionally economical, in both running and upkeep costs.

That is why owners hold their Hupmobiles high, and why buyers pay high prices for them without quibbling.

A phone call—Calumet 5800—will bring a Hupmobile to your home or office for inspection. Immediate delivery on the Roadster, the Coupe and the Touring Car.

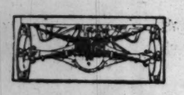
Duplex engineering
—duplex springs bring double comfort



Duplex Springs —another Saxon advantage

Not only does Saxon's Duplex cantilever rear spring put an end to the disagreeable sidesway of the conventional car, but its double construction enables it to take a six-inch jolt with a three-inch flex.

Drive over a six-inch rut with the ordinary car, and each rear spring must go down and come up the full six inches. In Saxon it is only necessary for the upper spring to flex three inches and the lower spring to flex three inches to take up the full six-inch action of the wheels.

Saxon

This is one of the many patented developments which make "Duplex" the only word which accurately describes the Saxon of today. When you see these features in our showroom and hear them explained, you will realize why Saxon is at least two years ahead of present standards.

In Their Place—What Would You Have Done?

This was the situation:

The Overland had no serious competition at its price, and at its price it had no competition as to quality.

Overland plants were working to capacity, 600,000 Overlands had been sold, and a continent was clamoring for more.

Then the Overland organization became concerned about the price of gasoline.

Now, gasoline is not Overland business, but it becomes Overland business when the welfare of Overland owners is at stake.

The sale of an Overland is the beginning and not the end of Overland interest in the man or woman who buys it.

So Overland designers were told:

"Gasoline is continually going up. Every cent advance increases the upkeep of the Overland. Go back to your draughting boards and bring it down!"

Months and months of experiment!

Millions and millions of expense!

And then, up and out of the Valley of Dilemma, leaping into the road like a thing possessed—

A GREATER OVERLAND, built of light alloy steels, mounted on the famous Suspension Triplex Spring, and giving unheard-of mileage out of every gallon of gas in her tank!

Overland designers said: "We don't know what it cost to create, but we do know that it will cost six millions to get ready to use it!"

The answer was: "The public has stood by the Overland, the Overland must stand by the public. Go ahead and equip your plants to produce it."

$6,000,000 for an ideal!

In the Overland Company's place, what would you have done?

Some organizations would have said: "The present Overland is good enough. Why quarrel with success?"

But the Overland theory is, that nothing is good enough that can conceivably be better, and that the great family of Overland owners have placed upon the Overland Company an obligation, not only to produce, but to progress!

In that spirit, the Overland was created.

In that spirit, the Overland is presented.

And now, in that spirit, let us get together!

Begin To-day To Get More Mileage For Your Money!

Quality Goes Clear Through

A Car That Is Winning Good Words Everywhere

There is no inclination on the part of any member of this organization to take any especial credit for the growing sales of Dorts.

Frankly, it is the fine enthusiasm of owners that is building the name and fame of this car higher and higher.

You will observe in talking with a Dort owner that he comments on the performance of the Dort with unmistakable sincerity and a genuine eagerness to do the car justice.

Naturally this ability of the Dort to win the unreserved admiration and appreciation of its owners has had its effect upon those on the verge of buying a car.

In simply case after case it has swung the balance in favor of the Dort.

The recommendation of 80,000 owners, backed by the intrinsic merit of the car and the certified public records of its achievements in open competition, is endorsement that no man can afford to take lightly.

You may be expertly informed on motor matters or you may be inexperienced and yet you cannot help but be profoundly impressed with the obvious and tangible superiority of the Dort in every point.

Run your eyes along the clean, strong lines of the chassis.

Mark well the thorough-going simplicity of the design and the fine quality of its construction.

Check off one by one the high excellence of each feature and the skilled care that is extended to even minor details.

The front springs are half-elliptic, a full 2 inches wide by 37½ inches in length

The rear springs are of the cantilever type, shackled solidly at front end and attached to axle in rear.

They are also 2 inches wide, and 48 inches long.

Two sets of brakes are provided on the rear wheels. The big, powerful drums measure 12 inches in diameter by 1¾ inches face.

The rugged frame is of extra heavy pressed steel channel, narrowed in front to gain short turning radius.

The front axle is I-beam drop forged with integral yokes and spring pads from .30-.40 carbon open hearth steel.

The rear axle is of the three-quarter floating type—ideal in construction.

The sturdy engine is 3½ inches bore by 5 inches stroke.

It develops power and transmits it to the wheels with remarkable economy.

Your added gain in oil, and gas mileage and tire life with the Dort runs up to a sum of no small size in the course of a season.

Let us show you the chassis in detail and then give you a trial ride at your convenience.

THE FILLER EDITION

By Guy F. Lee.

I always buy the early prints
That are made up as day is breakin',
For information they are mints;
In learning they bring home the bacon.
Society (N. Y.) they say
At Jersey milkweeds now are gapin';
They also tell me why donks bray,
Before the day's news starts to happen.

I get the real stuff on J. Wilkes
Booth's actions after he slew Lincoln;
I'm wised on oyster traits, and silks,
And camels' habits as to drinkin';
I find that water lilies grow
At night in Gotham, moonlight sappin',
And other things I ought to know
Before the day's news starts to happen.

By 1 p. m. some bird goes sheer
And runs amuck, and kills the story
Of how a genius peddled queer
Inventions and won wealth and glory;
The hell box gets verbena lore,
Likewise the dope on beaver trappin'—
My revel in delights is o'er
When the day's news begins to happen.

Ere Mamma's kid got loose and lost,
Requirin' at the least a colyum,
I read of Byron being bossed
By wifely words of strength and volyum;
Of monarchs and their love to scan
With favor dames of stature strappin'—
O I'm a keen newspaper fan,
Before the day's news starts to happen.

The First Editions must to press,
And so these yarns are necessary
To bridge the gaps. And I confess
To me they're entertainin', very.
As far as I'm concerned, the sheet
That comes out while the world's still nappin
Is plenty good enough to beat
The day's news when it starts to happen.

U&J Timer

(for FORD Cars)

Passes Unequalled Tests

We have poured dirty oil and muddy water into this great timer and it did not falter. That proves it will not fail under the most arduous road conditions.

The U. & J. Timer positively and permanently cures "timer trouble"—the bugbear of every Ford owner. You can't get away from the results of tests like these.

Oil Test: A steady stream of dirty, clogging, sediment-filled oil was poured into the shell for hours—yet the motor never missed once.

Water Test: Muddy sewer water was run into the timer and over the rotor terminals—but all the time the spark plugs continued to deliver hot, sharp, regular sparks to the firing chamber.

Dirt Test: Dirty, gummy, sediment was thrown into the timer, yet the centrifugal force developed by the revolving rotor wheel threw it off steadily, so quickly and completely that not a single "shot" was missed.

Wear Test: During these tests the motor was kept running at a 40 mile an hour speed for 14 straight days—the equivalent of 13,440 miles of travel—without developing any inefficiency or any noticeable wear in the working parts.

The U. & J. Timer is made on the principle of rotor commutation—used successfully and practically in the construction of all dynamos and generators for years. No other Ford timer embodies this time-tried rotor principle.

Don't worry along another day with hard starting, back firing and lack of power. You can give your motor "pep," power and speed if you will spend $2.50 and twenty minutes at any

ART

ot One Flicker of Consciousness in World of Art

By Eleanor Jewett

THERE is, of course, a certain charm in the uneventful lapsing of any period of time. The height of many a man's ambition is to come to a Nirvanesque quality of life in which all time shall be reduced to a gray, eternal scroll, unwritten, unperioded, unchecked by event, no matter how small, an event, which might punctuate its blankness with a quiver of life.

But such is not my ambition—not as far at least as it touches upon my province of things artistic. So when I am reduced, as this last week or so has decided me, to the level of a searcher after art instead of a reporter of art already discovered, I could gladly commend Nirvana and all its apostles to their blank hereafter, if the doing so would grant me one vital flicker of conscious existence in painting or sculpture or handcraft (beggars must not be choosers) today.

However, it seems for the moment impossible. Wednesday will see the opening of an exhibit of work by Carl Kraft at the Art institute, and an exhibition of advertising art is also scheduled for its opening on that day. But that brings merely a promise of help. I cannot, unfortunately, much as I should like to cash in those future credits on today's bill. Still there are a few items that may be down here as being of interest, and perhaps, the gods willing, they may make in themselves a sufficient accounting for the present.

At the Art institute three honorary curators have been appointed, as follows: Honorary Curator of Manuscripts, Charles L. Ricketts; Honorary Curator of Chinese Antiquities, Dr. Berthold Laufer; Honorary Curator of Egyptian Antiquities, Dr. James H. Breasted.

"Thomas Haden of Derby," etched by his grandson, Sir Seymour Haden, from a picture by Wright, is to be seen in the exhibition of etchings in the print room of the Art institute.

The resignation of William F. Tuttle, secretary of the Art institute, has been already recorded in this column. He leaves on the 1st of October and the vacancy created by his departure will be filled by Charles H. Burkholder, who has been appointed acting secretary. In entering upon his new office Mr. Burkholder is abandoning the post of curator of exhibitions, which he has held and successfully filled for many years.

The attendance at the summer school of the institute this year numbered 400. A special class in advanced life drawing was of particular interest to professional students who have difficulty in finding such classes during the summer.

Mr. Rosse is returning from Holland to resume his work this fall as head of the design department in the school. Mr. Detterer will be his assistant. Mr. Rosse will be in residence for the first term only, after which he will go to Java and to Holland, where he has several commissions awaiting him.

J. Allen St. John has been appointed a member of the faculty in the capacity of instructor in life drawing, filling the vacancy left by Mr. Norton.

Mr. Sterba has been granted a leave of absence until Christmas, his classes being conducted while he is away by Mr. Kreibiel and Mr. Forsberg in the day school and by Mr. St. John in the night school.

Classes in the museum instruction department will be resumed on Oct. 1. Those who are interested may apply to Miss Parker in gallery 16.

A clever and amusing criticism of two American painters, George Luks and Bellows, by Ameen Rihani appeared in the last copy of the International Studio. Though possibly you will not agree with all that the writer puts forth as unavoidable facts, yet you must admit that the following paragraph is forcefully picturesque, if a bit vague toward the end in its intention.

"And they are both sworn enemies of the tawdry and sentimental. Nature must surrender unconditionally to them or eat her own heart. A fig for her sighs and tears! They would drag all her sheltered and cherished emotions into the open and make them jazz and tango on canvas. They set

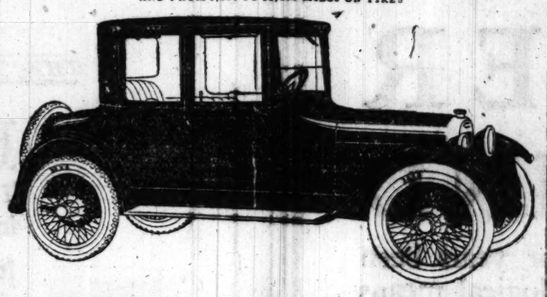
OAKLAND MOTOR CAR

OAKLAND OWNERS REPORT RETURNS OF FROM 18 TO 25 MILES PER GALLON OF GASOLINE AND FROM 5,000 TO 12,000 MILES ON TIRES



SWUNG over a longer wheelbase and mounted on a much deeper frame, the new Oakland Sensible Six Coupe is unusually staunch, roomy and comfortable.

Powered with the famous Oakland 44-horsepower, overhead-valve engine, the car is exceptionally capable under every driving condition—in traffic, on hills, in heavy going, on the open road.

Needless weight has been eliminated wherever weight is not a factor in strength, comfort and safety.

This scientific light weight construction, combined with an engine unwasteful of its power, makes the Oakland Sensible Six Coupe conspicuous as a saver of gasoline, oil and tires.

The refinements that have been incorporated in this handsome closed car make it a most efficient agent of transportation in every way.

We invite your inspection of the Oakland Sensible Six Coupe at our salesrooms. Or, if you will phone or write, we will schedule a demonstration at your convenience.

little or no value on restraint. They recognize not the seeming adventitious. They are after the bizarre of life, which are often mistaken for truth. And in giving them the world, they prefer the manner hitting the nail on the head. To fail to observe their wonderful inventivity to the contrary, that to hit the head and around it, is often worth while. For nature takes care no time spent by genius at a task is ever lost, though the gain be only a matter of chance."

Which last sophism, depending upon the amount of optimism that sweetens your nature, may be taken with or without the proverbial grain of salt.

As far as the rest of the criticism goes, its truth for you rests, too, on the light in which you behold the working of these painters. Personally, I think Luks approaches very near the figure-head of undaunted masculinity to which Rihani has raised him; of Bellows I am not so sure. As I remember the exhibit of canvases from his brush shown in the Art institute last year I feel further than ever from concurrence in this estimate of the value of his talent. To play safe, I prefer to withhold judgment until I can see more of his, perhaps, maturer work. I most assuredly did not like the blaring colors he favored in those pictures, nor the out of focus drawing, which may or may not at that time have been an affectation with him.

FARM AND GARDEN

National Dairy Show in Chicago October 7 to 16

By Frank Ridgway.

Now the bovine beauty parlors of the dairy barns throughout the country herdsmen are shampooing, brushing, and massaging the sleek hides, polishing the horns, and manicuring the hoofs of their prize winning charges, preparing them for the National Dairy show to be held in Chicago Oct. 7 to 16, inclusive.

For months the eliminating process has gone on at the county and state fairs, and at these local contests among the beauties of the dairy world the cast has been selected for the fourteenth annual review. The stars will be sent here in a few days for the final rehearsal before the curtains are rolled back for the opening act of the big performance.

The cream of America's dairy herds will be assembled to pass in review before the alert and skilled judges at the sawdust arena of the International amphitheater, Union stockyards, where the champions will be decorated with ribbons of royal colors. This important occasion brings to Chicago thousands of dairymen from the leading dairy districts of the United States.

It gives them a chance to study and learn newer and better methods of breeding, feeding, and managing, and an opportunity to see the latest inventions and devices in the field of dairy machinery and equipment. An attempt is being made to make this event a complete education in the dairy industry.

Modern Dairying Methods.

"It's a school—a ten days' short course in dairying," said Col. W. E. Skinner, general manager of the show. "The dairyman is given an opportunity to make an intense study of the advances and developments of his business. It brings both the producer and consumer in touch with the new sanitary methods used in modern dairying. Men of achievement, men who are thinking constructively along the lines of real progress, are brought together to exchange ideas. Every man can learn a lesson."

The bigness of the exhibition is realized when one stops to consider that more than 1,200 of the finest dairy cows and bulls from all parts of America have been entered. So many have entered in each class of dairy cattle that the five leading breeds, Holsteins, Jerseys, Ayrshires, Guernseys and Brown Swiss, will be shown, and each breed judged on a special day.

It is frequently thought that the interest at such a show is always centered on the pure bred individuals with a case full of awards, but the cows without aristocratic histories and pedigrees to their credit have been considered in making up the program of this year's exhibits. The grade cow will not be crowded out by the pure bred for the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture will demonstrate the possibility of high production and actual results obtained by the use of grade cows and pure bred bulls. The inability of the dairy farmer to change at once to a pure bred herd makes the grade cow an important factor in the industry, and this section will be one of great interest to the visitor.

Cattle and Machinery Exhibits.

The space devoted to the various cattle exhibits has been increased 25 per cent over that of last year, while the machinery division will be at least 30 per cent larger than in 1919, occupying more than 100,000 feet of floor space. The exhibits of the newest and best types of machinery for every possible phase of the milk business will be fully as educational as the study of cattle.

The exhibits will include machinery for the making of cheese, butter, milk powder, condensed milk, and ice cream. The hundreds of displays will point to the evolution of the dairying industry from the simple pail and humble milking stool to the automatic milker, refrigerator plant, separator, and complex creamery mechanism.

The introduction of state herd contests will have much weight, it is believed, in encouraging friendly rivalry between sections of the country where it is now in its infancy. Students' cattle judging contests, activities of the bull and calf clubs, domestic demonstrations, the sale of dairy cattle, and motion pictures are other features.

Foreign Exhibits Entered.

State and national cattle associations, state leaders, county agents, and club workers will have headquarters at the dairy show.

An international note is lent by foreign exhibits of butter and cheese. The leading exporters of these commodities are Denmark, Holland, Uruguay, and Argentina, and they have bravely entered exceptionally large exhibits to compete with American dairymen. Denmark alone makes 200,000,000 pounds of butter a year.

Representatives of Argentine Republic now in the United States in the interest of the dairy industry of that country announce that Argentine, famed for its production of beef cattle, is taking up dairying, and that her experts look to the National Dairy show as an ideal gathering where breeds may be studied.

Argentina's exhibit of butter and cheese is an indication of a new competitor for North American dairymen. More than twenty-five countries will be represented this year by exhibitors or delegates from dairying organizations.

New Judging System.

Here and there over the country dairymen are whispering their approval of the new judging system that will be used this year. It is thought to be a decided improvement over the old one, where the judging was done by a committee of three or by one judge alone. This year the "one man judging system" will be used, but the judge will have an assistant, or "lookout," in the dairyman's vernacular. The lookout's capacity is that of an adviser.

The change is the result of dissatisfaction with the former judging system. Officials of the dairy show believe that one sincere, competent, and careful judge will be more satisfactory to both the exhibitors and show management than three disagreeing judges. The new system will be tried out at the show this year.

The night horse show, which attracted so much attention among Chicagoans last year, will be an attraction of the dairy show again this fall. It will begin Oct. 11 and continue throughout the week.

Chicago Solves Vexing Transportation Problem

"Give us better transportation!" This is the cry of thousands of leading Chicago concerns.

These concerns are saying that rail "tie-ups" and rate advances must not embarrass their business.

So they are starting to motorize their own businesses. And that their start may be a good one many are deciding upon Service Motor Trucks as standard equipment.

The following Chicago concerns, through business foresight, have already, with Service Motor Trucks, protected themselves against transportation troubles:

The Hydrox Company
Fred E. Downey Coal Co.
Lasham Teaming Co.
Chase & Sanborn
Chest Creek Coal Co.
North Shore Fruit & Produce Co.
Werner Transfer Company
Palace Storage Company
The Lion Store, Hammond

These concerns chose Service Motor Trucks because of their unrivaled record covering over ten years. Also because the Service method of SCIENTIFIC CUSHIONING absorbs shocks and strains, thus adding years to truck life and reducing repair expense to the minimum.

The Chicago Service back of Service Motor Trucks is as remarkable as the trucks themselves. Twenty-four hour service is our policy. In before 10 P. M., out before 8 A. M., is our slogan. Open all night.

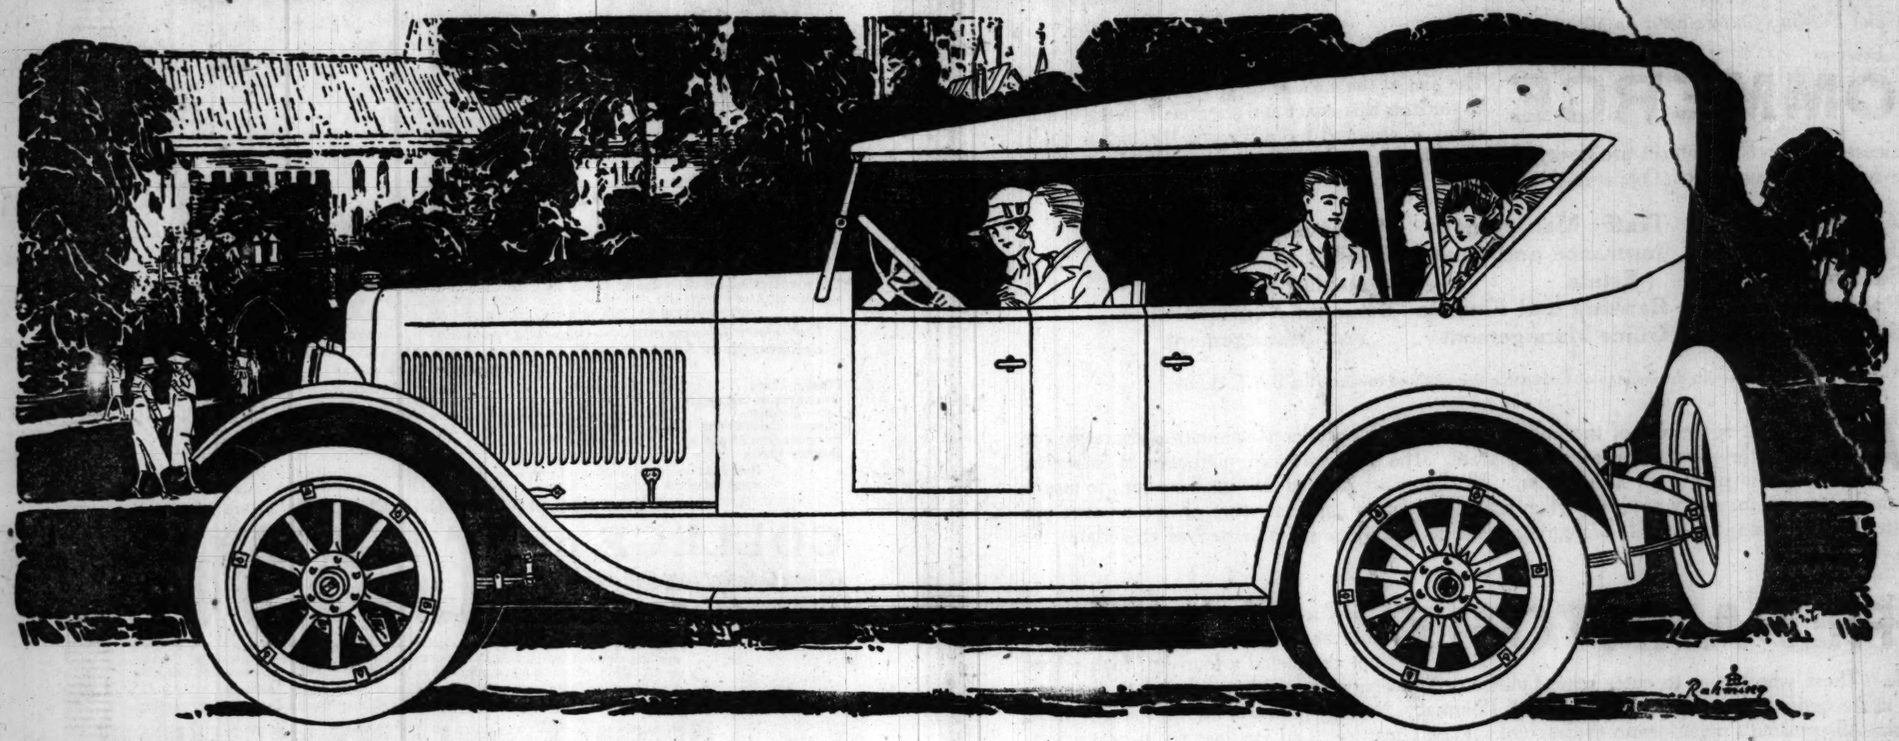
CHANDLER SIX



Chandler Leadership is Established by Its Superior Service

The Chandler is a handsome car of distinguished gracefulness in each of its models, roomy and restful in its seating arrangements, splendidly upholstered and finished. Its character and beauty appeal to the discriminating.

These qualities are an outer mark of what is underneath. Chandler leadership among all sixes is founded primarily on the excellence of the one standard chassis. The Chandler holds this leadership because of its superiority of service to its host of owners, the desired performance under all conditions and the genuine satisfaction which it gives them.

The Chandler Leads, Too, Because of the Fairness of Its Price

An oversold production has never marked up the Chandler price. Cars which were competitive with the Chandler two years ago are not competitive today. You can prove this for yourself by a careful comparison.

Let us show you how the Chandler checks in essential features of construction with many of the highest priced cars, and how cars priced at hundreds of dollars more than the Chandler do not check.

TO GIRLS OF 16
AND THEIR PARENTS.
We are bringing our proposition of business education to the attention of parents because we think their better judgment will lead them to give the opportunity they want their children to have. Parents are right in demanding a well established house that offers good working conditions and a chance for development. This house, with main offices near the loop, is noted for its training of young people. It has classes in instruction in typewriting, dictaphone, billing and comptometer operating. These courses are offered not only free of charge, but on a salary basis, so that students are paid $14 to $15 a week while they are in our school, and guaranteed well paying positions when graduated afterward. However, we are interested only in intelligent, enthusiastic girls of at least a grammar school education who want to make good. They must be 16, or nearly 16 years of age. We shall be glad to tell more in an interview with applicants or parents interested. Address G O 164, Tribune.

BUYING A FARM OR RANCH

Under our credit system has many advantages. It secures you in the selection of good land, because we will positively not extend credit on land that will not pay you. It enables you to get on your land sooner and with less capital, as you get credit for buying material in proportion to amount you pay down and do not have to make principal or interest payments for years.

The lands we offer are in tracts of 40, 80, 160, to 640 acres or more, located in Forest and Oconto counties, Wis. They are owned by three big lumber companies, who are financially independent. These companies have decided that they could give the settler a much better price and a more liberal contract if they sold their lands themselves, and this would in return draw a greater number of settlers into the district. This has already proved true.

OUR DISTRICT

Is no place for the idler unless he has plenty of money. To develop a farm is the job of a man who is not afraid of hard work. But the ownership of a fully developed farm in either Oconto or Forest counties is reward sufficient to spur on any man's ambition.

We have improved and partially improved farms and lake frontage acres to offer on reasonable terms.

Write or call for further information.
